What Will Come Today?
Dangerous Voodoo Party
A Keeper Killed

—By Arthur Brisbane—

FRIENDS of prohibition tell the House judiciary committee that a "Dry America" means a country with happy homes, filled with luxuries, everybody enjoying himself.

Henry Ford telegraphs his certainty that "the sane people of the nation would not allow any dangerous modification of the prohibition law."

Edison wired: "Prohibition is the greatest experiment yet made to benefit man."

Edison and Ford represent the opinions of many Americans.

One thing is sure: Nobody now living will see prohibition taken out of the Constitution, barring a revolution, which we shall not have.

Several cities wonder what will happen in the way of "Red outbreaks" today. That will depend, probably, on the wisdom of the police, handling the situation, which is partly "Red" and largely "unemployment."

In Newark, early yesterday morning, a combination of alleged voodoo worship and bootleg whiskey resulted in killing one policeman and one "voodooist."

Police, creeping cautiously to the top floor door in a house, apparently deserted, heard chanting, rhythmic thumping of bodies against walls, and a negro, saying: "There ain't no such thing as law; everybody makes his own law, according to the light God gives him."

Loud "Amens" greeted this. The police broke in, found the small room crowded with negroes, men and women, chanting what the police described as voodoo hymns. There was shooting. One negro, one policeman killed; other negroes and other policemen wounded. Old beliefs die slowly, violent interference is dangerous.

We do not understand management of prisons, or our criminals are different from other criminals.

Weeks ago the [illegible] of Auburn prison, were told a reporter, "we are sitting on a powder keg."

Yesterday a convict stabbed the head keeper of the prison to death. He knew that the electric chair, nearby, would inevitably avenge that murder, nevertheless, he committed it.

Swift trial and punishment should protect the other keepers.

Careful investigation should find what treatment and conditions drove a convict to so desperate an act.

Leaders of new "cults" often convince themselves.

At St. Joe, Ark., Irwin C. Graham, leader of the "incoming kingdom," and later, leader of the "visionary" branch, planned with Divine aid to cure himself of illness by fasting. He did, and died yesterday of hunger.

This is not new. In the Middle Ages a man announced that he was the real Messiah, would walk down to the waters of the Bosphorus, and walk upon the surface. His crowd of believers followed him, and all were drowned, he included.

Following Governor Sampson's suggestion that chain stores be "forced to bear their share of taxation," Kentucky's Legislature lavies a tax of one-twentieth of one per cent on chain store "sales" of $400,000 and less. One million dollars gross sales would pay one per cent. The State expects to collect $1,500,000 a year.

The citizens of Kentucky, patronizing chain stores, will pay the tax, the stores increasing prices in proportion to taxes.

The hope is that taxation will discourage chain stores, encourage individual stores.

Smaller towns and cities object particularly to the fact that chain-store receipts do not stay where they are collected, being off to headquarters, sometimes every day.

Even local banks have no chance to profit.

Armament delegates in London seek to agree on a limit to submarine sizes. An 1800-ton limit was suggested.

This country already has six submarines bigger than 1800 tons. France is building one of 2880 tons. Japan, according to a French navy officer, has the biggest submarine in the world.

This country should have the biggest and the most submarines. Make them useful, exploring below the water in peace times, more useful in case of war. Build them, if possible, with a 25,000-mile cruising range, so that they could go around the world and remind

South End Blaze Set in Baby Carriages on First Floor, Officials Believe

Three persons perished today when fire of suspicious origin raced through the five stories of the Clover Hotel, an apartment house, 335 Shawmut ave., South End.

Nine others were injured or overcome [illegible] families occupying [illegible] rooms [illegible] the building engaged in many spectacular rescues.

The dead are Charles Zakochian, 28 months old; a woman tentatively identified as Mrs. Dinah Nikopofather, Euphemese Cahakos, 48.

Four alarms were sounded in quick succession as flames starting on the first floor swept upward to the roof through apartments occupied by sleeping families.

State Fire Marshal John W. Reid, Mayor Curley and Chief Daniel Sennott ordered investigations in the belief that the fire was set in a group of baby carriages near the first floor.

State Fire Inspector James A. Trainor, Fire Commissioner Edward A. McLaughlin and Chief Albert J. Caulfield will conduct separate probes.

Stairways were rapidly consumed by the flames and two collapsed. The fire raced through the elevator shaft to mushroom at each floor, meeting flames licking up the stairs and walls.

When the first apparatus arrived the windows of the top floor were jammed with occupants who chose to escape by the stairs had been cut off. Their screams aroused the neighborhood and several threatened to jump. Firemen from aerial ladders directed them to make their way to the top of the building.

Many of the families made their way through a skylight to the roof and were rescued by means of lad-

CALLED IN GARRETT INQUIRY

Police Commissioner Wilson Is Expected to Be Star Witness at Hearing

Announcement that Police Commissioner Wilson will testify at the resumed investigation of Oliver B. Garrett, former patrolman, divided interest today with the summoning of Francis C. LeCroix of South Hingham.

[illegible] and [illegible] former employe on the Garrett farm at Hingham, was ordered to appear at the office of the attorney-general this afternoon.

It was learned he was one of about a dozen witnesses summoned by Inspector John Mitchell to report to Atty.-Gen. Joseph E. Warner for preliminary questioning.

SIMON SWIG APPEARS

If they prove to have information they will be required to testify when the investigation is resumed, probably next week.

Simon Swig, former president of the defunct Tremont Trust Co., and general agent of the company in which Garrett obtained an insur-

Ranchers Kill Five Indians in Battle

Douglas, Ariz., March 6 (AP)—Word was brought here by courier of a battle between six ranchers and a band of 25 Indians 25 miles south of Bacoras, Sonora, Mexico in which five Indians were slain.

Roni Finn, owner of ranch property 80 miles south of the international boundary, the leader of the ranchers, was injured slightly when his horse was shot from under him.

Life Tenure Asked for 4 City Clerks

Secretary of State Frederic W. Cook and a large number of city officials and legislators today urged life tenure of office for the city clerks of Worcester, Brockton, Cambridge and North Adams.

Members of the legislative committee on cities, before whom the speakers appeared, indicated that a general bill would be brought out to cover the city clerks in every community.

Warm Spell Pays Greater Hub Visit

After several days of cold weather, Boston enjoyed the beginning of a warm spell today when the mercury reached 41 during the early morning. A maximum of 50 was predicted for later on in the day by the weather man.

The warm spell resulted in a heavy fog off the coast and shipping was delayed. A "white" frost confronted suburbanites on arising, due to the same cause as the fog.

2 Hurt, 12 Overcome by Gas Explosion

Montreal, Que., March 6 (INS)—Gas from a leaking main today caused an explosion and the collapse of a two-story house in the Ross Mount suburb of this city.

Twelve persons overcome by gas and two injured by debris were removed to hospitals.

BALANCES AND RECEIPTS

Washington, March 6—Today's Treasury balance, $39,450,244. U. S. Customs receipts, $5,130,587.

First 'Red' Arrest on Boston Common

Jackson Wales of South Boston was the first man to be arrested when the Reds held their meeting on the Common. He is alleged to have assaulted John Kenney of South Boston as a crowd of 4000 was heckling a Red speaker. The Reds numbered only about 100. There was a big detail of police on hand and Wales was whisked away in no time. Picture shows him between two officers. (Staff photo.)

VON TIRPITZ OF SUB FAME DES

Ebenhausen, Bavaria, March 6 (AP)—Admr. Alfred von Tirpitz, Lord High Admiral of the German navy during the war and father of Germany's submarine warfare, died in a sanatorium here at 2:3a. m. today after a brief attack of bronchitis.

He would have been 81 years old March 19.

The gray-bearded warri, who sometimes was termed a german Odin, or war god of the sea, was in good health until early in February, when the bronchialtiment developed. He seemed to recover, but when his heart actionbecame weak he was conveyed from his home at Feldafing, on the banks of Starnberger lake, to this place, a suburb of Munich.

$50,000 Fire in Yare Destroys 2 Locks

Ware, March 6—Afteran allnight battle, firemen say today had under control the blaz which destroyed two blocks of ruined nearby tenants.

Damage of $50,000 wasestimated in the Dupont and Roodlocks at Pleasant and Aspen sts., which are a total loss.

Price of Gas Drops to 16½ Cents Gallon

Price of gasoline today dropped to 16½ cents a gallon in Boston at all large dealer retailing points.

This new price includes the two-cent tax. The cut is due to action of the Standard Oil Company in making an announcement of reductions in its territory.

This was followed by similar statements of other large dealers.

Detroit Judges Jail All Drunken Drivers

Detroit, March 6 (INS)—When is a drinking driver a drunk driver?

"When he has drunk enough to defeat his reasoning and efficient control of his car," says Judge John J. Maher of the traffic division of the recorder's court.

Judge Maher and Judge Callender have decreed jail sentences for all drunk drivers unless circumstances extenuate their offenses.

"I only had one little drink, your honor," is the invariable defense of persons charged with drunk driving.

PRELATE WARNS OF 'RUM WAR'

Washington, March 6 (AP)—The move of the anti-prohibition group for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment was described as a revival of the whiskey insurrection of 1794 on a "larger and more dangerous basis" in a letter today from Monsignor M. E. Foley, of Baltimore, presented at the House judiciary committee, prohibition hearing.

The communication was submitted by Patrick Callahan, a leader of the prohibition forces, and Secretary of the Association of Catholics Favoring Prohibition.

Mgr. Foley wrote that from his experience before prohibition in the Maryland city that he had regarded the old saloon as "lawless and a menace to order, decency and morality." The letter added:

"The shouters for 'personal liberty,' unable to deny that the old saloon was a blot on civilization and a menace to good government, tell us that they do not want to bring back the old saloon, but a heavenly resort where angels might gather and men may drink their fill of what they will and not get drunk, beat their wives, starve their children or commit murder.

"We hear a lot of rot about the bringing back of light wines and

POLICE IN BATTLE QUELL OUTBREAK AT STATE HOUSE

A Communist outburst in front of the State House today, part of the international observance of Solidarity Day, was smashed by police reserves dispatched to the scene on riot calls flashed out from headquarters as the "reds" marched on the capitol from the Common.

[illegible] were arrested. Two men were [illegible] demonstration on the Common.

The march on the State House served as a signal [illegible] police held in reserve, with riot guns and tear gas bombs, at [illegible] stations around the downtown section.

They dashed to the scene in automobiles, followed by a corps of mounted officers, and after slicing their way through a crowd of 4000 spectators, that had followed the Communists from the Common, they quickly broke up the attempt to hold a meeting on the steps of the Capitol.

State Police poured from the building, swept away those who had mounted the steps and closed the gates on them. One man evaded them and burst into the State House with a demand to see the Governor, but he was quickly ejected.

GUARD STATE PRISON.

The big crowd of onlookers made it difficult for the police to cope with the radicals. Several civilians were injured in the clash and some of the policemen got rough treatment in the general melee.

While this clash was in progress, police were thrown around State prison as a guard, at the request of Warden Hogsett, for the first time since the Sacco-Vanzetti case.

Public buildings all over the city were under guard of policemen in uniform and plainclothes men, as they were in every large city of America and Europe.

Worcester saw an incipient riot in the heart of the city, where five men were arrested when radicals and unemployed attempted to hold a meeting on the Common, in the rear of City Hall, without a permit and in defiance of police orders.

POLICE SEIZE PLACARDS

Girls carrying placards in the Boston demonstration were warned repeatedly to drop them but refused. Eventually a traffic officer solved the problem to some extent by seizing placards from the hands of the girls, tearing them up and throwing the pieces into the street.

Those arrested at the State House and booked at the Joy st. station for "sauntering and loitering," are:

WILLIAM B. TRAFFORD, 19, of 53 Mt. Auburn st., Cambridge.

At Station 4, Lagrange st., there were two bookings:

Jackson Wales, 29, of South Boston, on a charge of assault and battery.

Samuel Winn, 36, of Harold st., Dorchester, on a charge of making a speech without a permit.

While the rioting was going on scores of girl and men employes of the State House stood on the steps of the capitol, safe behind locked gates, and watched the proceedings.

The first riot call, sending 29 police to the Common, occurred

Big Events on Red Day

Occurrences today in the world-wide demonstration of "solidarity" by the Communist Internationale were as follows:

BOSTON—Police broke up radical demonstration in front of the State House, arresting six there and two on the common.

WASHINGTON—Tear gas used to disperse gathering in front of the White House; several injured, dozen arrested.

WORCESTER—Five arrested at meeting in defiance of police; four arrested in Waterbury, Ct., riot, and several at Stamford.

NEW YORK—"Reds" gathered in Union sq., surrounded by a ring of police and armored police cars loaded with reserves and tear gas bombs and machine guns.

LONDON—Five injured in clash with police when crowd tried to interview Lord Mayor; four arrested at Dublin.

DETROIT—Nine persons were arrested and eight, one a policeman, were injured in encounters during a "Red" demonstration in Cadillac sq.

EUROPE — Rioting at Berlin, Breslau, Hamburg and Kiel in Germany; bloodshed in rioting at Vienna; disorders at Warsaw, Antwerp, Stockholm, Copenhagen, Budapest and Paris, and many leaders arrested.

Tariff Lobby Rumor Is Spiked by Moses

Washington, Mar. 8 (AP)—Chairman Moses, of the Senate rules committee, informed the Senate today that he had investigated reports that officers of the American Tariff League were occupying an office of Senator Grundy, Republican, Pennsylvania, in the Senate office building and said he understood the grundy offices were being used "solely by the personal employes of the Senator."

ladders from windows of fourth and fifth floor rooms.

Charles Zakochian was suffocated in a penthouse on the roof. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. N. Zakochian, who lived on the third floor.

Aroused by the crackling of flames and finding the stairway to the second floor a mass of flame, Zakochian carried Charles and another child to the roof, while his wife carried a third child.

HAD TO BREAK DOOR.

Zakochian said he was forced to break down a locked door leading to a fire stair to the roof.

On the roof with more than a score of other children, many of whom sought temporary shelter in the penthouse while awaiting rescue, Charles became separated from his parents. When firemen believed that all had been taken down, the child was found to be missing. The father sought to ascend a ladder to find him, but firemen prevented.

The boy was found unconscious in the penthouse a few minutes later. Carried down, he was rushed to City Hospital and physicians worked over him in vain with a pulmotor for a half-hour.

The bodies of the man and woman, believed to be Mrs. Nikopolos and her father, were found in a fifth floor bedroom on the front of the house.

The man was upon a bed and the woman lay upon the floor. Both were burned beyond recognition and Associate Medical Examiner William J. Brickley thinks it likely that they suffocated before flames reached them.

Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Lappas and their four children were unconscious when firemen carried them from their fifth floor apartment. All were rushed to City Hospital.

Frank Debabiss, 31, and Birch Shanegasshin, 10 months, were also sent to the hospital for resuscitation. The condition of the latter is serious.

Henry Kane, 43, attached to Engine 15, was overcome by smoke and cut on the left hand by glass. His home is in Gillen st., Roxbury.

An investigation of the cause of the fire is being made by police and fire officials. There are no fire escapes on the building and the loss of life would have been much heavier but for the work of four policemen who discovered the flames.

Sergt. John A. Willard and Special Officers Frell, Shanley and De Bessa of the headquarters special unit were driving past the building when they saw the flames leaping from the upper windows. They rushed into the house, arousing as many occupants as possible and finding many to be suspicious.

Patrolman Bart Spellman of East Dedham st. joined them before the first apparatus arrived and assisted in spreading the alarm.

Two aged women, one a cripple, were partially overcome by smoke on the third floor and rescued by Ralph and Joseph McNally, brothers, who, with their wives, also occupied an apartment on the same floor.

Ralph carried Miss Mary Graham, 80, a cripple, and Joseph carried Miss Julia Bradley, 73, to the street. Both women were revived at the scene.

GIRL SAVES BROTHER

Frances McElaney, 20, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward McElaney, living on the fourth floor, rescued her brother, Edward, 21, who was partially overcome.

The parents, with Frances, Mary, 17; Grace, 12, and Charles, 9, had reached the stairs when the father "took count" and discovered Edward was missing.

Frances dashed back into the apartment and found Edward, partially overcome in a bedroom. She assisted him to safety.

On the first floor, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Dubrofkin and their six children were one of the first families aroused. Their escape through the main exit was cut off by the burning hallway and the parents led the children to the windows.

Louis, 13, boosted his brothers, Saul, 10, and Abe, nine, to the sill and dropped them out. Taking his baby sister Rose, three, in his arms, he dropped himself. Mr. and Mrs. Dubrofkin followed with Freida, 12, and David, six.

Charles Nadeau, his wife, Sylvia, and three children, Edward, eight; Louise, 13, and Philip, 15, were rescued from the first floor.

Six ambulances from police divisions and additional conveyances from City Hospital were rushed to the building.

The fire served as a tragic baptism of Fire Commissioner Edward A. McLaughin into his new position. He was aroused from bed on the third alarm and rushed to the burning building. There he joined Chief Daniel Sennott and Asst. Chief Henry Fox in directing the battle against the flames.

Firemen ran ladders up to buildings on Upton and Pelham sts., on either side of the Clover Hotel, and from there mounted other ladders to carry down the terrified persons on the roof of the blazing building.

The alarm for the blaze was sounded by Special Officer Di Sessa of Lieut. Gillis' special headquarters unit. Immediately on arrival of apparatus, a second alarm was sounded. A third and fourth were ordered when Fire Chief Sennott arrived.

Ladder companies 22 and 17 placed ladders against the building. Firemen mounted them and attempted to gain entrance through the upper stories. Repeatedly they were beaten back. They did succeed, however, in carrying down several persons.

CHILDREN SEEK PARENTS

Ambulances from the East Dedham, LaGrange, Joy street stations, and from the Back Bay, Roxbury Crossing and Dudley street stations were on the scene early to rush the injured to the hospital.

Several children, escaping from the building and losing their parents, wandered about in the crowd outside, crying for their mothers and fathers. They were taken to the East Dedham st. station, where they were kept until their parents claimed them.

Mayor Curley arrived shortly after the fire was extinguished and with District Chief Thomas Downey went through the building.

Chief Sennott conferred with him, and shortly afterward the chief said: "I have talked it over with Chief Albert J. Caulfield of the fire prevention service and have reached the conclusion that this fire was of suspicious nature and it will be investigated at once by Chief Caulfield.

"The fire started in a group of baby carriages on the first floor near the elevator shaft."

RECENTLY CHANGED NAME

The building was known for many years as the Glover Hotel, but recently the name was changed to Clover.

Representative Francis D. Daley, whose home is only a block from the scene, was at the fire with the first apparatus. He said he would demand a probe by the state fire marshal.

"There are hundreds of such buildings in the district without fire protection. Unless there is a remedy there will be more such tragedies."

He paid tribute to the work of the firemen for preventing a much greater loss of life.

25 Driven Out by Revere Cellar Fire

Fifteen children and 10 adults living in a six-family wooden structure at 52 Summer st., Revere, were forced out of their beds early today, due a fire in the cellar.

The six families were aroused by Abraham King, who lives on the first floor. He smelled smoke and telephoned the fire department. By the time the apparatus had arrived King had warned all other occupants.

The blaze was confined to the cellar, where rags had ignited from a cause as yet unknown. The entire building was filled with heavy black smoke, causing a total damage of $1500.

The owner of the house is Samuel Terlousky, who also resides on the first floor.

The families which were routed by the smoke are those of Julius Harris, Julius Pearlstein, Jacob Moskovits and Samuel Katz.

beer as the panacea for the evils laid at the door of prohibition and as the great European promoter of temperance.

"Nonsense! The wets today, some consciously, some unconsciously, are preparing the way for the return of the 'good old saloon' with all its horrible satellites.

"I believe that the 18th amendment is what President Hoover declared it, a noble experiment, the most noble a great nation ever tried to save its people from frightful evils.

"I believe the 18th amendment is be a more noble experiment even than that which began at Concord and ended at Yorktown.

"We are now having on a larger and more dangerous basis the revival of the 'whiskey insurrection' of 1794. To my mind, President Washington in suppressing the 'whiskey insurrection' taught the Americans that this union was no mass of disorganized units, but had become a nation."

Mr. Callahan, in his own testimony before the committee, asserted that prohibition has saved more lives than the total America lost in the World War.

He presented statistics compiled by the census bureau in support of his claim.

Taking the average losses of life before and after prohibition from alcohol, cirrosis of the liver and Bright's disease and granting that 50 per cent of cases of the last were caused by drinking, he argued that 180,000 lives had been saved by the dry laws.

Deaths from alcohol had been reduced, he said, from 5.2 to 2.8 per 100,000 of population and deaths from Bright's disease from 105.3 to 81.3 per 100,000 of population.

First Wife Wins Suit Against Estate

Under a decree issued by Judge Charles N. Harris in Middlesex Probate Court at East Cambridge administrators of the estate of the late W. Herbert Abbott, Boston banker, who died October 11, 1928, have been ordered to set aside the sum of $72,780 to ensure monthly payments of $500 to his former wife, Mrs. Fannie E. Abbott of Newton.

Mrs. Abbott divorced her husband for desertion in Suffolk Superior Court in 1919. Abbott, who subsequently married Edna Lawrence, who survived him, in Newton, had agreed to pay his first wife $500 every month for the rest of her life in the event she obtained her decree.

Fr. Washington to Visit Laconia, N. H.

Milford, N. H., March 6—On March 15 to 17, the Rev. Richard B. Washington of Virginia, a Catholic priest, and descendant of the family of George Washington, first President of the United States, will visit the Rev. Henry E. Lennon of this town. Plans are now being formulated for the observance of this event, not only for this town out for the whole State.

Fr. Washington, who has been visited at Hot Springs, Va., by Fr. Lennon of this town, has planned to arrive in Boston, March 12, where he will meet his host before coming to Milford. An informal call will be made on Mayor Curley, who helped make arrangements for the previous visit of Fr. Washington to Boston.

Seven Say Prayers Over Dog Dying in Fire Rescue

Bristol, R. I., March 6 (AP)—Seven persons, in the light of their burning home, gathered about the almost lifeless form of a dog on the lawn at 586 Hope st. to pray and prayed for the little creature whose barking had sent them fleeing to safety.

Richard F. Simmons, roused by the barking of his pet, Skippy, went to the kitchen to investigate. As he opened the door thick smoke poured out upon him, and Skippy, with a last feeble bark, fell at his feet.

Simmons awakened his wife and five other occupants of the house and carried Skippy out doors. Then the companions extinguished the blaze.

ROUT PARADE IN PROVIDENCE

Providence, March 6—A crowd of about 1000 persons following a committee of Communists carrying red banners to City Hall, was broken up by mounted police today. There was little excitement.

The committee was allowed to enter City Hall without the banners but found Mayor Dunne not present. They said they would call at the State House later.

A monday meeting in Postoffice Square attracted a crowd of about 5000, including Brown students and workers on their lunch period. Dr. James P. Reid, chairman of the National Textile Workers, made an address.

Sandblast Building

In response to the recent appeal by Mayor Curley for business firms to clean up their buildings for the Tercentenary celebration this year, the large building of the New England Mutual Life Insurance Co. on Milk st., from Congress to Pearl sts., is being sandblasted.

FIRE FIGHTING HIS HOBBY

A walking encyclopedia of fire alarm numbers is Johnny O'Meara, 19, of 3 Melrose st., South End, Postal Telegraph messenger boy.

No catalogue of "sparks" of Greater Boston would be complete without Johnny, who follows every fire, knows most of the fire department officers and many of the men by their first names, and has that irresistible urge to frequent fire stations, which is characteristic of the "spark" fraternity.

You can't trip him up on any box number. He knows the running card as well as any smoke-eater, and also knows what apparatus must respond to each alarm, what station is turned out by second alarms, and what the firemen are up against in different types of fires.

When there's a fire of any proportion in the city, Johnny can be found there, and when the firemen return after a stiff battle, he pops up at one station or another to praise their work, help tend to their cuts and bruises and get hot coffee to refresh them.

The thrill of fire-fighting must have been born in him, he says, for he cannot account for it in any other way.

Mayor Will Inspect Morgan Memorial

Mayor Curley was invited to inspect Morgan Memorial tomorrow, the birthday of Henry Morgan, founder. Mrs. Curtis Guild will also a guest. Open house will prevail in the forenoon. The annual meeting will be held at noon, followed by a social hour and luncheon served by the Women's Auxiliary.

Exercises in the children's auditorium will be held in the afternoon, the evening Arthur J. Davis, superintendent of the state branch of the Anti-Saloon League, will speak.

LABOR LEADERS HALT CLOAK STRIKE

Union Officials Here Ban Montreal Walkout Fearing Red Influences

Labor leaders now in Boston to negotiate a new contract for the International Ladies' Garment Workers' union of the A. F. of L, sent an order to Montreal to stop a strike of 2000 cloakmakers scheduled to begin today.

It was feared such action would be construed as a movement in sympathy with the unemployment demonstrations of the communists.

The "strike cancellation" order was issued by Benjamin Schlesinger, president of the international union, and David Dubinsky, general secretary-treasurer.

In an effort to avert a Boston strike of 4000 members, representatives of the union conferred with representatives of the reorganized Association of Dress Manufacturers of Boston at the Hotel Statler and with representatives of the dress contractors of this city.

President Schlesinger and Dubinsky declared it had been agreed to hold a final conference Saturday to determine whether an amicable agreement can be reached.

Coolidges on Way Home

NO OPPOSITION TO BRIDGE BILL

Legislators, city officials and others appeared before the House committee on rules in favor of admission of Mayor Curley's bill for an amendment to the law to give Boston the choice to build either a bridge or a traffic tunnel between Boston proper and East Boston. There was no opposition.

As to the present status of the tunnel, Frederick H. Fay of the Boston City Planning Board, said he understood the transit department is going ahead on the plans for a tunnel until the question of a bridge or no bridge is determined, in order that there may be no delay.

These plans and specifications will take 18 months to prepare, he continued, while the question of a license for a bridge can be settled within five minutes.

Henry I. Harriman, president of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, pointed out that the bill is not mandatory, but optional and gives the city an opportunity to get the money for its money. After study the speaker said, it has been found that the cost of a four-lane bridge, with a 40-foot sidewalk, would be $16,000,000, against the same amount of money for a twelve lane tunnel.

Mayor of Jalisco Reported Slain

Mexico City, March 6 (AP)—Guadalajara dispatches to La Prensa say that Abraham Leon, mayor of the town of Jesus Maria in the State of Jalisco, was assassinated by a rebellious element which he has been trying to eliminate. The assassins escaped.

On Death Roll

In 1925, while a deputy in the Reichstag, he went to Hanover and persuaded Field Marshal Paul von Hindenburg to accept candidacy for the presidency.

Two years ago he declined renomination for the Reichstag in a bitter letter to the Nationalist Party, in which he opined the party was making too many compromises.

From the time he was 22 until he broke with the Kaiser in 1916, Von Tirpitz's life was one of most intimate association with the navy. In 1897 he became secretary of state for the imperial navy, holding the post until his quarrel with Wilhelm.

He and Wilhelm were said to have clashed finally on the very submarine warfare which afterward led the United States into the war and doubtless contributed greatly to Germany's eventual defeat. Wilhelm was for less vigorous submarine offensive than von Tirpitz.

He was father of two sons and two daughters, born of his happy marriage with Maria Lipke.

At the peak of his career he is said to have known the name, history, and fighting capacity of every warship in the world. He was one of the best fencers and sharpshooters in the Imperial service.

SHOOTS ACID IN EYES OF VICTIM

A new type of holdup man squirting acid from a toy revolver into the eyes of his victim, made his appearance in the West End today.

He entered the pawnshop of Emil Goldberg, 68 Green st., and holding out what appeared to be a regular revolver, asked: "How much will you give me on that?"

Goldberg leaned forward to examine the weapon, and the man pulled the trigger, sending a thin stream of acid into the eyes of the pawnbroker.

Bury Man Who Died in Subway Today

The funeral of William D. Graves, who died suddenly in a Park st. subway car last Monday, will be held at Evans Mills, N. Y., Graves for many years was a flour merchant in Boston, with offices in Milk st. He was a member of the Grain and Flour Exchange. Relatives at Watertown, N. Y., claimed the body after it was identified by friends in Boston.

FRENCH ENVOYS OFF AGAIN FOR NAVY PARLEY

Tardieu, New Idol of Paris, Remains Because of Heavy Floods; U. S. for Huge Cut

M. Tardieu, conscious of the gravity of the floods in central and southwestern France, postponed his own return to London so he could visit the devastated area tomorrow. He probably will not get to the naval conference until Tuesday or Wednesday.

The ovation to M. Tardieu at the station was typical of the popularity he has come to have with the Parisian populace. Freight-handlers and truck drivers at North Station, known as a Communist stronghold, gathered to meet him, shouting, "Long live Tardieu! Well done!"

The phrase referred to his victory in the Chamber, when he emerged from a heated parliamentary battle with a vote of confidence granted by a majority of 53.

Stimson Statement Deadens Hope for Real Naval Cut

Washington, March 6 (INS)—Almost the last flickering hope that the naval conference can accomplish any substantial reduction in the world's actual fighting fleets faded out here today upon receipt of Secretary of State Stimson's announcement in London concerning the prospects of the gathering.

The burden of Secretary Stimson's statement was that if France can be persuaded—and it is a big "if"—to go along with the Anglo-American agreement framed by President Hoover and Premier MacDonald last October, it will be possible to reduce the gross tonnage of the American navy by some 200,000 tons.

But on analysis, it is disclosed that the tonnage to be scrapped is really obsolete and decommissioned craft, either destined for the junkheap by the treaties of 1922 or tied up and rusting at docks where while the tonnage would be scrapped, the actual fighting fleet would not be affected.

The American navy now has ready and waiting a serious deficiency in the Atlantic and Pacific coasts more than 100,000 tons of war-built destroyers and cruisers, but not the men to man them, nor the money to operate them. The unofficial figures which accompanied the Stimson announcement noted, incidentally, a reduction of some 150,000 tons in this class of vessels.

Parley, Optimistic, All Set to Get to Work Tomorrow

London, March 6 (AP)—The naval conference will resume activities tomorrow. The new French delegation is due in London tonight, and Prime Minister MacDonald will get in touch with Aristide Briand and his fellow-delegates on their arrival.

Meetings have been arranged tomorrow between the heads of the delegations, and the "first committee" which succeeds it.

Meanwhile there is great revival of optimism over the return of a French delegation, coupled with the statement by Henry Stimson, United States Secretary of State, and a decrease in the British naval estimates today, renewed hopes of effective accomplishment by the conference.

MEDFORD MAN APPEALS FOR PROTECTION

Two U. S. Agents and Deputy Marshals Assigned to the Case

Reporting that a death threat had been made to him, John Sanjean of Medford, a key witness in the federal probe of the "alien ring," today appealed to U. S. authorities for protection.

Sanjean said he was called to the telephone at his Allen ct. home in Medford last night.

"You better lay off this investigation or you'll be bumped off," he was told.

Sanjean was told that "they," whom he took to mean the "alien ring," were fully aware that Sanjean knew much damaging information which he must not be allowed to tell.

The Medford man heard the slamming of the receiver and tried to locate the source of the call. It apparently was from a coin booth.

Sanjean could not recognize the voice. The threat caused him a sleepless night, he told authorities.

The first one to whom the man reported was Assistant U. S. Attorney John W. Schenck. He immediately assigned two agents of the department of justice, who mingled with the crowds and watched elevators.

Deputy U. S. Marshal Ralph Gray was also informed, and assigned Deputies William Hubbard and James Mahan on the case.

Sanjean is a recognized authority on New England immigration and naturalization problems. He has written several books on the subject, and is a former chairman of the naturalization commission of Medford.

Sanjean declared he would not be "bluffed" by this threat and would go ahead with his testimony later in the day.

At noon today, Sanjean had not been called before the grand jury as other matters were still pending.

New Commissioner at Scene of So. End Fire Disaster Where 3 Died and Scores Were Rescued

Edward A. McLaughlin Daniel Sennott

Boston's new fire commissioner was early on the scene at the Hotel Clover apartment house blaze Shawmut ave. and Upton st., South End, and is shown here with Chief Sennott watching the battle of their men to save the building and rescue the tenants.

LOSES $125 IN LEGACY GAME

Mrs. Verde Newell, 33, of Malden ave., Malden, told police of that city how a young confidence man had victimized her of $125 under pretense of bearing a legacy of $500 for her father, Charles K. Smith, of Cherry st., from his brother in Springfield.

While visiting her mother at the Cherry st. address, she told police, a well-dressed and rapid-speaking young man appeared at the house, stating that he had gone "to a lot of trouble to locate the family," since he bore news of a $500 inheritance from a brother of Smith. He demanded a bond of $100 before delivering the legacy, and not having the money in the house, Mrs. Newell offered to go to the Malden Savings Bank with him.

Mrs. Newell stated that while on the way to the bank the confidence man offered to get her husband, who has not been working steadily, a job with the Central Trust Co. of Cambridge. He could "fix it," he said, for the sum of $25.

When the pair reached the bank, the daughter-in-law of the man receiving the "legacy" withdrew $125 from the bank. The "sharper" returned her a check for $500 on the Springfield Safe Deposit & Trust Co., signed by one James Peters, and a receipt for the $125, signed James Worth, of Commonwealth ave., Boston.

When Smith returned home, his wife and daughter told him of his good fortune, only to be halted by his statement that he had no brother in Springfield.

Gypsies 'Hypnotize' and Rob Bank Man

East Orange, N. J., March 6 (AP)—Howard Wyre, bank teller, believes he was hypnotized by two gypsy women. Changing 20 dimes into dollar bills for them he consented to have his future looked into. He was told to put his hand on a large sum of money. A gypsy placed a handkerchief over his hand, muttering. Dazed, Wyre says, he later found that the gypsies and $1000 had vanished. He has caused an arrest.

New Fire Head Gets Baptism at Fatal Blaze in Hotel

He was summoned from home with the third alarm and arrived on the scene wearing a derby hat and raincoat and civilian footwear.

Rubber boots were offered him but he did not enter the burning building. He remained until the fire was over; then visited Engineman Henry Kane, who was taken to City Hospital with an injured hand.

ART TREASURES AUCTIONED

London, March 6—Amid dramatic silence, broken only by the staccato voice of the auctioneer, the Marquis of Lansdowne witnessed the sale at Lansdowne House of his historic collection of ancient Greek and Roman marble statues for a total amount of approximately $350,000.

The chief treasure of the collection, a superb statue in pentelic marble, six feet, six inches high, entitled "The Wounded Amazon," was sold to an American agent for $155,000.

It was variously rumored that this treasure had been obtained for an American millionaire and for the Metropolitan Museum in New York, though it was more generally believed that it had been acquired for the Metropolitan.

Practically all of the prizes went to American buyers, although the English had shown much interest in the auction. Princess Mary came to see the collection. Among the notables present at the sale today were the Duchess of Devonshire, Lord and Lady Asher, Lord Cavendish and Sir Arthur Peel.

Prices varied widely, depending on the amount of restoration to which the statue had been subjected.

Mayor Visits Fire Ruins, Deplores Laxity of Law

Mayor Curley reached the scene of the Clover Hotel fire soon after it was extinguished, going directly from his home in Jamaicaway.

With Dist. Chief Thomas Downey he went through the ruins. Later he issued a statement expressing his sorrow and called attention to a letter he sent yesterday to the Boston Board of Fire Underwriters asking that that body support a law to compel fire sprinklers in buildings like that destroyed and also establish an independent arson squad.

MRS. WHITMAN HAS BAD TURN

Mrs. Ida Battles Whitman, 39, who tried suicide by shooting when Patrolman Robert L. Spredby of the Roxbury Crossing station ordered her from his apartment at 1295 Commonwealth ave., Thursday, was reported in a serious condition at St. Elizabeth's hospital, Brighton.

Film Men Fined for Income Tax Shortage

Los Angeles, March 6 (AP)—Sam Taylor, film director, and Ben Baird actor and husband of Ruth Roland, actress, were fined $100 and $250 respectively in federal court after pleading guilty to charges of failing to file their entire income tax levies for 1927.

SUPPORT COPS; TWO NABBED AS FOR DAY OFF DRUG THIEVES

Amesbury, March 6—The unsuccessful battle of a few citizens in the recent town meeting to curtail the expenses of the police department, and even has pay officers on their days off has led friends of the officers to point to the system used in other Massachusetts cities and towns.

In Haverhill and nearly all other cities and towns of any size that have regularly employed officers they are allowed one day off in every eight with full weekly pay. Despite some opposition, the sum of $21,833 as recommended as the police department appropriation by the town finance committee was voted by a large majority.

Other appropriations were For schools, $133,873; public welfare,

Springfield, March 6 (AP)—A man and woman having a large quantity of narcotics in their possession were arrested here today by local detectives on charges of larceny of narcotics. A charge of impersonating a federal officer was also placed against the man after he admitted he had stolen a customs officer's badge.

The pair were booked as Joseph Colangelo, 32, and Dorothy Colangelo, 23, and gave as their address in Bly st., Rochester, N. Y.

They told police the man would enter a drug store with but one man in charge and appear to need medical attention. When the clerk was in the back room the woman would enter and want service either at the soda or cosmetic counter. While she was being waited on the man would rifle the back room of whatever narcotics were available. They are said to have worked this game on six drug stores here.

British Disarm Rum Boat Hunters

Miami, Fla., March 6—British authorities at Bimini disarmed seven United States border patrol officers and a civilian employe, who landed there in a seaplane to search for eight rum-running boats stolen from the Miami storage base of the customs service.

The British commissioner on the island has been requested to seize three boats located on the island coast for return to the United States, they said.

Holyoke Man Dead in Quebec

Montreal, Que., March 6 (INS)—A man identified by tattooing on his arm as Arthur Mireault of Holyoke, Mass., was dead here today. He was found unconscious on a street corner Sunday night. An examination failed to reveal the cause of death.

Mayor Curley Inspects 'Death Trap' Apartment House Fire Ruins

Lucky Lappas, 6 years old, in City Hospital bed after being rescued from the fire in Hotel Clover apartment house at Shawmut ave. and Upton st. This boy, his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Lappas, and three other children were unconscious, overcome by smoke in their home on the fifth floor of the building when firemen reached them and carried them down ladders to the street.

Mayor James M. Curley

Mayor Curley was at the scene of the South End fire disaster soon after the flames were under control and made an investigation in company with District Chief Downey. The mayor paid particular attention to a stairway that had been burned away, [illegible] escape from the upper floors. Deploring the loss of life he called attention [illegible] and for sprinklers and other safeguards in such buildings.

CLEAR EDITORS IN CONTEMPT OF COURT

Cleveland, March 6. (AP)—Convictions of contempt of court against Louis B. Seltzer, editor, and Carlton K. Matson, editorial writer, of the Cleveland Press, were overruled today by the Cuyahoga County Appellate Court.

The editors had been convicted about a year ago by Common Pleas Judge Frederick P. Walther, who sentenced them to 30 days in jail and fines of $500.

Walther's action against Seltzer and Matson was taken after an editorial appeared in the Press, criticizing the judge for issuing an injunction restraining Sheriff E. J. Hanratty from stopping a betting method at a race track.

Newton D. Baker, who represented the editors in the appeal, told the Appellate Court the editorial did not constitute contempt inasmuch it it appeared when the case was no longer pending. Baker said Judge Walther used "bad taste" in acting as both trial judge and plaintiff against Seltzer and Matson.

The appellate court decision said:

"We live in an age of pitiless publicity where the freedom of the press and freedom of speech are paramount issues and newspapers should have the right to print what they please, always guiding themselves by law. A free people must have a free press and a newspaper should have the right to speak freely its views."

The decision ordered that the $500 fines and the jail sentences be not paid or served.

Winthrop Man Held on Liquor Charge

Taunton, March 6 (AP)—Harry Rose, 23, alias Abe Joseph, of Winthrop, arrested yesterday in Everett on a default warrant, was fined $200 in district court here today on a charge of illegal transportation of liquor. He was given a suspended sentence of two months in the House of Correction and placed on probation for a year.

In addition, he was fined $10 for driving without a license. He appealed and bail was set at $400.

BEAUTY LEAPS TO HER DEATH

New York, March 6 (AP)—Christine Norman, whose portrait was painted by Neysa McMein as one of the 12 most beautiful women in the United States, committed suicide early today by jumping from a window on the 20th floor of a hotel.

Miss Norman was a member of the original "Peg o' My Heart" company and was the estranged wife of Enos S. Booth.

A note left to the hotel management requested the manager to notify "Mrs. Frank Carstarphen, also notify my attorney, Arthur Garfield Hayes and the Equitable Trust Company." Six sealed letters, one of which was addressed to Booth, were found in the room.

Booth told police he had talked to her on the telephone recently and she appeared in good spirits.

MRS. LOWELL'S ILLNESS GRAVE

Mrs. Anna Parker Lowell, wife of President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard University, is critically ill at her home, 17 Quincy st., Cambridge, suffering from a severe throat infection which has afflicted her for more than a year.

Although she has suffered for several years with a malady that was not diagnosed until a year ago, Mrs. Lowell has carried on with her social and college activities with a fortitude that has aroused the admiration of her friends.

She suffered a bad spell last May, but after a period of rest and treatment, was able to take part in the 1929 commencement exercises and to carry on her usual work.

In the past few weeks, however, she has been losing ground despite the administrations of a corps of nationally known specialists.

Liverpool to Have Own 'Grover Whalen'

Liverpool, March 6 (INS)—Taking a tip from New York city, Liverpool has decided to have a "Grover Whalen" all its own.

Shipping companies, co-operating with municipal officials, have decided to choose a smiling, well-dressed resident to act as head of a welcoming delegation for distinguished guests arriving at this port.

Giant Lobster With a 42-Inch Stretch Comes to Hub

Another elephantine lobster was brought to the fish pier today, this time in the holds of the schooner Shamrock.

The huge crustacean was caught by Wallace Hubbard, a member of the crew, while fishing on Browns ledge. It has a stretch of 42½ inches.

Report Salem Girl on Hunger Strike

Easton, Penn., March 6—Josephine Kacsor, 20-year-old Salem, Mass., girl, organizer for the American Federation of Full-Fashioned Hosiery Workers and jailed for failure to pay court costs imposed in Northampton County as a result of a strike disturbance, has gone on a hunger strike, two other girls stated.

ONE ARREST IN GARMENT WAR

With only one arrest made today in the garment manufacturing district, seven pickets taken into custody previously were arraigned in municipal court and their cases continued.

Today's arrest, made when heavy details of police were guarding the district in preparation for Communist demonstrations, was that of Sadie Ginsberg, 24, of Blue Hill ave., Roxbury, charged with creating a disturbance.

Alexander Karosky, Jennie Hyde, Aurora Morello and Sadie Ginsberg were arraigned before Judge Boisier, charged with disturbing the peace. Their counsel, George Alpert, asked a continuance and the cases were put over to March 12.

Annie Tatelbaum, Max Kramer and Mark Whittier appeared on charges of participating in an affray, and they were also held for a hearing on March 12.

London Has Roving Speakeasies; Girls Lure Customers

London, March 6—Believe it or not, there are speakeasies in London. They are mobile, too, and by the time the police reach a "speak's" last station the speakeasy has moved on.

Beautiful girls ask pedestrians: "Would you like a drink?"

Since the speakeasies work only after the legal closing hour of liquor houses, the gentleman asked usually would like that drink.

He accompanies the girl to "the club," dances with her, orders drinks. She disappears, only to reappear later with another victim. And so on, into the night.

LEFT ALL ALONE WHEN WAR TOOK HER SON

Mothers were the "second line of defense" in the World War, as in all wars. Now the government is going to send to France, that they may view the last resting place of their hero sons, the Gold Star mothers of America, those mothers whose sons made the supreme sacrifice. Today the Boston Evening American presents the ninth in a series of biographical sketches of heroes who gave their lives in the war—sketches made by the Gold Star mothers or widows themselves.

That is the situation in which this Gold Star mother, Mrs. Anna McCart of 11 Atwood sq., Jamaica Plain, finds herself.

She made the sacrifice of her only son, the last of his line. He need not have enlisted, as he was her sole support, but he was a youthful patriot.

This mother lives entirely alone in her comfortable little apartment, which is made possible by the war insurance which the boy took out for his mother.

"I know it's hard to be alone," she confided, "but my memories are happy ones of my boy. He was good to me and he wasn't afraid to serve his country."

Joseph McCart, not quite 26, gave up his job as a milkman and joined up with the medical corps of the 71st Field Artillery.

Ordinarily services in this branch was less risky than the infantry, but McCart did not find this true —not that he had this in mind when enlisting. He had always wanted to learn something about medicine, his mother explained.

In the army only eight months, the young man became ill with pneumonia, contracted while he was exposed to bitterly cold weather.

Joseph really met his death in the course of duty, as he had been caring for wounded soldiers at the time he became ill.

"My boy was always kind to people," said the mother, "and it would have been just like him to sacrifice himself to help a buddy."

The boy was well known and liked in his neighborhood. There is a square named for him, not far from the little parochial school where he studied.

"I'd like to go to France," said the Gold Star mother," but I don't know if I'll feel like it when our State finally goes over."

Tomorrow the Boston Evening American will tell the story of a well known Y. D. club worker, Mrs. Katherine H. Sheehan of Dorchester, who lost two sons in the war. News of the second death came after the Armistice, just as Christmas home-coming plans were being made.

MEXICO PUT ON BUSINESS BASIS

By CORNELIUS VANDERBILT, Jr.

Copyright, 1930, by Universal Service, Inc.

Mexico City, March 6—Mexico, for perhaps the first time in her history, is to be placed upon a business administration platform.

Security for all foreign investments will be given by the government. A gigantic tourist business is to be encouraged, and the trained youths of foreign lands, with capital to invest in a nation in the making, will be welcomed here.

That, briefly, is the gist of an hour and a half's conversation with Pascual Ortiz Rubio, president of the united Mexican states, after he left his sickbed for the first time since he was shot, a month ago.

"The world today is working on a business basis," President Ortiz Rubio continued. "If the trained youths of other nations, with their own or foreign capital, could but realize the advantages this country offers, I am certain they would be more than willing to come here.

Retrial for Dr. Hoban

Lowell, March 6—According to information received here, Dist. Atty. Robert T. Bushnell plans to have the case of Dr. James J. Hoban retried in the Middlesex County Superior Criminal Court in Cambridge late this month or early in April.

PUBLIC FUNERAL FOR HADLEY

New Haven, Ct., March 6 (INS) —Yale and New Haven today mourned as steps were being taken to bring home from Japan the body of Dr. Arthur Twining Hadley, emeritus president of Yale University, who died of pneumonia in Kobe after an illness of two days.

A great public funeral is being planned for Dr. Hadley, long considered New Haven's foremost citizen. The services will take place about April 7 in Battel Chapel, Yale, and burial will take place in the Yale presidents' plot in Grove Street Cemetery.

Dr. Hadley's wife was with him when he died. They had left New Haven on December 2, last, for a world tour. Their daughter, Mrs. Nicholas Moseley, lives here. Their two sons, Morris Hadley and Hamilton Hadley, are in professions in New York.

Nelson Morris' Alimony Bill Cut

Paris, March 6 (INS)—Nelson Morris, Chicago packing millionaire, today won a victory in his divorce battle with the former Mlle. Jane Aubert, Paris music hall star. The Seine court decided that the $1000 monthly alimony he has been paying to Mlle. Aubert is excessive, and ordered it reduced to $200.

FINGERTIP CLUE IN MAINE PLOT TO KILL 7

Madison, Me., March 6—Working from a thumbprint clue, and aided by an expert, Sheriff Elton L. Markham of Skowhegan expects soon to make an arrest in the poison plot, in which deadly powders were mailed in five Madison residents. A maniac is believed to have been responsible.

The powders were accompanied by instructions to take them as medicine, and the names of the doctors were signed. All were in the same hand, sheriff Markham said today, and the thumbprint was found on one packet.

Envelopes addressed to Mrs. Annie Grover, Viola Wellington, Edward Dennis and Margaret Gillis were found by a baggage master near the railroad station, apparently having been lost before being mailed.

Investigation showed that Rose Snell had received a similar envelope. He turned it over to Dr. W G. Sawyer, whose name was affixed and the doctor told the police.

Two Madison pharmacists received prescriptions for poison powders to be mailed to Fred Gray, a selectman, and Miss Mabel Robinson, a nurse, but neither was filled because the amounts of drugs called for were an overdose. They notified the police.

Presbyterians Plan for Foundation

Philadelphia, March 6 (AP)—Plans for a Presbyterian foundation with 100 prominent Presbyterians throughout the country as its members were approved by the general council of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A. at a meeting here today.

The foundation would hold and administer all contributions and legacies and would establish and aid in the maintenance of hospitals, schools, churches and any other institutions deemed worthy.

Prince of Wales Now Convalescent

London, March 6 (AP)—Sir Donald Ross, director-in-chief of the Ross Institute, of which the Prince of Wales is a patron, today received from Nairobi the following telegram bearing the signature of the prince's equerry.

"His royal highness is now convalescent and the doctors state complete recovery may be expected at the end of this week. His royal highness appreciates the directors' kind telegram."

Unveil Statue of Mrs. Pankhurst

London, March 6 (AP)—A statue of Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, who led the movement for the enfranchisement of women in Great Britain, was unveiled in Victoria Tower Gardens, Westminster, today in the presence of many of the leading fighters in the suffrage cause.

Many politici| leaders were present and Stanley Baldwin, the former premier, performed the unveiling ceremony.

Why U. S. Is Against Entry Into League

By RICHARD W. CHILD, Former Ambassador to Italy and Noted Author.

The reasons why the people of the United States vetoed entry into the League of Nations on a non-partisan basis were not complex.

They were these:

One—Ours is a detached position. Argus as you like, we have neither the old problems nor the boundaries of other large powers. Our position is not only detached, but it is useful to the peace of the world, because, while we are free agents and not handcuffed to a lot of political agreements to make war, we can throw our influence at any right time on any right side.

Two—It is as absurd for us to join any United States of Europe as a minority member as it would be for a foreign state to join our United States and submit to settlements of all differences by our Supreme Court.

Three—Our political structure—and the United States Senate—which help to guarantee that our foreign policy shall be put out on the table and decided by public opinion, makes it impossible for us to promise to work into any European political machine.

Four—If we did so we would be pulled this way and hauled that way in the quarrels of others—foolish position in any case and all the more foolish when our population represents many foreign elements which might have such leanings about foreign contentions as to bring discord to us here at home.

MUST SPEND MORE.

A good example of the way in which we would be pulled and hauled is the position of our delegation at the present conference in London. We had hoped the conference would bring about a reduction in world armament; it now appears to have put us in a place where we have lost power to obtain a doctrine of freedom of the seas, but must spend more, not less, on our navy! There, in London, if we please the French we offend the Italians; if we please the English we offend the French; if we please someone else we offend the Japanese.

The only card we have to play is our ability to have a big navy if we want one. All the rest of our cards are words and a minority part in the game of inflated publicity.

But our troubles do not stop there.

Not a bit of it! We wanted a reduction of navies. What we have gotten into is a network of proposals that we should join in security pacts or promises ahead of time to go into "future consultations" where, as in the league, we would be in a minority. Again we are asked to promise to "sit in at a little tiny game at the club" on telephone call.

"PROMISES TO MA E WAR."

It is no sign of ill-will toward anyone of these European clubfellows which makes us say that we have no taste for the little game of security pacts and consultations to determine in case of a row who has been the aggressor.

"Security pacts" are promises to make war.

"Consultations" are promises to come to games of politics in which we have no interest.

It is harder to tell who is the "aggressor" in a distant field than to say whether the stars tonight will be odd or even!

All this tiptoeing around the ladies' entrance to the League of Nations or any new speakeasy on the road to the back door will not be approved by the American people.

We had the power to put on a great deal of pressure in favor of disarmament and peace. We have tattered away a great deal of it and allowed others to put us in a diplomatic hole where it can be said sincerely that the United States refuses membership in the League of Nations and refuses to join security pacts and consultations which involve commitments on European policies. We are concerned mainly for our own security.

We have had prosperity and security throughout our existence as a nation by minding our own business. Refusing to join entangling alliances is our historic policy amply proved by experience.

Once again we refuse.

King Holds Second Investiture of Year

GANDHI DARES BRITISH TO ARREST HIM

Ahmadabad, India, March 6 (AP)—The ultimatum of Mahatma Gandhi to the British crown asking for Indian national independence and threatening a campaign of intensive civil disobedience, was made public today.

Gandhi, venerable Indian nationalist, after a vehement attack on British rule in India, which he says "has impoverished the dumb millions," says: "On bended knees I ask you ponder this phenomenon."

The ultimatum is addressed to Viceroy Lord Irwin, and begins:

"My Dear Friend—Before embarking upon civil disobedience and taking risks which I have dreaded all these years, I would fain approach you and find a way out. My personal faith is absolutely clear. I hold British rule to be a curse, but I do not intend to harm a single Englishman or any legitimate interest he may have in India.

"The party of violence is gaining ground. Having an unquestioning, immovable faith in the efficacy of non-violence it would be sinful on my part to wait longer. This non-violence will be expressed through civil disobedience.

"If you cannot deal with these evils, and if my letter does not appeal to your heart, I shall, March 11, proceed with such measures as I can take for disregarding the salt tax, which is most iniquitous from the poor man's viewpoint.

"It is open to you to frustrate my design by arresting me, but I hope there will be tens of thousands ready to take up the work after me."

CALL WILSON IN GARRETT PROBE

ance policy, who has been sought for several days, arrived at the State House.

He was accompanied by a young son and refused to discuss his presence there other than to admit he had been sent for.

The attorney-general made it clear that income tax returns will not be used in the Garrett investigation.

INCOME TAX PROBE

"My attention has been called to a statement appearing in one of the morning newspapers," he said, "that I have requested Mr. Henry F. Long, commissioner of corporations and taxation, and Mr. Tarr, U. S. district attorney, to supply me with information regarding state and federal income tax returns filed by Oliver B. Garrett.

"I have at no time made such a request or demand and have not been furnished by either with such information. Both the federal and state statutes provide such returns are confidential and privileged and impose heavy penalties upon any official who discloses such records."

It is understood Atty.-Gen. Warner is anxious to question the police commissioner concerning testimony obtained in the first two sessions.

He is said to be particularly interested in a discrepancy regarding Garrett's absence from duty following the automobile accident Aug. 2, 1927, on which the former liquor raider based his request for retirement.

When he appeared before the rules committee of the Legislature, Commissioner Wilson said Garrett had been absent from duty for 81 days as a result of injuries received in the accident.

Police records kept by Capt. George W. Patterson, Garrett's superior officer, which were read into the record at the attorney-general's probe, failed to disclose such an absence for the former raider.

It is understood the commissioner will also be questioned regarding his talk with Dr. Frederick J. Bailey, deputy city health commissioner, as a result of which Bailey amended his report on Garrett.

Dr. Bailey testified at the hearing that his original report on which Garrett's retirement with pension was based, contained no mention of mental irresponsibility.

ADDED PARAGRAPH

After talking with Commissioner Wilson however, he added a paragraph, he said, which stated that Garrett was mentally irresponsible and unfitted to be a police officer.

Two other physicians testified that in their examinations of Garrett after the accident, they found him to be suffering from no serious injuries or ailments.

Merchant Fined $100 for Running Lottery

Fitchburg, March 6 (AP)—Thomas P. McMurray, variety store owner, today pleaded guilty in district court to promoting a lottery. He was fined $100.

His arrest followed a raid on the store in which police seized 2000 tickets of the so-called treasury balance lottery.

Congressman Dies of Heart Attack

Washington, March 6—Representative James P. Glynn, 63, of Connecticut, dropped dead in the Union Station today shortly after alighting from a train.

Police said they were told a heart attack was the cause of death and that Representative Glynn was returning to Washington from his home in Winsted, Conn.

SOLONS AT ODDS ON ABOLITION OF CROSSINGS

Disagreement concerning the financial methods that should be employed in abolishing grade crossings developed before the legislative committee on railroads at a hearing on the report of the special grade crossing commission. It was agreed that the crossings should be abolished speedily.

The commission recommended that the authority to order the abolition be lodged with the department of public works and the recommendation received general approval.

Several speakers contended that the program would be expedited if the recommendation carried a provision allowing the railroads to float bond issues on State credit.

This suggestion was opposed by Senator Arthur W. Hollis and Frank E. Lyman of the public works department, who held that the State should continue its "pay-as-you-go" policy and contribute its share toward the abolition from the annual highway fund budget.

Senator Robert E. Higney and Representative John Higgins, dissenting members of the grade crossing commission, favored the bond issue. Mr. Lyman told the committee that Governor Allen is opposed to a bond issue or other financial aid to the railroads.

Certain crossings in Worcester, Winchester, Salem, Lowell and Taunton were brought into the discussion because of the imperative and speedy need for abolition. Henry C. Atwill, chairman of the department of public utilities, said that the allocation of costs should be divided on a 50-50 basis between the railroads and the taxpayers.

Masher's Request for Match Halts Girl's Suicide

New York, March 6—A "masher's" request for a match and the fight that followed, prevented Ethel Mygatt, 15, Corona, Queens, from leaping into New York bay clad in her stepfather's clothes.

The girl's plan was revealed when Michael Mulrooney was convicted of disorderly conduct in Tombs Court. Mulrooney tried to borrow a match from the girl. She, with maidenly modesty, accused him of being a masher and struck him.

The attractive high school girl was running away after leaving a note for her mother telling of her suicide intentions.

Reports Stabbing Husband

Frightened after having stabbed her husband in the shoulder with a bread knife, according to the police, Mrs. Florence Tompkins, 28, Magazine st., Cambridge, ran to the Central Sq. station and reported the affair.

HOOVER THINKS JOBLESS ERA IS NEAR END

Washington, March 6—President Hoover is confident the unemployment situation will be relieved by a revival of prosperity within the next 30 or 60 days, it was stated at the White House.

It was explained that general business conditions throughout the country have shown a marked improvement during the last two months and that within the next 30 days great construction projects will be in full swing and most of those seeking employment will be able to find it.

There is, it was pointed out, a program for development in all sections of the country, approximately $7,000,000,000 for this year, and reports during the first two months indicate even a larger sum may be spent. It was explained that it naturally required some time for the United States to recover from the depression of last fall, but that it may be definitely stated the trend is upward and that conditions will continue to show improvement from week to week.

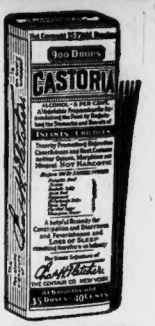
The upsets of Children



All children are subject to little upsets. They come at unexpected times. They seem twice as serious in the dead of night. But there's one form of comfort on which a mother can always rely; good old Castoria. This pure vegetable preparation can't harm the tiniest infant. Yet mild as it is, it soothes a restless, fretful baby like nothing else. Its quick relief soon sees the youngster comfortable once more, back to sleep. Even an attack of colic, or diarrhea, yields to the soothing influence of Castoria.

Keep Castoria in mind, and keep a bottle in the house—always. Give a few drops to any child whose tongue is coated, or whose breath is bad. Continue with Castoria until the child is grown! Every drugstore has Castoria; the genuine has Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the wrapper.

No more wiping... with this new blade of processed steel

TWENTY-EIGHT years ago Gillette changed the shaving habits of the world by creating a safety razor with double-edged replaceable blade—an improvement so far-reaching that it has maintained leadership for more than a quarter of a century without essential change.

Today Gillette offers another great contribution to man's shaving comfort—a New Gillette Blade and a New Gillette Razor (patents pending).

The New Gillette Blade can be used in your present Gillette Razor. But the New Gillette Razor has so many points of superiority that any man or woman who has tried it once will gladly discard the faithful instrument of the past.

Used together, the New Gillette Blade and the New Gillette Razor abolish forever the two unpleasant factors in shaving—"razor pull," and the tedious drying of razor parts. Imagine a shave so smooth and cool that you hardly feel the razor on your skin. Think of not having to take the razor apart for cleaning—merely rinse it off and shake it dry. These are only two of the advantages of the new razor and the new blade. Read the other advantages summed up under "Quick Facts."

Back of these great improvements lies a fascinating story of research.

Twenty-seven thousand men have been interviewed. Tens of thousands of used razors were examined. In these studies a discovery of far-reaching importance was made:

Cause of "razor pull" found

In almost every case when a man complains that his razor "pulls," an expert examination shows that the razor has been nicked.

Why should a little nick—even a microscopic nick—spoil your shave? Here is the reason:

The parts of a Gillette Razor are machined to a fine precision. The slightest dent at one of the corners causes an unequal tension on the blade, throwing it out of perfect alignment. The blade may even crack under the unequal tension. Perhaps you have had this happen for no apparent reason. Perhaps you have blamed the blade.

Gillette finds the answer

We could not keep men from dropping their razors. But we could offset the harmful effect. To do so required a change in both the razor and the blade. In the razor we reinforced all four corners of the cap with sturdy lugs made to withstand nearly any kind of abuse.

The blade was treated even more ingeniously. All four corners were cut out; when the cap and guard of the razor clamp together, the blade is not held at the corners. Even if you drop the New Gillette, you probably will not dent it. Even if you dent it, you do not, cannot spoil your shave.

New processed steel... Rust-resisting. Just rinse... shake dry

When you see the new blade, you'll notice immediately a different, finer finish... the result of a new process of treating the hard special steel.

How many tedious minutes you have had to waste in unscrewing your razor, washing it off, and carefully wiping it dry! How many towels have been cut! Now the nuisance of unscrewing your razor, washing it off, carefully wiping it dry—and risking a cut towel—all this is abolished forever; the new blade resists rust. A single twist of the fingers turns the guard at right angles. Then re-tighten. Hold the razor under hot running water. Shake thoroughly. Lay on the shelf. That's all.

Shaves closer in corners

The ends of the blade are square—the old blades were rounded. A square end is much easier and safer to handle with wet fingers... no fishing down the drain pipe for a slippery blade. But even more important, the ends of the blade are much more nearly flush with the ends of the razor cap and guard... much easier now to reach those tough little corners around the mouth, the ears, the nose.

Notice the longer, bent-back teeth

You'll see, too, that the teeth of the New Gillette are a bit longer—rounded a little farther back.

A little improvement? Yes. But notice how smoothly the new razor slides over your skin. A shave so perfect that not a sign of a whisker remains. Yet so comfortable that you have hardly felt the razor.

The old posts that stuck through the blade and so often stubbed the edges are gone too.

Blade edge is clear but protected

Still another improvement. The guard of the New Gillette has the famous channel beneath the blade edge. This channel allows the blade to meet the beard full and clear, yet with perfect safety. Until now this feature has been available only in Gillette Razors selling at $5.00 to $75.00.

And the price is only $1.00

The New Gillette Razor, with all its improvements, is now offered to you, 24K. gold-plated and packed in a neat case, with one new blade, for only $1.00. And the new blades of steel processed to resist rust, come to you at the old price... $1.00 for ten.

To men who want the greatest bargain in shaving comfort that $1.00 has ever bought, we say, see your dealer today!

REDS,' FOILED IN COMMON OUTBREAK, MARCH ON STATE HOUSE

POLICE SEIZE LEADERS IN BATTLE

during the arrest of Jackson Wales.

The big crowd of spectators, surrounding the group of radicals, were heckling the Communist speakers when a fight started, and police plunged into the midst of the throng and dragged out Wales, who was alleged to have struck John Kenney of Broadway, South Boston.

Patrolman Daniel A. Phillips, who made the arrest, marched to Station 4, Lagrange st., with his prisoner surrounded by six other policemen and followed by a large part of the crowd, which by this time numbered between 3500 and 4000 persons.

At this time the riot call was sent to station 4 from an undetermined source, and it was flashed to headquarters and then to stations 2 and 3 on Milk and Joy sts., whence 25 uniformed policemen rushed to the Common to augment the 30 already there.

Soon after Sergt. Thomas McTiernan at Lagrange st. station received a telephone call informing him that the crowd was to rush the State House. He notified headquarters, and this resulted in the dispatching of reserves to that point, ready for the outbreak that followed.

MARCH ON STATE HOUSE

With Leo Conrad, John Herberts, Jack McCarthy and Roy Stevens, leaders and organizers of radical organisations, in the van, according to the police, followed by girls carrying placards, the march to the State House began.

Extra precautions had been taken earlier a tthe State House, Commissioner of Public Safety Alfred F. Foote having two state policemen posted in the Governor's office and the capitol grounds fairly under surveillance of plain clothes men.

There was no march to the Common from the headquarters of the various radical organizations in Harrison ave., because Sergt. McNeely of Station 4 went to Ben Gold, head of the Trade Union Unity League, shortly before the hour set for the mass meeting and warned him that if any attempt were made to parade, or to carry placards through the streets, all in line would be arrested.

CHILDREN BEAR BANNERS

The "red" went to the Common in small groups, finding a large crowd of the curious awaiting them, together with battries of motion picture cameras, still cameras and the cordon of police.

Placards were given to 20 children to carry and they paraded around the Parkman bandstand with them. These placards read:

"Release Harry Canter, worker and fighter." (Canter was sentenced to jail for carrying a placard denouncing Governor Fuller as a murderer at the time of the Sacco-Vanzetti demonstrations.)

"Curley and Allen send the police to down the strikers." "Young Pioneers of America." "We want insurance against unemployment to be paid by the bosses."

PICKETING CONTINUES

John Herbert, of the Trade Union Unity League, in a speech from the bandstand, charged that the American Federation of Labor had failed to keep an agreement with the workers and was to be blamed for much of the unemployment.

Leo Grant, head of the Young Peoples' Communist League, declared nothing was being done by capital to relieve the situation.

Meanwhile picketing continued in Kneeland st. and Harrison ave., the garment strike zone, and as a precaution, there were 50 police in that vicinity.

The Worcester outburst came when 500 men who had gathered in various side streets near the center of the city, suddenly swarmed to the Common in the rear of City Hall.

FIVE ARE ARRESTED

Police rushed to the center of the crowd. The first man to mount a bench and start haranguing the throng was ordered down. He refused and was arrested. Two others, who defied the no-talk order, met the sam efate. Two more were arrested when they jeered the police as the first three were being led away.

City Hall was meanwhile under extra heavy guard. Violating a city ordinance was the charge placed against all five prisoners, who are Harry Gilman, 46, paperhanger; Peter Shjerf, 32, toolmaker; Egon Anderson, 25, painter; Moses Lerner, 32, bookkeeper, and Thomas H. Hailn, 19, truck driver.

Girl Leads "Red" Activities in Cleveland; Guard Is Ready

Cleveland, March 6 (INS)—Led by a 21-year-old girl, hundreds of Cleveland's jobless and Communist workers staged a fervent demonstration for "work or wages" in the downtown section today while 200 police stood by for an emergency call in case of a riot.

Mobilization of the demonstrators took place in the public square. As the Communist forces gathered strength, reports were circulated that the Ohio National Guard were being held in reserve for action.

Waterbury Police Rout Reds and Arrest Four

Waterbury, Ct., March 6 (AP)—Police, using their nightsticks freely, today broke up a Communist demonstration in front of the City Hall and arrested four persons, including a woman.

A crowd estimated at several thousand, which had gathered to witness the Communists' threat to "march on City Hall," was dispersed.

Miss Rose Ross, 19, who has been arrested four times for her Communistic activities here, was among those held. The others arrested were John Borgnis, 58; Harry Hersh, 19, and George Levesque, 21.

The City Hall was guarded by nearly 100 policemen. At a signal Miss Ross and Borgnis, the latter carrying an American flag, dashed across the street.

"Come on! Fight for your rights!" they shouted.

Police seized them and the two other men and then drove the crowd against an office building across the street.

Five Arrested as Reds March on the Stamford City Hall

Stamford, Ct., March 6 (AP)—Five alleged Communists were arrested here today as the result of demonstrations at the City Hall.

20 Seized in Clash of Pittsburgh "Reds"

Pittsburgh, March 6 (INS)—Twenty persons were arrested and rushe dto Central police station in police patrols and one man was injured when rioting broke out today as a Communist parade got under way here.

Mounted police charged a crowd of spectators who were slow to heed "keep moving" orders. Several spectators were felled by police clubs.

Three Radicals Arrested for New Britain Speeches

New Britain, Ct., March 6 (AP)—Police arrested three alleged Communists here today when they attempted to address a meeting for which a permit had been refused

Young to Sell U. S. Worsted Co. Property

Judge Cox in equity motion session of Superior Court today authorized B. Loring Young as receiver of the U. S. Worsted Corporation, to sell all the real estate and property of the company.

TEAR GAS HALTS RED MARCH ON WHITE HOUSE

Washington, March 6 (AP)—Police used tear gas today to disperse a gathering of "unemployment day" demonstrators in front of the White House.

Several persons were injured in a struggle with the police when Bert Lawrence, leader of the demonstrators, climbed to the top of the iron fence separating the White House grounds from Pennsylvania ave., and attempted to speak.

The police construed this attempt as a violation of President Hoover's instructions which said there was to be no interference so long as the demonstration confined itself to the street.

Two policemen, one in plain clothes, forced Lawrence from the fence back to the sidewalk.

A youth of about 18 years, wearing a flaming red sweater, grasped one of the police from behind and a general melee started.

The youth in red fell with the policeman in the pavement, and another policeman pulled a bomb from his pocket and released a charge of tear gas into the demonstrators.

They fled in all directions at once, but the close-packed group of spectators prevented their complete dispersal.

Six of the leaders in the fight were arrested immediately and escorted to a patrol wagon. The placards carried by the demonstrators were torn from their hands and trampled by the crowd.

Meantime a patrol wagon packed with police reserves arrived, hastening the dispersal of the crowd.

Throughout the demonstration the President remained at work in his temporary office in the State, War and Navy building, a hundred yards away. His ruling against trespass on park property precluded any demonstration in Executive ave., which separates this building from the White House grounds, or on the White House grounds. Both are a part of the city's park system.

Armored Cars Ready to Curb New York Rioters

New York, March 6—With the city bristling with nightsticks, riot guns and tea gas bombs in the hands of taut lines of bluecoats, the much-vaunted Communist unemployment demonstration began to let off steam today.

The first three arrests were two women and a youthful "Red" enthusiast distributing handbills which read: "Don't starve—fight!"

Meanwhile, crowds gathered at Union sq., where the main demonstration was scheduled. Behind police lines thrown around the square were armored cars with machine guns protruding. There were also police cars banked with tear bombs.

Firemen were assigned to fire hydrants ready to deliver the "water treatment" in case of rioting.

Boy, 13, Saves Three of Family From Death in Fire

Louis Dubrofkin, 13, saved the lives of two younger brothers and a baby sister at the Clover Hotel fire.

With escape by the usual exits cut off by flame, the cool headed youngster hoisted his brothers, Saul, 10, and Abe, 8, through a first floor window and dropped them to the street. Saul was slightly injured in the fall.

DRUGGISTS BACK PORTER BILLS

Universal Service

Washington, March 6—Legislation designed to strike a smashing blow at the dope traffic has received the support of the National Association of Retail Druggists.

The association, through Samuel H. Henry, of Chicago, secretary, officially endorsed the Porter bill to establish a separate narcotic's bureau and instructed its counsel, E. C. Brokmyer, to appear Friday before the House ways and means committee in support of the measure.

Due to a misunderstanding of the purpose of the bill, the association, in an editorial in its official magazine some weeks ago, had bitterly assailed the legislation, and called upon druggists all over the country to protest to Congress against its passage.

The American Medical Association, which also had attacked the bill, is likewise expected to withdraw its opposition.

Porter, tomorrow, will have a conference with a group from the association, but it has been indicated already that the association will designate a representative to testify at the hearings in behalf of the bill.

With the physicians and druggists in line, no major opposition remains so far as Representative Porter is aware.

Gun Toter

BOY VANISHES, HEAVILY ARMED

Arriving home from the movies, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rogers of Bridge st., North Weymouth, found their 15-year-old son, Avery, missing with his father's shot-gun, target revolver, ammunition for both guns, and two blankets.

Hours of searching by Weymouth police failed to reveal any trace of him and aid of police throughout New England was enlisted. His mother, on the verge of collapse from worry, believes he has plunged into the woods on a camping trip and may suffer from exposure. He is not believed to have any money.

A few weeks ago the boy was nearly drowned while trying out an ice boat which he made himself.

400 PERISH IN FRENCH FLOOD

Toulouse, France, March 6 (AP)

Straight across southern France from Beziers and Narbonne, almost to the mouth of the Garonne, flood waters today slowly receded, leaving behind them a spectacle o ruin and desolation that seldom has been equalled in French history.

The dead were estimated at more than 400, between ten and twelve thousand persons were homeless. Many of these had their entire possessions swept away.

Property damage ran to billions of francs. Hundreds of towns and villages have been ravaged and thousands of houses destroyed. Vineyards and farms have been ruined.

Hundreds of those driven from their homes today were marooned on the roofs of houses. The dead at Moissac was estimated at from 200 to 300. There were another hundred dead at Montauban. Little was known of the fate of inhabitants in outlying villages.

Workers "Strike" on a Job Started to Aid the Unemployed

Leominster, Mar. 6 (AP)—The well known Biblical parable concerning the workmen in the vineyard was quoted here today when the city found itself confronted with what appeared to be a strike.

In an effort to reduce unemployment, the City Council recently authorized the employment of about 80 men to remove brush growth on the site of a purposed reservoir.

When first hired the men were paid 35 cents an hour. Later it was noticed that 10 of the men were more skilful than the others so their pay was increased to 40 cents an hour. Today 20 of the men refused to work unless paid the same amount.

LEGGE DENIES A WHEAT CORNER

Washington, March 6 (AP)—Denying reports he said he had received from the Middle West that the Farm Board was trying to "corner the wheat market," Chairman Legge sai dtoday an important announcement in connection with the grain trade would be issued by the board today. He said the announcement might affect the market and for that reason it would be held until the grain exchanges had closed.

Commenting on another report he had received from London which sai dthat the board had given up stabilization operations, Legge said: "It's all news to me. So far as I know we are only starting."

A 3 DAY CLEAN-UP of "WHAT'S LEFT!"

MOLLER'S Mid-Winter Sale is Over! . . . Now comes this Post-Sale Clearance! Liberal Terms, as usual!

It stands to reason that a storewide Selling Event, like our Mid-Winter Sale just past, leaves us with a considerable amount of odds and ends, incomplete suites, one-of-a-kind pieces, etc. Therefore it is good business for us to clear this class of merchandise, even at a sacrifice of profit. Don't let the term "What's Left" mislead you—all this merchandise is up to the regular Moller's high standards. This particular clearance comes at an ideal time—when you're thinking of refurnishing your home for the Spring, or getting that Summer cottage ready! Come in today!

GIRLS CHOSEN TO DISPENSE FLOWERS

THE FINAL TOUCH TO AN elaborate Parisian production will be added by a group of 10 "flower girls" dispensing boutonnieres at each performance at "Vincent Virtues and Vices" of the Arlington Theater, beginning March 13. These flower girls will be directed by Mrs. Harrison Gardner (Eloise Lawrence), and will give a festive air to a brilliant gathering assembled from every walk of life for the annual show of the Vincent Club in aid of the Vincent Memorial Hospital. Those who will thus serve beauty and charity are Miss Charlotte Moseley, Miss Elizabeth Stewart, Miss Mary Flagg, Miss Cora Lyman, Miss Nancy Olney, Miss Magdalena Greenslet, Mrs. Thomas Proctor, 2d, Mrs. James Reynolds and Mrs. Benjamin Rice Bassett. The theme song and other show music will be sold also.

ONE OF THE SPARKLING numbers of the show will be the jewel chorus, in which Miss Helen Warren, the attractive debutante daughter of Mrs. Samuel D. Warren, will appear as the "jewel girl" in a black gown almost covered with precious jewels. The charming Mrs. A. Lynde Cochrane of Commonwealth ave. and Hamilton, will contribute a song and dance specialty which will make the 20th number on the program. The performance will be given in two acts in a two-hour period. Miss Dorothea Frothingham is to lead the novel "dance shadows" feature, and an interpretative slave dance of her own creation is to be the offering of Miss Eugenia Frothingham.

THREE IMPORTANT DANCES tomorrow evening clamor for the attendance of the debutante set, and the dilemma thus presented is being solved by many through flying trips from one to another of these balls. Undoubtedly the largest and most brilliant gathering will be the Harvard military ball at the Copley-Plaza, where persons prominent in social and military circles will be in the receiving line. This dance is sponsored by the Harvard military units, and takes the place of the usual junior prom. The dance committee is composed of James Lawrence, chairman; R. H. O'Connell, treasurer; Eliot W. Wylie, secretary. Eleven ushers will serve at the dance.

MANY distinguished matrons form patronesses for the dance. They are: Mrs. A. L. Devens, Mrs. Tarrant P. King, Mrs. Julian Coolidge, Mrs. Chandler Hovey, Mrs. Robert R. Dixon, Mrs. Walter Channing, Mrs. J. L. Bremer Mrs. Henry Lyman, Mrs. Walter C. Bayles, Mrs. Pierpont Stackpole, Mrs. George R. Fearing, Mrs. J. Harleston Parker, Mrs. Samuel D. Warren, Mrs. George Peabody Hamlin, Mrs. George W. Cram, Mrs. David Cheever, Mrs. Edward Pickman, Mrs. Hugh D. Scott, Mrs. John N. Trainer and Mrs. George T. Keyes.

A LARGE ATTENDANCE IS also expected at the Number Six Club dance of M. I. T. for which many smart dinner parties have been planned. The third interesting affair is the ball to be given by the Harvard Crimson, an event eagerly anticipated by the younger set. In addition two large Harvard fraternity dances are taking place tomorrow evening at Longwood Towers, which is also the setting for another university ball.

WITH THE RETURN OF fliters to the Southland the annual spring exodus to Europe daily assumes more importance in the social calendar. The cancellation of the Community Health Benefit ball on March 29 was due to the large number of interested patrons who have deserted Boston for other playgrounds and each day their ranks are swelled by other travelers. Mr. and Mrs. Robert T. Herrick, who have just returned from California, set sail on the Roma early today for Spain. They are to visit Paris and London before their return in late spring. Mr. and Mrs. Paul G. Courtney of Marlborough st., with their two children, will sail from New York tomorrow on the Ile de France to take up their residence in Paris. Mr. Courtney is to be the resident partner of Lee, Higginson & Co. in the French capital.

Miss Sally Wambolt, who puts feeling and expression into her singing, will be among the society favorites on the program of "Vincent Virtues and Vices" which opens at the Arlington theater on March 13 for five performances. The Vincent Memorial Hospital benefits.

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM D. SOHIER, JR., are in New York, where they are staying at the Ambassador. They have been joined by Mrs. Sohier's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter D. Denegie of Washington and New Orleans. Mrs. Robert C. Morse is at the Berkshire in New York, where also Mr. and Mrs. Russell G. Fessenden are housed. Mrs. Francis J. O. Alsop of Milton is at the Gladstone and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Gilulden are passing the week at the Wardman Park Hotel in Washington.

A DISTINGUISHED COTERIE of society women and artists are gathering around the tea tables at the Allied Art Center this afternoon, honoring Miss Louise Winsor Brooks, the new president. Miss Alice Tapley and Mrs. Robert Hillyer are presiding at the tea urns and are being assisted by Miss Eleanora Smith, Mrs. Lovett Groves, Miss Evelyn Klugh, Miss Evelyn Tucker, and the Misses Turner. Miss Brooks is exhibiting a group of her pastels depicting racial types.

MR. AND MRS. ARTHUR BLAKE of The Lillacs in Dedham are entertaining at the Somerset for about 20 of the younger set in honor of their debutante daughter, Miss Harriet Blake. The dinner will precede the Friday evening dance which will be held for the sub-debutante set at this hotel. This is the sixth and last dance of the series given by the sub-debutante group who will make their debut next season. Mrs S. Huntington Wolcott is their chaperone.

TODAY AT THE MYLES STANDISH HOTEL the efficient managers of the Disabled Ex-Service Men's Exchange is conducting a sale of hand-made articles which have created such a demand in hundreds of smart households. Exquisite handwrought silver work, tooled leather, pewter ware, hand-painted chiffon scarves, baby blankets and woodwork, toys and rugs find a ready sale when shown by this committee of prominent women, who are carrying on the work begun by the late Mrs. Clarence R. Edwards, wife of Maj.-Gen Edwards. Tomorrow a similar sale will be held at the Hotel Bellevue and Saturday at the Copley-Plaza.

A DINNER DANCE IS BEING given this evening by Mr and Mrs. Francis R. Hart at their Beacon st. home in honor of their daughter, Mrs. Lloyd Nichols (Helen Hart) of Beverly Farms. About 40 guests will attend. Mr. and Mrs. Nichols make their home at Dunroven, in Beverly Farms, the year round.

LEGION DRIVE FOR $100,000 OPENS

Gaspar G. Bacon, president of the State Senate, at a meeting held at the Parker House, estimated the American Legion convention here in October will mean a profit of $15,000,000 to business in Boston.

The meeting was for the purpose of organizing the committee and starting the campaign for $100,000 which the legionnaires seek as a fund for the proper entertainment of the city's guests and the arrangement of an appropriate program.

Col. Carroll J. Swan, president of the 1930 National Convention Corporation, backed up Senator Bacon's estimate of $15,000,000, which is based on an attendance of from 300,000 to 350,000 for a five-day period.

IN SESSION 4 DAYS

Col. Swan said that $10 per day per person is a conservative estimate of what would be spent during the convention. With 300,000 persons attending this would show a spending of $3,000,000 per day.

The convention proper will be in progress for four days, from Monday to Thursday, October 6 to 9. But in addition perhaps most of the visitors will arrive in Boston the day previous, Sunday. If the number of visitors reaches 350,000 the figure will be materially increased.

For the benefit of business men, to protect them against unauthorized collectors or solicitors Senator Bacon issued a statement that there will be no solicitation for funds other than that through the members of his finance committee and that, furthermore, under present plans there will be no paid advertisements in the official program for the convention.

Senator Bacon in drawing the lines of his campaign outlined a two-fold idea, announcing previously that already there have been a few contributions to the fund. Under his plan there will be one group of committee members, who will solicit the various business concerns, according to classification. Thus business concerns will be divided into groups according to their type of business and men will be assigned to each group for solicitation.

LEGION'S AIM

Then there will be another group of committee members, who will work upon the basis that they are to be responsible for the raising of $100,000 each.

Already Col. Swan said there is great interest in the convention. "It will be the biggest of its kind ever held in the history of the Legion and will be one of the largest ever held in Boston. It will probably be the only affair of its kind that Boston will see in our generation. Persons will come from all parts of the world. We want to send every one away from here feeling that Boston shows the warmest hospitality in the world and that the Boston people are the finest in the world.

"There is little doubt that it will be the biggest national convention of the Legion yet held. Boston is looked upon as the most historic spot in our country and this will serve to attract many. With the Tercentenary being held there is added incentive, so that the convention will be the biggest thing of its kind ever."

Simmons Seniors to Dance Saturday

The patronesses for the Simmons senior class dance at Longwood Towers Saturday night will be Miss Jane Louise Mesick, dean of the college; Miss Clara Enos and Miss Elizabeth Sardick. Miss Mary F. Sullivan of Holyoke is the chairman of the dance committee, and will be assisted by Miss Veronica Roycraft of Southbridge, Miss Katherine Ellis of Toledo, Ohio, Miss Ruth Sallinger of Watertown, N. Y., and Miss Alice Rathbone of Palmer.

Blouses and Costumes Cleverly Allied This Season

THAT the blouse is only as great as the costume it complements might be a fashion theorem at this spring if it were not for the fact that a blouse frequently becomes the costume itself! With suits in the forefront of the mode and separate skirts claiming their share of glory, there probably has not been such a blousey season since the grand old shirtwaist era.

There is no end to the variety of these 1930 blouses. They show a decided originality in both cut and details. They are most capricious in regard to sleeves, frequently there being none at all! And they cleverly follow in the wake of the frock mode to stress the waistline by tucking in, by smartly placed belts or by defining tucks.

Model by Conrad's

SLEEVES deserve particular notice in the new blouses for they are doing things they have not considered for years. Some sleeves are neatly chopped off just above the elbows, some register demure puffs and others attempt a trying three-quarter length with surprisingly becoming results. The buttoned sleeve which may be worn open or closed is still another interesting idea, one which gives quite a latitude to the costume.

No self-respecting blouse would eschew a bit of feminine detail whether it appears with a severely tailored suit or with a formal ensemble. Frills, jabots and peplums are only a few of the ways in which this femininity is expressed.

IT would be hard to find a suit, ensemble or separate skirt which did not have a blouse complement to top off its chic.

The two blouses pictured give an idea of the wide latitude of this season's styles. The tailored blouse of silk crepe in dusty pink is the correct complement to the tweed suit, correct for morning wear, but made interesting by the intricate details of the spring mode—long sleeves, a little puff at the wrist, interesting cuff detail of two soft folds; becoming frill collar, fitted to the neckline by fine tucks.

The small tucks are repeated in groups of three, partly concealed by buttoned tabs down the center front. The peplum length lower edge is made interesting by its sharply cut-away front; and the waistline defined by belt of the crepe, caught by buckle and eyelets.

THE eyelet embroidered batiste blouse of pale yellow cotton, so fashionable this season, is very dressy, and summery, and may be worn with a more elaborate type of suit than the crepe blouse. This blouse is sleeveless, has a scalloped frill surrounding its V neckline, while its lower edge is caught by a soft bow of the material at the left side front.

The even, undisturbed ways of blouses have changed. They tuck into the top of the skirt exactly at the new waistline or they wear furbelows hitherto limited to the silk frock, or like this tunic blouse, they adopt an uneven hemline. A peplum with the side flare finishes a satin blouse belted at the waistline and marked, otherwise, by beautiful simplicity.

WHETHER the vogue for belts could possibly find another recruit is a question answered in the affirmative by the smart blouses that are belted or nipped in by means of tucks at the waist. The tuck-in blouse, of course, has long acknowledged the fitness of a waistline, but the overblouse has only recently adopted this popular new style.

Belts that go all the way around are varied by belts only at the back or belts at the sides and back, while some blouses, eschewing the belt, indicate the waistline in various intricate ways.

WOMEN PEACE WORKER SEES WAR NEAR

The naval conference at London needs the prayers of the World, and if it fails, another war is almost inevitable, according to Mrs. Joseph D. Leland of Brush Hill road, Milton, noted worker for world peace, who has just returned from England after a visit of more than a month.

Mrs. Leland, formerly Elsa Tudor of Boston and Countess De Pierrefeu of Paris, was one of the workers for a worldwide period of silent prayer for the success of the parley, which was marked by a special service held at Westminster Abbey at 3 p. m on March 1.

She sailed from America in January, representing the Massachusetts Federation of Churches, the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom and the Theosophical Order of Service.

Interviews with various delegates to the conference and the undercurrent of sentiment at English clubs, she said, led her to believe that Great Britain and Europe are discouraged at the lack of agreement in London.

"Our demand for parity is holding up the conference," she said. "Henry Dawes, a nephew of the ambassador, told me that we mustn't expect the American delegates to move any faster, because the American people demand parity. The ambassador himself was greatly in sympathy with the plan of prayer for the conference."

The Italians, she said, are discouraged because this conference, like other previous ones, seems to be tending toward an increase in armaments rather than toward disarmament.

England fears France and France fears England, according to Mrs. Leland, and there is a general feeling that the result of the parley will be to leave the weak countries still weaker and the strong ones stronger than ever.

One feels, she said, that another war is almost inevitable, but that the diplomats and all others are unwilling to admit the possibility.

A new aspect of world affairs which is not often considered, according to Mrs. Leland, is the Indian situation. There is great fear, she said, that the Viceroy of Indian will assassinate a British government official, that England will retaliate by sending warships and troops to India, and that the result will be a general insurrection in India, accompanied by a slaughter of the English officials and residents, who are greatly outnumbered by the natives.

HOMES WITH PERSONALITY ARE URGED BY WOMAN STORE STYLIST

It isn't smart any longer to be loud or noisy, or rather rude, or bored and nonchalant.

It isn't smart not to have good manners. The post war decline in decorum is over and the smart thing today is to be really gracious and charming.

No more "gadding about" in a mad whirl of jazzy activity. That also is no longer smart. The "best people" these days stay at home and entertain. That is the smart thing to do.

Which, of course, has nothing to do with making style worth while but which leads to the major premise that our homes which have been in second place are no longer so. It is high time to dress our homes with personality-reflecting furniture, as we would our persons.

HUNDREDS ATTEND

This was the message brought by Miss Lillian Beckett, department store stylist, to the art conference planned by Mrs. Elsie K. Chamberlin and her committee and sponsored by the State Federation of Women's Clubs, the art department of which she is the chairman.

The conference attracted hundreds of clubwomen from various towns and cities throughout the state, giving them snatches of art wisdom as to their furniture, the use of pictures, the application of the new mode in dress, the fashion trend in silk design and the decorative possibilities of cotton.

Those who assisted Mrs. Chamberlin in arranging the conference were Mrs. Cyrus S. Kauffman, chairman of the art conference; Mrs. Chester Aldrich, tickets and hotel arrangements; Mrs. Roy C. Baker, program; Mrs. Henry W. Dewing, publicity; Mrs. Katherine Osborne, affiliations; Mrs. Warren Sheffield Towers; Mrs. E. J. Mc-Duffie, Mrs. William Greenwood, Mrs. Grace C. Mansfield, Mrs. Frank L. Preston, Mrs. Morris M. Roud and Mrs. Louis E. Stickney, hostesses.

TODAY Y. W. C. A.

One of the series of spring programs for all members and friends of the association will be held in the form of a supper next Tuesday evening, to be held at the Y at 6 p. m., with Mrs. John Lowell Gardner and Mrs. Henry Kendeedine of Brookline as the hostesses. There will be informal musical selections and an evening of bridge.

WEST ACTON WOMAN'S CLUB

"Children's Day" will be observed next Wednesday at 2.30 p. m. in the clubhouse, with the youngsters of the public schools the guests. It is also to be the privilege of the club members to bring little guests of the program, furnished by "The Pixies." Mrs. George E. Holton, hostess, has charge of the social hour to follow.

STOUGHTON WOMAN'S CLUB

The message of the art conference held in Boston will be brought back to the club and enlarged upon in the talk on "Art and the Home," by A. J. Philpott of the Boston Globe. The meeting will be in charge of Mrs. F. Mortimer Lamb, chairman of the club's art committee, and held in Cheesebrut Hall, next Monday at 2.30 p. m. There will be a musical program by Mrs. Georgia Chapman.

NEW ENGLAND WOMAN'S CLUB

An illustrated lecture on "An Hour With American Sculptors" will feature next Monday's meeting in the Crystal Room of the Hotel Kenmore at 2.30 p. m. Mrs. Edwin S. Wright, chairman of the art committee, has charge of the program and will introduce as the speaker Miss Marguerite Rand. Mrs. W. Franklin Burnham will supervise the tea, after the lecture.

At 1 p. m. next Monday, Mrs. James P. Gilbert will review Helen Keller's "Mid-Stream—Her Later Life" for the literature class, of which Miss Ella M. Horne is the leader.

PROFESSIONAL WOMEN'S CLUB

The club's first business meeting of the month takes place next Tuesday in the Georgian Room of the Hotel Statler at 7.30 p. m., and will be presided over by Mrs. Mabel Mann Jordan, president. Later in the evening, Mrs. M. H. Gulesian, chairman of programs, will present Araxy M. Odabashian, soprano; Elsie Wesiher, reader, and Edith Weye Wilson, contralto, in a series of entertainments.

Mrs. Axel A. Packard, State Federation president, will be present and introduces Mrs. Mauren L. Mc-Master, chairman of the department of the American Home, who will urge attendance at the two-day Youth Conference scheduled for the Statler March 13 and 14. This conference, an annual affair, is most comprehensive and on this year's program experts in every phase of home life have a place.

Hostesses for the club meeting are Mrs. May C Howard, vice-chairman of the clubrooms, Mrs. Thompson-Hall and Mrs. Helen Mahler.

WEST ROXBURY WOMAN'S CLUB

Directed by the vice-presidents, Mrs. Guy W. Mitchell and Mrs. Howard K. Foster, and assisted by Mrs. Fred W. Sawyer, the club will give "The Romance of the Shawl, an intriguing pageant in seven episodes by Mrs. Katherine Parker Thore, next Tuesday afternoon at 2.30 in the Bellevue Community Theater. The club chorus will assist the cast of 45 members. There will be solo dancing by Mrs. Willard H. Payson and Adele Koppman and vocal solos by Mrs. Harold R. Duffie, Mrs. Roland H. Graham and Mrs. Nathan C. Morse.

Mrs. Guy W. Mitchell will read the manuscript. A feature of the program will be the wearing of heirloom or modern shawls by members of the club and guests, that they might join in the last episode, "The Parade of the Shawls."

Next Monday at 11.30 in Library Hall the class in interior homedecoration will meet with Miss Lillian Phillips for a lecture on "Furniture and Furniture Coverings." The drama class will meet Miss Evelyn Conlon on Wednesday at 2 in Library Hall.

Plans are now being made by club members to exhibit flower arrangements at the flower show which Mrs. Harry E. Sutton, convocation chairman, announces will be held at the annual meeting, April 22.

BARNSTABLE WOMAN'S CLUB

The next meeting of the club will take place Monday at 7.30 p. m., with the program to be presented by the music committee, of which Mrs. T. Winthrop Swift is the chairman. Mrs. Sumner J. Brown will sing, and Milford Lawrence of Falmouth will talk on "Gardening on Cape Cod." Mrs. James W. Holmes will be the hostess. The Junior Woman's Club is to give a play, "Let's Get Married," March 13, at 8 p. m., in the village hall.

SEEK SUPPORT FOR RAIL LINE

Providence, R. I., March 6—Appeals for support of the proposed Providence-Palmer railroad link, backed by a petition signed by the State's leading industrialists and business men, were made today when the New England Governors' committee on railroads opened its hearing at the State House.

Gov. Norman S. Case made a long plea for the building of the proposed Providence-Palmer line, which he said he believed would improve industrial conditions.

The Governor emphasized the importance of transportation so far as industrial New England was concerned, not only by rail but by water, and said that the development of the port of Providence depended on it.

Ex-Mayor Joseph H Gainer spoke along the same lines, as did Mayor James D Payne and George L. Crooker presided at the hearing.

HOOVER TO OUST MEMBERS OF POWER BOARD

Washington, March 6—The administration is prepared to reorganize the federal power commission and to displace both F. E Bonner executive secretary, and Charles A Russell, who have been at odds over policy, according to word received by the Senate Interstate Commerce Commission.

Secretary Wilbur had testified that delays in settling disputed power company accounts were attributable to "conflict of authority."

The ousting of Bonner has been demanded in the Senate on the ground that he was "a power man," and was attempting "to cripple the commission."

After hearing Wilbur, ex-officio member of the commission, the committee concluded a six inquiry into administration of the federal waterpower act.

The plans for reorganization were understood at the Capitol to call for retainment of William W King, chief accountant.

He has been with the commission since it began to operate, while Russell and Bonner were attached to it last July. Russell and Bonner have been in conflict over accounts which King questioned. Bonner insisting that King was "too meticulous," and Russell insisting in turn that he (Bonner) would favor the power companies in the accounting.

Secretary Wilbur testified that he planned to "secure more harmonious personnel" as soon as it could be accomplished without "making a martyr" of any one.

FOX VICTORY IS ANNOUNCED

New York, March 6—Approval by stockholders of the Fox Film Corporation of the $60,000,000 refinancing plan advocated by William Fox and the Halsey, Stuart-Blair Corp., banking group was announced today after the ballots taken at yesterday's protracted meeting had been counted.

"I feel that I have deserved not by words but by actions the vote that you have cast in favor of the plan that I have proposed," Fox said in thanking the stockholders.

He added that he had been offered $33,000,000 for his stock by the "telephone interests" when he charges with seeking to gain control of the vast Fox movie and theater enterprises.

Today's vote may be regarded as a mandate on the part of the present stockholders in indicating their desire not to have a receivership under control of the Federal court, thrust on the companies.

Boston City Hall to Have Good Bath

Boston's City Hall will be given a beauty treatment in honor of the tercentenary celebration next Summer.

Mayor Curley today awarded a contract to the Michael M Devine Co., amounting to $2000, for cleaning the exterior of the municipal pile with acid solution.

DAILY ANTIQUE No. 39

The plate shown herewith is part of a set of Old English ware owned by Mary E. Lemery of 39 White st., East Boston. It is over 111 years old and was originally owned by Miss Lemery's grandmother, Mrs. Mary McGullion.

The design is one of which was popular in the late 1700's and early 1800's. It is especially noted in panels of old pictorial wallpaper. This dish will be further discussed by an expert in tomorrow's Evening American.

The Howard clock shown yesterday is encased in maple, and is a beautiful example of cabinet work. The maple is now light finished, though for years its beauty was hidden under dark paint. The works were made by John Bailey, of Hanover, which is one of the home of the original owner, Capt. Martin Hayward, of Pompton, Mass.

In connection with the Massachusetts Tercentenary Year, the Boston Evening American will publish from day to day interesting specimens of authentic antiques. Readers possessing genuine antiques, particularly articles of Colonial or early American origin or of historic association, are invited to forward photographs and records for publication. In case no photograph is available, the American will send one of its staff cameramen to photograph your antique if you live in Greater Boston. Material should be addressed to "Antique Editor, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston."

QUIZ MELLON ON WORLD BANK

Washington, March 6 (AP)—The House banking committee today unanimously approved two resolutions calling on Secretaries Stimson and Mellon for information as to the extent to which the Federal Reserve Board is participating in the formation of the Bank of International Settlements.

Official American participation in the proposed international bank, designed to handle reparations payments under the Young plan, has been opposed by Chairman McFadden of the committee.

The two resolutions both introduced by McFadden, would require that all information be available, showing what part the Reserve Board, Federal Reserve banks, or private American banking interests, have taken in organizing the Settlements bank.

Boys Break Oath 'Not to Squeal' Under Grill

Brockton, March 6. Breaking an oath not to "squeal" on pain of having their heads knocked off, a group of boys melted under grilling today, according to police, revealing the existence of a gang.

Police Inspector George C. Chamberlayne said that he had a meeting place in the yard of the home of Carlton Raymond, 17, of Clinton st., a cripple, and that he was one of the ringleaders.

Raymond and three others were arraigned today on charges of receiving stolen goods from the C. A. Noyes Company hardware store on Main st. and held in $200 bail each for a hearing March 11. Four others will be arraigned in juvenile court on that date.

Author to Read Stories to Boys

Excerpts from several of his adventurous stories will be read by Kenneth P. Kempton, Harvard University instructor, author and lecturer at the Boys' Club of Boston, 14 Green st., Charlestown, March 15. A large number of boys are expected to form the audience.

Fall on Steps Fatal to Dedham Fireman

Joseph P. Mahoney, 58, member of the Dedham fire department, died at Massachusetts General Hospital today from a fractured skull. Mahoney slipped on the rear steps of his home, in Chauncey st., East Dedham, and struck his head. He has been a permanent member of the fire department for 24 years. He leaves a wife and five children.

Any COLD

That cold may lead to something serious, if neglected. The time to do something for it is now. Don't wait until it develops into bronchitis. Take two or three tablets of Bayer Aspirin as soon as you feel a cold coming on. Or as soon as possible after it starts. Bayer Aspirin will head off or relieve the aching and feverish feeling—will stop the headache. And if your throat is affected, dissolve two or three tablets in a quarter-glassful of warm water, and gargle. This quickly soothes a sore throat and reduces inflammation and infection. Read proven directions for neuralgia, for rheumatism and other aches and pains. Genuine Bayer Aspirin is harmless to the heart.

What Shall I Do for Gray Hair?

By ALICE STRAWN

I am often asked for a good way to restore gray, faded or streaked hair. While there are many preparations on the market for the purpose, I know of nothing better than a mixture of good old sage tea and sulphur. You can either prepare the mixture at home yourself, or as most women prefer, buy it already prepared and ready to use.

The correct recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, may be had in Wyeth's Sage & Sulphur Compound. All druggists carry it and since the cost is only 75c a bottle, there is really no excuse for any woman to go to the bother of preparing it herself. You would be surprised if you knew the number of men and women who employ Wyeth's Sage & Sulphur because its use is undetectable.

You simply moisten a comb or a soft brush with it and draw it through your hair, one small strand at a time. By morning the gray disappears and another application or two sees your hair beautifully and evenly restored to its full original color. There is no suggestion of that hard, dyed look that repels fastidious women. Any one any woman—or man—whose hair is turning gray to try Wyeth's Sage & Sulphur.

Symptoms of a Cold

They are well defined. An achy sensation, sneezing; cold, chilly feeling, headache. Treat them at once with the original cold remedy. Used by millions every year. Refuse substitutes.

Gave Up Work Two Years Ago--Due to Failing Health

But Disorders of the Stomach Quickly Vanished —After He Took Bon-Tone

Mr. Philipo Brigandi, of 60 Pemberton Square, Boston, Mass., states: Two years ago I had to give up my work, due to my failing health, caused principally by a very bad disorder of the stomach. Everything seemed to be wrong with me I ate very little, and what I did eat just tortured me—gas pains in the region of my heart put me in a very nervous state, and I had a bad taste in my mouth almost continually. While I lay in bed at night my breath came in short gasps, and at times I thought I would choke. I also had terrible pains in my back in the region of my kidneys, and I was very much discouraged. I consulted authorities and took all kinds of medicine without receiving relief.

"A friend of mine recommended Bon-Tone to me, so I bought some—and, believe me, the results I obtained are wonderful! I have taken Bon-Tone for only a short time—and my bowels are normal; the pains in my back are gone; the gas pains have been eliminated; and that sour taste has disappeared from my mouth. My nerves are steady, and I feel fit to tackle any kind of work. All credit for this change is due to Bon-Tone! Anyone suffering from ailments like mine will use good judgment in trying Bon-Tone—I'm sure it's a good medicine."

Call on Mr. Ryan, the Bon-Tone man, who is meeting the public daily at Epstein Drug Co., Inc., Scollay Square, Boston. Have him tell you why this medicine has become the sensation of the drug trade and a household word all through New England. Bon-Tone is also for sale in Cambridge at Cole Drug Store, 636 Mass. Ave., Central Square, and in South Boston at John S. Austin's Drug Store, 426 Broadway Perkins Square, and leading drug stores everywhere.

Ashamed of Herself

Many women are ashamed of their faces because of pimples, blotches, blemishes and coarse skin. Some try to cover up their bad complexions with cosmetics, creams and powders, but a new complexion can never be made by covering up the old. The only beautiful complexion is the natural. A natural complexion loses its beauty when the skin is diseased, and it recovers its beauty when the skin is restored to health. To overcome coarseness, roughness, pimples, blotches, blemishes and irritations on the face, apply a little Cadum Ointment every night when you retire. In this simple manner the skin can be restored to health, and the original beauty of the complexion brought back. A nightly massage with a mixture of one part cold cream and one part Cadum Ointment keeps the skin in fine condition. Cadum Ointment is a French preparation made in this country from the original formula.

Much suffering from skin troubles may be avoided by the timely use of this wonderful remedy. It stops the itching at once and is very soothing and healing, wherever the skin is irritated or inflamed. Cadum Ointment is good for eczema, pimples, blotches, chafing, rash, ringworm, cuts, insect bites, sores, cold-sores, zetter, etc.

SOTHERN'S IRE ROUSED, GIVES BACK $500

Amarillo, Tex., March 6 (AP)—E. H. Sothern, noted Shakespearean actor, is the latest victim of the editorial barb of Gene Howe, editor of the Amarillo News-Globe.

H. . remembered for his crit ism a few months ago of Mary Garden, clashed with Mr. Sothern over the actor's refusal to be interviewed.

Howe referred in an editorial to Sothern's "pink toes," called Sothern a "high hatter" and urged Amarillo people to stay away from Sothern's lecture on Shakespeare.

Sothern retaliated by saying he was "leaving Amarillo on the first train and may I never see it again." He denied the "pink toe" allegation and returned the $500 paid him for his appearance.

"Mr. Sothern is said to be 70 years old," Howe's article said. "Unquestionably he is entitled to respect and the utmost consideration, but as he is sufficiently vigorous to tour the country giving recitals, there is no excuse for his refusing to co-operate with small-town impresarios who assume financial risk when they book him.

"My personal advice is to keep away from the auditorium. Don't pay any of your good money to see him. Mr. Sothern doesn't value our good will, but he does our money."

Scores took Howe's advice and turned in their tickets.

From the stage, Mr. Sothern took exception to the criticism. "My toes are not pink," he said. "This is the worst thing that has ever been said about me."

Explaining his declination to be interviewed, he said he was fatigued when he arrived. He was returning the $500, he said, to prove that "I am not after the money of the people of the smaller cities." He asked that it be given to charity.

Marblehead Man Poisoned, in Hospital

Marblehead, March 6—Michael C. Grady, widely known sport enthusiast of this town, is in the Mary A. Alley Hospital under treatment for some form of poisoning. Grady went to the Sharkey-Scott fight in Miami last week, but it is understood that Grady and several others never saw the fight as they were taken sick and are now in hospitals.

Britain Beauties Challenge U. S. Girls

London, March 6 (INS)—Aroused over Hollywood's long disputed claim to the world's most beautiful bathing belles, the English Film Artists Guild has announced the intention of selecting 18 bathing beauties of the English film world to challenge their American sisters.

A British team will be chosen for their beauty, figure and physical fitness by a committee of beauty culture experts, producers and physical culture instructors.

TWO GIVEN LIFE AND 20 YEARS

Sentences of life imprisonment for being habitual criminals and additional sentences of 20 years for robbery while armed were imposed today on James S. Vincent and John F. Buchanan of South Boston, by Judge James H. Sisk in Middlesex Superior Court.

Buchanan was given another sentence of from two and one-half years for carrying a revolver. A charge of escaping from the Concord reformatory, contained in the indictments against the pair, was placed on file.

The prison sentences will run concurrently.

The courtroom was crowded when the youths, heavily shackled, were brought in. Both were unconcerned when sentence was imposed.

On Feb. 25 the youths escaped from Concord reformatory after beating a guard, Daniel F. O'Connell, unconscious, and taking his keys, gun and $2 in cash.

BLACK DUCK TO BE RUM CHASER

Providence, March 6—The fate of the Black Duck was sealed today by Judge Ira Letts of the U. S. District Court.

The speedy rum runner, on which three men were slain by coast guards off Newport, will be taken over by the coast guards as a patrol boat and turned against its former comrade-craft in the liquor smuggling racket.

Judge Letts ordered the vessel turned over to Comdr. Chalker of the New London base, by U. S Marshal Henry C. Arnold, on request of Andrew W. Mellen Secretary of the Treasury.

Ordinarily such boats are sold at auction. This disposal of the Black Duck precludes its purchase by other rum-runners or by anti-prohibition organizations which have heretofore tried unsuccessfully to get permission to inspect it to ascertain the position of the bullet holes.

The Black Duck, with its name changed to a coast guard number, will doubtless be the fastest in the rum patrol fleet, for it has airplane motors and is credited with a speed of 35 miles an hour.

MORE SLAYINGS ARE FEARED IN CHICAGO WAR

Chicago, March 6 (INS)—With the double gang slaying of John "Dingbat" Oberta, gangster, beer baron and politician, and his bodyguard, police today guarded against further reprisals predicted by Frank McErlane, toughest of gangsters, after he was shot three times while on his hospital cot.

Gangster enemies kidnaped Oberta and a man believed to have been Sam Malaga, bodyguard and chauffeur, and took them for the typical underworld "ride."

Oberta was riddled with bullets as he sat beside his assailants in his own automobile on a lonely road on the far southwest side of the city. His companion lay in a water-filled ditch beside the road.

Police immediately attributed the double killing to the stockyards beer war which sent McErlane to the hospital after a duel with three enemies.

McErlane was formerly the ally of Oberta and his partner, Joe Saltis, but broke with these and joined forces with "Spike" O'Donnell, mortal enemy of the Saltis group.

Ex-Gang Leader Slain by Foes in Indiana

Lafayette, Ind., March 6 (INS)—Orlando "Jack" Horton, former Chicago gangster, lay dead here today, victim of a gang "ride."

Horton was shot five times in the back and his body hurled into a strawberry patch.

In 1924, after the murder of his partner, John Duffy, Chicago's first "ride" victim, Horton was hunted throughout the nation, but never found.

BRITISH EARL ENTERS U. S. AS SEAMAN

Los Angeles, March 6 (AP)—The Earl of Rosslyn, British nobleman, soldier and author, was in the United States today with his status that of a sailor left in a foreign land when he fails to return to ship before sailing time.

The earl did not enlist as a seaman aboard the motorship Penrith Castle for the one shilling a month the ship's master agreed to pay him, he admitted to immigration authorities last night. The enlistment preceded by a few hours the docking of the vessel from London at San Pedro.

The Penrith Castle sailed for Australia while the earl was at luncheon with his friends, Douglas Fairbanks and Mary Pickford, at the film stars' home. As soon as the ship sailed, E. Ross, 63, as the earl was listed in its records, was in the United States illegally.

The earl, who declared in his biography that he broke the bank at Monte Carlo twice, and then lost $5,000,000 gambling, explained to Director Walter E. Carr of the immigration service that he neglected to have his passport visaed, so he enlisted as a seaman because he wanted to come ashore.

He requested that he be given a waiver of a passport until he could go to San Francisco to catch a ship for New Zealand.

BOSTON, THURSDAY, MARCH 6, 1930

CHAPTER 47

THAT night Lovejoy discharged Norrie Shane.

It gave her a certain keen but bitter pleasure to tell Norrie that she could pack up and leave just as soon as she felt like it—and the sooner she went the better.

"I suppose Tom has told you," she said, handing Norrie her week's wages, "that we're breaking up housekeeping."

Norrie shook her brown head, looking down at the folded bills in her hand.

"I don't know about it," she said quietly. "Of course, I knew that Tom had been up against it lately—But, Lovejoy, I don't need this money. You keep it and pay me later—and let me stay on for a week to help you with the baby. I'd love to do it."

Lovejoy wouldn't hear of that. "No. I'm going to take the baby over to Aunt Em in the morning," she answered firmly. "You can stay until then if you want to. But after that I'll have no use for you."

In the morning Norrie bathed the baby in his little tub for the last time. For the last time she put him into his blue-green high chair and fed him his cereal and his orange juice.

And after breakfast she telephoned for a cab and took him and her flat steamer trunk to Bullard Street.

Tom followed them a little later with the blue-green high chair, the little bed with ducks and chickens painted upon its head-board, and the small leather trunk that held all of Tommy's little dresses and bibs and rompers.

He was quite cheerful when he came back to the house at six that night.

"The baby's all settled with Aunt Em," he told Lovejoy, "and Norrie says she has a new job all waiting for her."

Lovejoy flashed him a sarcastic "Well, I'm so glad everything is fine with darling Norrie!" she said with mock enthusiasm. "Because it would just kill me to know that you were worrying about her!"

Tom said nothing.

"I've been packing up all the silver and the china and the little pictures," Lovejoy told him. "I telephoned the shop where I bought them and told them that we simply couldn't pay for them—and they couldn't do anything but take them all back. Luckily, the silver hasn't been marked."

The dining-room table was loaded with pasteboard boxes, and on the floor was the great wooden box in which the dishes were carefully packed.

"It's too bad we can't send back all the curtains and the furniture, too," she went on, "but we can't because they've been used—and they show it."

Her voice broke for an instant. Then she set her teeth, lifted her chin and finished what she had to say.

"I think the best thing we can do is to sell the rugs and the furniture and the curtains, don't you?" she asked. "They ought to bring quite a lot of money and you can use it to pay off some more of the bills. It will help quite a lot."

Tom nodded his head.

"That's a good idea," he said absently. "You take care of it, will you?—I'm going to start work tomorrow with the Algonquin-Jones Company, and I'll be busy."

Lovejoy knew that the Algonquin-Jones Company was a well-known bond house downtown. She brightened up at Tom's news.

"It didn't take you long to find another position, did it?" she asked. "Tom, I'm so glad—I've hated to see you so down-in-the-mouth and discouraged, lately."

"I'm not exactly sitting on top of the world now," he replied with a wry smile. "They're starting me off on fifty a week—that's just a drop in the bucket with all these debts of mine. Got anything to eat in the house?"

Lovejoy went out into the kitchen and he followed her.

The ice-box was almost empty. But on the top shelf of the kitchen cupboard—her "emergency shelf," Lovejoy called it—was a big can of Russian caviar. Beside it was a jar of pate de fois gras. Then there were two glasses of wine, jelly, a glass jar of pickled walnuts and a round wooden box filled with Camembert cheese.

"There's nothing here but junk," said Lovejoy. "A lot of stuff that I bought in case any of the crowd should drop in unexpectedly for a drink or a game of cards."

Tom, standing in the doorway, turned and looked over his shoulder. Beyond him Lovejoy could see the dining room with its silk curtains and its brocaded chairs, with its littered table and its expensive blue rug.

"The whole house is full of—junk," he said bitterly. "Junk that we bought for the benefit of all these people we've been running with. These fair-weather friends of ours who dropped us like hot-cakes when they thought we might want to borrow some money from them."

It was true. Neither the Aldersons nor the Goodalls had come near the house since they had heard that Tom had lost his job. . . . Aline had not even telephoned to find out whether she had any South Port letters there or not.

"They just think we'd rather not see them," said Lovejoy loyally, "because of Uncle James' death and everything!"

But Tom was not to be fooled.

"Al Alderson thinks I might ask him for a job, or declared. "I heard that he said I drank too much. But most of the drinking I've done has been done right in his own office and in his house!"

He clapped his hat on his head.

"You'd better go to Aunt Em's

CURLEY ASKS CHANGE IN FIRE LAWS

Mayor Warns of "Red Roosters"; Wants City Given Right to Probe Cases

Mayor Curley today warned the legislative committee on public safety that the "Red Roosters," followers of the arson brigade who dealt in real estate for the purpose of collecting insurance are again invading Boston.

He demanded that the law be changed to give Boston sole authority in the investigation of fires. The fire investigations are now made by the state fire marshal's office.

The authority asked for by the mayor is one of several recommendations recently made by a special commission which studied the fire statutes of the state.

Arson is increasing in volume both in Boston and Brookline, the mayor said.

RECALLS OLD RING

He then recalled the activities of the arson ring which flourished in Boston some years ago. In which buildings were bought from sidewalk real estate dealers for the express purpose of burning. At the time, he stated, 147 persons were indicted for arson and a number sent to prison.

Now that the activities of the firebugs are becoming again pronounced, he said, it is time to give Boston the responsibility of investigating fires of suspicious or incendiary origin. The local fire officials he argued, are in a better position to make these probes than the state fire marshal with his limited force.

LOSSES IN MILLIONS

He pointed out that the fire losses of Boston together with the costs of fire fighting run to $10,000,000 a year, which amounts to approximately a charge of $1 a week for every family in the city.

"I am vitally interested in any legislation which will reduce these losses," he said. "The tribute annually paid to King Fire is far greater than it should be. The losses I have mentioned are too great a price to pay."

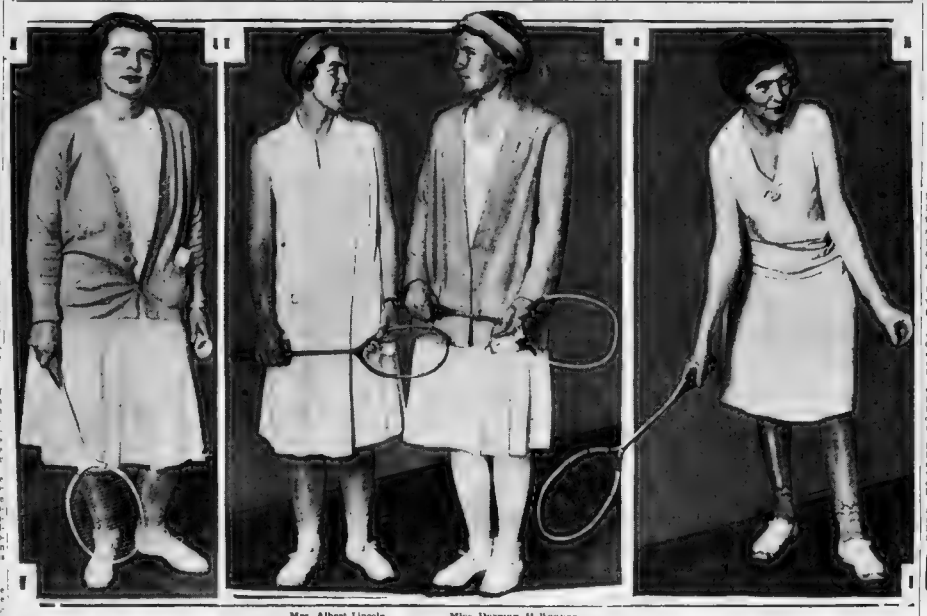
18th Century English Pastime Becomes Popular in Modern Athens



Mrs. Albert Lincoln — Miss Dorman H. Weaver

Mrs. Robert Steinert of Boston and Beverly Farms is an enthusiast for the old English game of badminton, which was first played in the castle of Badminton, Gloucester, England, the home of the Duke of Beaufort.

Badminton, a game which is a sort of cross between tennis and the children's game of battledore and shuttlecock, has been revived in this city. It is now being played in the University Club by a group of society women. The game, which was originated in the middle of the 18th century, demands a court 44 feet by 20 with a net stretched across the middle over which the feater missiles must be struck with a racquet.

Mrs. John R. Burleigh is another society leader who aspires for proficiency in the game of badminton. She is in almost daily attendance at the University Club in Trinity pl., where the game's exponents have established headquarters. (Staff photos.)

CAPTAIN AND 16 OF CREW ABOARD

Notre Dame Leaking Slightly as She Makes Port

After running aground on Harding's Ledge, off Point Allerton, Hull, in a fog today and remaining there nearly five hours, the new steam trawler Notre Dame, was hauled off by the 125-foot Coast Guard patrol boats Harriet Lane and Acushnet.

Leaking slightly, she was towed to the Fish Pier in South Boston, with her cargo of 60,000 pounds of fish, valued at $10,000.

In response to her S O S, seven vessels went to her assistance. Capt Magnus Magnusson and his crew of 16 men remained aboard after the trawler grounded on the ledge.

The trawler was bound for Boston from Western Bank off Sable Island. By its way it put her leg caught in a warm last week coming in contact with the ocean made navigation difficult.

As the result of a rumor that a fire had broken out on the craft Boston fireboat No. 44, in the dual capacity of police and fireboat, went down the harbor under forced draft but returned when it was learned there was no blaze aboard.

The Notre Dame is one of the most modern vessels in the fishing industry, out of Boston. She has Diesel engines, is 152 feet long, 24 feet beam and 13 feet deep.

CURLEY LAUDS ART WEEK

"I am so much interested in the celebration of Art week that I fully indorse the action of the Boston Chamber of Commerce in planning it among its first activities," said Mayor James M. Curley in praising the efforts of the chamber in conducting Art week in this city.

In addition he said:

"The fine spirit of co-operation existing among the museums, the merchants, the manufacturers and business organizations, the art schools and women's clubs, is evidenced by the setting off of one whole week for emphasis in placing it among its first activities." said Mayor James M. Curley in praising the efforts of the chamber in conducting Art week in this city.

In addition he said:

"The fine spirit of co-operation existing among the museums, the merchants, the manufacturers and business organizations, the art schools and women's clubs, is evidenced by the setting off of one whole week for emphasis in placing it among its first activities." With this spirit of the Chamber of Commerce shows a wholesome and charming sympathy.

"When art unites with industry in a community, there can be no question of failure, and the dream of the Chamber of Commerce expressed in its motto, 'I dreamed a city invincible, becomes a reality.'"

Woman Overcome by Gas Revived

When Samuel Simon, owner of a house in Blake st., Revere, called upon the tenant, Mrs. Helen Ryan, 35, to collect the rent today he found her unconscious, with a gas tube in her mouth.

Police, firemen, an emergency crew of the Suburban Gas & Electric Co., and Dr. Paul Donovan worked over her an hour with an inhalator. She was revived and taken to Massachusetts General Hospital, where it was said she would recover.

Official of S. P. C. A. Shun Bird, Cat War

Boston officials of the Massachusetts S. P. C. A. today declined to become involved in the "war" in Provincetown between bird lovers and cat lovers. Asked regarding a rumor in Provincetown that the Boston office planned to send a truck load of "crack shots" to exterminate all stray cats, officials here denied any such intention and gave the opinion that reports were greatly exaggerated.

BAD RUM KILLS ONE; 3 DYING

One man is dead in City Hospital and three others are in a serious condition, their names on the danger list, as the result of what police believe to be a flood of bad liquor through the Dorchester section the last few days.

The dead man was Peter Ferrio 45, single, of Park st., Dorchester. Ferrio was found on Park st near Dorchester ave. He was taken to City Hospital, where he died within a few hours. Police said he was a victim of alcoholism.

Finds That Brighton Death Was Accident

Quincy Cops Getting Heavy Since They Quit Hiking

Quincy restaurants anticipate a slackening of trade due to a disconcerting situation in the police department.

After walking beats for years, six sergeants were 'presided by the city with small coupes about a month ago. Several of them have learned to their dismay that they have begun to put on weight at an alarming rate.

Sergt. John M. Casey, ex-navy athlete and one of the finest physical specimens on the force, has added 10 pounds since he began riding, he confessed.

The net result is that the department gymnasium is growing in popularity as well as the strict diet rules.

Boston Postal Receipts Drop

Postal receipts at Boston during February fell $98,544 under the figures for the same month of last year, according to the monthly table from the postoffice department in Washington.

STUDENTS WET BY 500 TO 10

Harvard students, conducting their first mass meeting on prohibition last night in Harvard Union voted 500 to 10 against the 18th Amendment as it stands. Three-quarters of those present favore complete repeal, and less than one-quarter were satisfied with the Harvard Debating Council's plan for nullification through erasure of federal enforcement acts.

Prof. T. N. Carver told the students the nation "must be all wet or all dry."

Whist to Aid Student

A bridge party will be held at the Hotel Somerset tomorrow night to augment the fund which provides a scholarship at the Mary Frances Rooney School of Elocution in Brookline.

Cupid on Vacation in Cambridge, Books Show

Dan Cupid, or whoever the Little God of Love has delegated to represent him in Cambridge, has declared high holiday. During the past 48 hours the marriage intention book at Cambridge City Hall has laid idle, an unprecedented situation, according to City Clerk Fred Burke. While there has always been a perceptible drop in marriages during Lent, the book has never before been known to get dusty for two consecutive days.

Laundry Man Gone; Saugus Shirtless!

Charlie Chin, Saugus laundryman, has been among the missing for six weeks and Police Chief Roland L. Mansfield and members of his department today are doing their best to run down the cheeks of patient shirtless customers with the checks of bundles on the shelves of Chin's store.

What became of Chin nobody knows.

JURY SYSTEM HIT BY SAWYER

"Human life is held cheaper in the United States than in Mexico," said Rep Roland D. Sawyer of Ware, when he told students and graduates of the Portia Law School that this country is the most criminal in the world.

He attacked the present jury system as not being entirely satisfactory and declared that only one person out of every hundred tried for murder goes to the chair. He advocated a system whereby the agreement of 10 out of 12 jurymen be enough to acquit or convict the accused person.

THREE RADCLIFFE GIRLS QUIT ROOMS WHERE MEN WERE BARRED

THAT'S WHY, DECLARES LANDLADY

Students Say Insufficient Heat and Other Things Made Them Leave

Three Radcliffe girls, one of them married, broke an agreement to be her tenants until June because she would not allow them to entertain men visitors in their rooms, Mrs Mary R. Boland, of Walker st., Cambridge testified in East Cambridge court today.

The girls, who denied that house rules restricting male visitors had anything to do with their leaving were Mrs Katherine K. Edson, Hilda Drushincopp and Leah Ruth Turits.

Mrs. Boland, herself a mother of a Radcliffe student, brought suit in an action of contract alleging violation of an agreement entered into by the trio through Mrs. Edson, to remain her tenants from August last until next June

ADMITS AGREEMENT

Mrs. Edson testified she was married to a man now studying in Connecticut preparatory to entering the consular service. Her marriage took place in 1928 in New York, she said, but she could not remember in what city or town.

Besides being a student, she is employed in the Harvard Medical School at $1200 a year, she testified. She admitted signing an agreement to occupy the rooms and leaving after giving Mrs. Boland a week's notice. She said the landlady had frequently made the statement they could leave at any time they wished.

Under cross-examination by Atty Thomas F. Sullivan, she denied leaving because male visitors were prohibited in their rooms

PROVIDED RECEPTION ROOM

She said she didn't know whether Miss Drushincopp had been warned about having men friends in her room.

She admitted that Mrs. Boland objected to men visitors in their rooms and that she set aside a front parlor as a reception room for them. She said she chaperoned the other two girls.

Once or twice, she admitted, a single man did visit the rooms, but men did not call there regularly. Mrs. Boland provided the reception room after conferring with the Radcliffe dean, she said.

Insufficient heat and other conditions of the housing caused them to leave, she declared

The landlady testified the girls were willing to stay if she would allow them to have men in their rooms and she denied that there was any lack of heat. The case was continued for a week.

Distributes Flowers to Sick Firemen

The recipient of numerous floral congratulations recently being sent in as new fire commissioner, Edward F McLaughlin's first official act was to have the flowers distributed among the injured and sick firemen confined to sick beds.

He summoned Fire Chief Samuel F. Bennett and from him learned that there were eight firemen in hospitals, six in the City Hospital, one in the Haymarket Square Relief Hospital and one in the Massachusetts General Hospital. Then he ordered his flowers sent to these men with his kindest regards and best wishes.

HOW TO "REDUCE" REDUCING DIETS

The Appetite Will Demand Less Food If Sugar Is Part of the Diet

Too many reducing diets are lacking in satisfying qualities. According to a nationally known food scientist, every reducing diet ought to contain some sugar for the "well-filled" feeling it produces.

Such a use of sugar in the diet means that one can eat the minimum of essential foods and not go away from the table hungry. As far as sugar being fattening, medical science points out that sugar has no more fattening value than other carbohydrates—and far less than fats. The stout people of the world are, by no means, always big sugar eaters. It is the amount of food in general that produces fat—not sugar alone.

An example of a good "reducing" meal that will satisfy the appetite is a generous green salad and a sweet dessert. A consideration of this menu will be of value in planning other meals. The truth of the statement, "A bit of sweet makes the meal complete," will be apparent very quickly.

Sugar as a flavor for vegetables, stewed and fresh fruits, also increases their satisfying qualities and makes the meal enjoyable. There is no need to be unhappy when reducing. Eat less food and enjoy it more. The Sugar Institute.

Experts Conduct All-Day Checkup to Solve Governor Square Traffic Problem

40,000 CARS IN GOVERNOR SQ.

Governor sq congested by automobile traffic? Not at all

Kept in the proper alley by markers and policemen 40,000 cars a day move through the square Boston's great focal point for vehicular traffic from the west

In fact, no automobile is tied up in the square longer than 90 seconds, sometimes much less.

The 40,000 cars passing through the square during the day is an increase over previous years by several thousand

Two proposals for the construction of a subway under Governor sq were advanced at a conference at the State House of General Court, city of Boston and Boston Elevated representatives, but no agreement was reached.

One proposal calls for rental of 4½ per cent to be paid by the Elevated with any deficit falling on the company to be paid by cities and towns in the metropolitan transit district. The other provided that the Supreme Court shall decide what the cities and towns shall pay toward the improvement.

Legislation will be drafted by the corporation counsel of Boston and the counsel for the Elevated trustees for presentation at a resumption of the conference today. Public hearings will be conducted to hear the views of the taxpayers who will be involved

Mystery Bones Proved Specimens

The "murder mystery" created by the finding of the skeletons of a hand and foot, both from the right side of a human being, dwindled last night when Associate Medical Examiner William J Brickley told police of the East Dedham st. station that the members had been in a preservative for some time and possibly had been medical school specimens

The find was made in Claremont st., South End, a narrow alley which is partly used as a dumping place and "graveyard" for old rivers.

STUDENT TO GET LONG TRIP

A free trip to South America this summer will be given to some student at Boston University's college of business administration who fills the condition of the Washington Irving Bullard prize contest

This contest was started last year and the winner, J. Chesley Stewart, was given a trip to Europe

This year the basis for the award will be active participation in school functions, financial self help and a paper answering five of 10 questions submitted

The questions are

1—What are the cultural and academic advantages of foreign travel and acquaintance with foreign languages and customs?

2—To what extent is the future economic and industrial development of New England dependent upon research laboratories?

3—Has the average wage earner the economic right to own an automobile?

4. At times a textile mill can sell its product only at a price in sufficient to cover the entire cost of production. Should, or should not, the mill sell under such circumstances? Why?

5. How can you prove that New England is neither industrially nor commercially decadent?

6. What may New England manufacturers learn from their competitors in other sections of the country in regard to intensively cultivating foreign trade?

7. To what extent should New England quality products and the inherited mechanical skill of New England craftsmen be stressed in marketing New England goods?

8. Are those qualities the most important present-day factors contributing to the high standing of New England's manufactured goods?

9. Is instalment buying a favorable or unfavorable factor in general prosperity?

10 Should immigration restriction regulations similar to those applied to European countries be applied to Canada and Mexico?

10 In what ways can the commerce of United States with South America be most profitably developed?

Held in $5000 on Polygamy Charge

Pleading not guilty to indictments charging him with a polygamous marriage to Helen J. Sharon of Medford, Feb. 2, and falsifying information in an application for a marriage license, Wilfred S. Nichols, alias Scanlon, was held in $5000 for trial Friday when arraigned before Judge James H. Sisk in Middlesex Superior Criminal Court at East Cambridge yesterday.

Nichols, according to the police, while living apart from his wife and three children, Feb 2, went through a marriage ceremony with Miss Sharon at the Episcopal Church in Medford and lived with her in the Fellaway, Medford

Convenient Hanging for Depressed Wool Men

The wool industry may be depressed and beset by tariff restrictions, but why rub it in?

Some practical joker, with an ironic sense of humor, today suggested to the wool men of Boston an easy way out of their difficulties.

Swinging from a trolley pole on Summer st., opposite the South Station, in the heart of the wool district, was a bespoke noose.

COMPENSATION IS ARGUED

Organized labor representatives and representatives of the insurance companies were on opposite sides of a controversy waged before the legislative committee on labor and industry at a hearing on a bill for the creation of a State fund for workingman's compensation.

Martin T. Joyce, secretary of the Massachusetts Federation of Labor, Joseph J. Cabral, its president John J. Kearney, Joseph LaFontaine and Thomas O'Hare, other labor union officials, advanced arguments in favor of the legislation

Leading the opposition was John J. Downs, counsel for the Insurance Federation of Massachusetts who pointed out that the bill has been before the Legislature 18 years and has been rejected each year

SHOTS FELL ONE IN STORE BREAK

A burglar is in City Hospital suffering from a bullet wound, and his companion escaped, after two patrolmen swooped down on them early today while they were robbing the sub-postal station in the Savin Hill drug store, Savin Hill ave., Dorchester

The man who was shot as he was making a getaway from the rear door is about 19 years old and refuses to divulge his name. An officer is guarding him

While Patrolmen Orrin Delaney and Joseph Abban were patrolling Savin Hill ave., they noticed two men in the drug store. Abban covered the front door and Delaney went to the rear. Just as Delaney got to the door the two men rushed out and started toward Sidney st. Delaney commanded the men to stop, but they kept on, so he fired three shots. Abban rushed around to the rear door and saw the men fleeing. He fired and one of the pair fell. Deaney is positive that he wounded the second man

The shooting aroused neighbors, who telephoned the Parker street police station and the patrol wagon and a squad of officers were rushed to the scene

The police immediately started a search for the escaped man who is described as 17 years of age, five feet, six inches tall, weight about 125 pounds, light complexion, brown jacket and a light cap

The police found that the store had been ransacked, the men stealing money and stamps

Stamps and a small sum of money was found on the wounded man at the hospital. The postal station cash box was found on the floor, and the police think the man who got away had most of the stolen money and stamps.

Three Robbins Seen Today as Sign Spring Is Here

Three small robbins perched and chirped on an abutment in front of 338 Harvard st. today, indicating, weather forecasters say, an early approach of spring.

Verification of this is vouched for by Inspector Wellington D. Plateman of the auto squad of the bureau of criminal investigation at Cambridge police headquarters.

"Bootleggers will drive up and down Boston streets boldly displaying truck loads of labelled whiskey, without danger of arrest or interference by State authorities."

This was the picture of what may be expected if Massachusetts repeals her Baby Volstead law, according to Bishop William F. Anderson, speaking today at Lenten services in Tremont Theater.

"Only federal authorities would have power to stop these bootleggers," the Methodist church head told a large audience of members of Greater Boston Church Federation.

"To the citizens of this great, historic Commonwealth want that?" he challenged

Bishop Anderson said that repeal of the law was no way to "nurture the soul of life of the youth of our State."

"The wall of the wets for personal liberty," he continued, "is a travesty upon all decency."

"Massachusetts would become a veritable heaven for bootleggers" predicted the speaker. He said they would come here from all over the nation.

The theme today was the familiar Biblical injunction warning a man against "gaining the whole world, yet losing his soul."

The preacher tomorrow in the same theater will be Rev. Philip H. Clifford, D. C., pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Boston.

Fractures Skull in Fall Against Car

When he stepped from the curbing on Harrison ave., near Plymptom st., South End, and fell headfirst against the door of a sedan passing at the time, Christos Mathews, 24, of Meta st., South End, received a compound fracture of the skull. At City Hospital his name is on the danger list.

STRENGTH TEST UPHELD

Viewpoints of a special recess commission on the recommendations of 15 bills were presented by Representative Francis J. Hurley, Dorchester, to the legislative committee.

The committee took up each bill separately and obtained some widely divergent views, chief among them being the opposition of Elliot H. Goodwin, chairman of the civil service commission, to any elimination of the strength test in the case of entrance examinations.

Two members of the committee, Senator Newland H. Holmes of Weymouth and Representative Albert L. Potter of Gardner, expressed their dissatisfaction with the manner in which the civil service department had treated cases in which constituents of theirs were involved

Sen. Joseph J. Mulhern, Dorchester, Democrat, who repeatedly has been at odds with Governor Allen in matters pertaining to the police and civil service commissioners, said that the civil service controversies have been settled by the governor's action in reappointing Goodwin.

New Gillette Razors on Sale Tomorrow

Twenty-seven thousand American men helped the Gillette Safety Razor Co. create its new razor and blades, which go on sale in 150,000 retail stores throughout the United States, Canada and Cuba tomorrow morning, after months of secret production and distribution

Frank A. Fahey, vice-president and general manager, made formal announcement of details concerning the new products today. The big South Boston plant of the Gillette Co., it was revealed, is now turning out 60,000 new razors and 2,700,000 new blades a day, operating on a 24 hour basis. This production will have to be continued, it was stated, in order to meet demands for the new implements. It was stated further that the company's entire output for 1930 is already sold.

Two new features of the Gillette are the cut-out corners of the blade and the fact that neither razor nor blade need be dried after using.

Reduce the Acid

In sick stomachs—instantly

Sick stomachs, sour stomachs and indigestion usually mean excess acid. The stomach nerves are overstimulated. Too much acid makes the stomach and intestines sour.

Alkali kills acid instantly. The best form is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia, because one harmless, tasteless dose neutralizes many times its volume in acid. Since its invention, 50 years ago, it has remained the standard with physicians everywhere

Take a spoonful in water and your unhappy condition will stop. Phillips' Milk of Magnesia is sold in five minutes. Then you will always know what to do. Crude and harmful methods will never appeal to you. Go prove this for your own sake. It may save a great many disagreeable hours.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. 25c and 50c a bottle—any druggist.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

$10,000, ASKED IN DEATH THREATS

Manager of Music House and Singer Ordered to Pay or Go on "Ride"

Death threats and a demand for $10,000 received by Frank L. Rice, New England manager of the Witmark music publishing house, and radio tenor, Frank Machado, both of Washington st., Dorchester, have resulted in a police guard for the two men and a search for the writer.

The letters were received at the office of the company at 168 Tremont st., Monday. One, addressed to Rice, was mailed in Cambridge, Sunday night.

The sender had cut his message out of bits of magazines and painstakingly pasted it together. It read, $10,000 or be taken for a ride send money order Gen Del Cambridge Silence"

It mentioned a name which police are checking up. The other letter was mailed in Boston and addressed to Machado at the same address and the message was, "Stay at home or get a bullit."

At first the men thought that the notes were the work of practical jokers, but following the letters came many telephone calls. A male voice would ask for one or the other of the men at the office, but as they answered the call, the party hung up the receiver.

It seemed to them as though someone were trying to keep in touch with their movements. The notes and a report on the matter were turned over to Special Officers William Condon and George Gardner of LaGrange st. station. On both of the letters, signs of finger prints were discovered and the police believe that they will be able to trace the sender by this means

Rice is widely known in music publishing circles and Machado has achieved a reputation as a radio tenor.

Two Harvard Dances at Longwood Towers

Two Harvard fraternity dances will be held at Longwood Towers tomorrow night. The Miami Triad fraternities, which include the Phi Delta Theta fraternity, Beta Theta Pi fraternity and the Sigma Chi fraternity, will hold their second dance at Longwood Towers this season in the main ballroom, under the direction of M. R. Herrick of the Harvard Business School, assisted by E C Mower, Harvard law school and Paul Stratton, Harvard law school.

In the Arling ballroom, the Gaynor Club of Harvard business school will also hold their second dance of the season at Longwood Towers. P. A. Meyer is the chairman of the dance committee and is assisted by the Gaynor Club officers, of whom J. Fred Kistler is group president, Paul Spraggles, secretary, and Wilson Osler, treasurer.

POSSES' HUNT ENDS AFTER 10 DAYS

Body of Abraham Delorey, a Trapper, Discovered Where Police Believe He Fell

Search for Abraham Delorey, 61, missing Winchester man, ended early today with discovery of his body in a railroad culvert in the Black Ball pond district.

Patrolmen John Donoghy, Edward O'Connell and John Hogan found the body as they were beginning the 10th day of search in which Boy Scouts and private posses had aided.

Dr. Vernon C. Stewart, medical examiner, after viewing the body, reported death as accidental.

Delorey left his home the night of Feb. 24 to set traps in the vicinity of Black Ball pond. When he failed to return home the next day a search was made and police found Delorey's bag on the bank of the pond. The pond and several others nearby were dragged but without avail.

The culvert is about half a mile from where he had set his traps. It is the theory of the police that in walking back home he stumbled into the culvert and was drowned.

Delorey was a widower and resided at 635 Main st., Winchester. He is survived by three daughters, all married.

TERCENTENARY PLAN OUTLINED

Mrs. Eva Whiting White, president of the Women's Educational and Industrial Union and chairman of the mayor's committee on participation, outlined at the Women's Republican Club the plans for the tercentenary celebration.

Centers of activities throughout the summer are to be the Boston Common and the Charles river embankment, said the former Mrs. White said, it is planned to erect a large platform on the Charles at the site where a series of operas will be given. Upon the embankment is hoped to have a series of the pop concerts that were received with so much public enthusiasm last year and it is also planned to be the center of "some sort of spectacular historical display."

Among the features enumerated were a series of 10 floats a week for 10 weeks depicting historical episodes in the 300 years of the Massachusetts Bay Colony, these to pass through the city from the Back Bay to the Charles river embankment.

Gets 13 Months in Gun Toting Case

Sentences totaling 13 months were imposed in Municipal Court today on Edward Murray, 27, of West Springfield st., captured by Patrolmen Fred C. Hoey and John Murphy after a battle. Murray was given six months for possession of a Luger rifle pistol, six months for assault with a dangerous weapon on Bernard Bloom, taxi driver, and one month for assault and battery on Patrolman Hoy.

According to police, Bloom was driving Murray to Revere when the latter thrust the pistol into his back and threatened to shoot.

Appeals "Fire Nuisance" Fine

Joseph L. Baggs of Cambridge st., Allston, charged with maintaining a fire nuisance by allowing rubbish and paper boxes to remain in a tenement in Parker st., for 47 days, was found guilty by Judge Charles S. Sullivan in Charlestown Municipal Court and was fined $25.

The complaint against the defendant was made by Fireman William H. Connor of Fire Headquarters. The penalty is $5 for each day for failing to remove the rubbish after being officially notified to do so. Defendant appealed and was held in $700 bail for the Superior Court.

Hundreds of commuters at the South Station sprinted for safety today when locomotive No. 1361, hauling a New York express train, failed to stop at its proper place and ploughed into bumper No. 13. No one was injured. The engine was driven by Engineer Henry Londen, a veteran of the road.

NAME LEADERS OF FUND DRIVE

Completion of the executive committee in charge of the $43,500 campaign to cover all needs of the Boston Y. W. C. A. and the Metropolitan Student Y. W. C. A. until 1932 was announced at campaign headquarters, 140 Clarendon st.

The committee, under the chairmanship of Mrs. Thomas M. Claflin, includes Mrs. Lauredon Frothingham, Mrs. John L. Grandin, Jr., Mrs. Norman F. Gregory, Mrs. C. Douglas Mercer, Mrs. Frank A. Pemberton, Mrs. Richard K. Thorndike, and Mrs. Charles Todd Wolfe, executive secretary of the Y. W. C. A.

Mrs. John L. Grandin, Jr., in turn heads the committee in charge of securing preliminary gifts. Vice-chairmen of this group are Mrs. Robert G. Dodge, Mrs. John H. Harwood, Mrs. Richard K. Thorndike, Mrs. R. Alden Thresher, Mrs. Robert Hallowell, Mrs. Manning Emery, Jr., and Mrs. Samuel Bigham.

Of the fund sought, $35,000 is asked to make possible the necessary renovation of the residence for low-salaried girls operated by the Y. W. C. A. at 40 Berkeley st, and $7,000 is needed to provide for a first payment on the mortgage on the new Clarendon st. building.

Seek Authority to Amend Tunnel Bill

Authorization for an amendment in the bill to give the city of Boston the choice to build either a bridge or a tunnel across the harbor to East Boston was urged on the House committee on rules at a hearing on Mayor Curley's bill containing a provision for that legislation.

President Harriman of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, Representative Charles S. Sullivan, Jr., of Charlestown, F. H. Fay of the Boston planning board and Thomas H. Balodeau, Boston's legislative agent, favored the amendment and all agreed that the question of whether it should be a bridge or a tunnel now has narrowed down to a question of cost with a reservation regarding the requisite restrictions for a bridge which may be imposed by the War Department.

Bostonians Off on West Indies Cruise

The Republic of the United States now sailing today for a 16-day West Indies cruise from Philadelphia carried the following Boston people: Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Broadhurst, Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Wing, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Brown, Jr., Mrs. H. C. Snow, Mrs. F. R. Morrow, Mr. and Mrs. Frank McCann, Miss Lena Thompson, Mrs. F. F. Sidwell, Miss Helen H. Allen, Miss Helen G. Kirby and Mr. Hargid Lockwood.

Hundreds of persons crowded the concourse at the South Station today when the locomotive of a New York express crashed through the bumper and into the gate leading to the platform.

By a coincidence the engine was No. 1361 and the accident was at track 13. Nobody was injured and some of the passengers on the train were not aware of the accident until they alighted.

Henry Louden, piloting the locomotive, has seen 30 years of service with the New Haven railroad and this was the first incident to mar his record of no accidents.

The train entered the station in a fog with a train of eight coaches. When Louden applied the brakes the locomotive skidded on the tracks and tore through the bumper. The mogul leaped the tracks and was brought up by the iron gates leading from the concourse to the platform.

TUFTS TO OPEN DRIVE TONIGHT

The campaign for the new $1,000,000 physical education plant at Tufts College will be launched tonight at a meeting and dinner for the committee in charge and for representatives from each class at the University Club.

Plans of the entire physical education plant includes, in addition to the gymnasium itself, a football field with accommodations for 10,000 spectators, an adjacent building for housing indoor tennis courts and an indoor cage for the practice of baseball and track events.

FILES PROTEST WITH BOARD ON FULLER BOUT

Attorney Scolponeti Scores Failure to Give the Boxer a Hearing Over His Money

The Massachusetts Boxing Commission was today denounced for its handling of the Sammy Fuller-Zeramby contest by Atty. Joseph A. Scolponeti, in an open letter to Commissioner of Public Safety Alfred F. Foote.

Scolponeti protests against the attitude of the commissioner in refusing to give Fuller, whose money was held up, a hearing.

"You had sanctioned a contract which specifically indicated that money should be forfeited if in the opinion of the referee and the judges there was stalling, faking or quitting," the letter said.

"Your referee by his decision declared it no contest. It meant intentional misconduct. By his decision he declared misconduct and bad faith. This contest violated the statute and the contract existing between the Garden and the contestants. What justification has your commissioner for conduct of this character?"

Commissioner of Public Safety Foote, when seen today, said he understood the matter was before the courts and that the request for a hearing at this time was in the nature of a "fishing expedition."

LEGION NAMES C. A. NORTON

The directors of the American Legion national convention, which is to be held in Boston in October of this year, have voted to make Clement A. Norton, city councilor from Ward 18 and superintendent of Commonwealth Pier, the national registration officer for the convention.

This is a very important assignment since it calls for the handling of a large sum of registration money which comes from all over the country, and, also, Registrar Norton must see to it the thousands of Legion delegates who come here receive their proper credentials and various certifications.

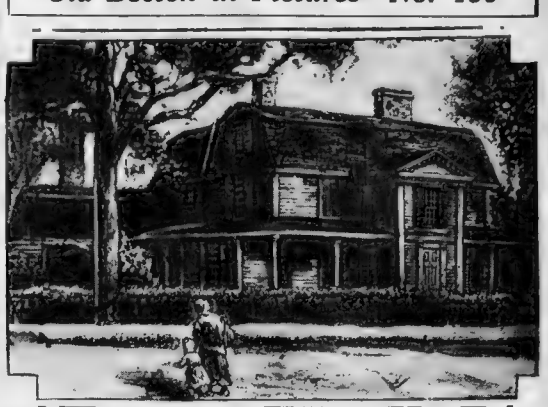
More than 300,000 Legionnaires are expected to visit Boston during the convention and Registrar Norton will enlist the services of 500 legionnaires from various parts of the Commonwealth to assist him in this work, together with the headquarters staff of the Legion convention committee.

Local Control for Overnight Camps

With Reps. Bell of Somerville and Day of Salem dissenting, the committee on public health has reported a bill which will give cities and towns the right to make such regulations as they may deem necessary for the licensing and supervising of overnight camps.

The bill is one which has caused considerable controversy within the public health committee, many of those in favor of the measure urging that the State Department of Public Safety should have the right to issue licenses and arrange for supervision of overnight camps wherever located, by the State constabulary.

Old Boston in Pictures—No. 199



THE Hallowell house stood at Centre and Boylston sts., Jamaica Plain. It was built about 1738. Capt. Benjamin Hallowell, its loyalist owner, quit the house in April, 1775. During the Siege of Boston the house was used as a hospital. The estate was regained in 1801 by Capt. Hallowell's son, Ward Nicholas Hallowell, who filed claim in the right of his mother and assumed her maiden name of Boylston. More pictures of Old Boston will be printed in the Boston Evening American.

FATHER FINN IN B. U. TALK

A general invitation to hear Father William Finn of New York tomorrow is issued by Prof. H. Augustine Smith of Boston University's School of Religious Education, to everyone who is interested in Gregorian music and the unique concert choir known as the Paulist Choristers of New York.

Father Finn will speak at 9 o'clock tomorrow evening in Fox Hall, dormitory of the Boston University School of Religious Education, 20 Mt. Vernon st., under the auspices of the college department of fine arts, of which Prof. Smith is director.

Father Finn will discuss "The Contribution of the Catholic Church to the Development of Polyphonic Music."

Father Finn, a native of Boston, was a student at the New England Conservatory of Music and a graduate student of Samuel Brenton Whitney. Previous to his ordination he was organist of the Redemptorist Mission Church of Boston and organized the first New England Catholic boys' and men's choir to sing a complete service.

Maj.-Gen. Brown to Turn Over Command

Maj.-Gen. Preston Brown, for four years in command of the First Corps area, will on Saturday turn over his command to Brig.-Gen. Meriwether L. Walker and bid farewell to the officers and staff at the Army Base.

Military exercises, with a guard of honor and a band will mark the transfer of command.

Gen. Brown was recently appointed to succeed Maj.-Gen. Wood as deputy chief of staff in Washington, and will assume his new duties Monday.

Belmont Recounts of Votes Tomorrow

Recounts of the Belmont vote for assessor and school committee will be held tomorrow.

A petition was filed by John J. Fitzpatrick, defeated by Winthrop D. Connor 1991 to 1374. The third candidate, William C. Swain, polled 1206 votes.

Helen D. Garrity, defeated for the school committee by 50 votes, also petitioned for a recount. The vote for school committee was Howard C. Gobb, 2121; Charles Jaynes, 2535; Helen D. Garrity, 2535.

Law Editor to Address Students

Prof. Charles W. Havice, executive-secretary, announced today that Frederick Bernays Wiener, note editor of the Harvard Law Review, will be the speaker at the Northeastern Student Union noon-hour program next Tuesday in the Huntington Building.

Wiener will speak on "The Creole Claimant," a stirring romantic tale built around the longest American litigation on record.

Coming Events at Huntington School

At Huntington School assembly exercises tomorrow evening, the students will be entertained by Visscher and Baker will known pianists.

Prof. R. E. Rogers of M. I. T. will be the guest speaker at the Literary Club banquet March 28. The Huntonians, school orchestra, will give an assembly program April 4. The date of the annual Father and Son Banquet is April 26.

Three Are Hit and Injured by Autos

Three persons, two women and a man, were injured seriously in three separate automobile accidents occurring in various parts of the city within a few minutes of each other last night. The three victims all pedestrians hit by automobiles while crossing the street, are at City Hospital.

Most serious hurt was Cleta Matthews, 18, 688 Harrison ave., Roxbury. He was hit when he attempted to cross the street near his home.

Miss Catherine McMahon, 55, of 33 East Concord, Brookline, was struck as she crossed Commonwealth ave. at Exeter st. Back Bay. She was taken to the hospital by the driver of the car, Manton W. McCrea, of the latter address.

POLICE BATTLE FIVE IN HOLDUP

A robbery victim and two police men battled five youths into submission early today on Commercial st., near North End Park, after a wild rough and tumble fight within earshot of the harbor police station.

Anabal Silva, 50, of Fourth st., Cambridge, was on his way home when five youths jumped from an auto and attacked him. They took $16 but he shouted for help and Patrolman Richard Patterson of Hanover st. division responded.

As Patterson entered the fray he whistled for help and Patrolman James Broderick of the harbor police went to his aid. Those arrested, charged with robbery, are Frank Wahare, 23, of Columbus rd., Dorchester; Rosario Lupo, 20, of Battery st., North End; Nicholas Bruno, 23, Topliffe st., Dorchester; Edward McMahon, 24, Dewitt st., South End, and Frank Moskewicz, 19, of Thorndike st., North End.

RIZZO SLAYERS FROM NEW YORK

Two New York gangsters who told a taxicab driver that they would "plunge him through the back" if he didn't drive them to a hotel in the West End and "keep his mouth shut" were being sought by the Boston police for the slaying of Angelo Rizzo, 28-year-old North End gangster whose body was found in a cellar on Prince st., North End.

The driver, who picked up the men in the North End, appeared at police headquarters and gave Inspector Harry M. Pierce of the homicide squad the first clue to the solution of Rizzo's slaying.

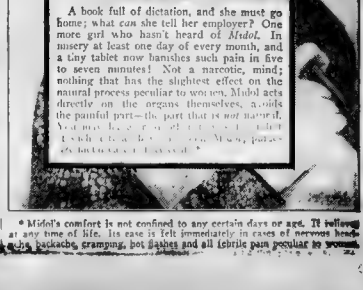
Later it developed that Rizzo was slain by bullets fired from a police revolver stolen from the home of Sergeant Patrick J. Melville of the Milk street station in August, 1929.

The taxi driver, whose name was withheld, picked up the slayers on Prince st. only a few minutes after the shooting and drove them to a hotel in the West End. He assured Inspector Pierce that he would be able to identify them.

Seniors to Enjoy Raps at Faculty

Senior Week at Boston University College of Liberal arts will be culminated tomorrow evening with the senior-faculty supper in Jacob Sleeper Hall, when the seniors take advantage of their annual opportunity to unpoon the faculty.

As usual, the supper will be a "preferential" affair. In addition to the informal speeches, skits, and parodies, the senior members of the college dramatic club will present a sketch, "The Crimson Cocoon" and a faculty quartet will render a series of songs.



A book full of dictation, and she must go home; what can she tell her employer? One more girl who hasn't heard of Midol. In misery at least one day of every month, and a tiny tablet now banishes such pain in five to seven minutes! Not a narcotic, mind; nothing that has the slightest effect on the natural process peculiar to women. Midol acts directly on the organs themselves, avoids the painful part—the part that is not natural. Yet may be [illegible] headache, cramping, hot flashes and all [illegible] pain peculiar to women.

BIG HIT HIS NEXT ON SCREEN

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Universal Service Motion Picture Editor

Copyright, 1930, by Universal Service, Inc.

NEW YORK, March 6—Al JOLSON is speeding to New York on one of those quick trips so frequent to coast commuters. Al is on his way East to take a look at "Sons of Guns" now running here. United Artists has purchased it for him for his first picture, and he wants to take a look at the stage version before he tries to put it on the screen.

I believe I am right when I say that Mammy's boy friend has one more picture to make for Warner Bros. They tell me his last Warner picture (titled "Mammy" is going to put him high in the favorite class. United Artists is apparently going to do everything to capitalize the Jolson voice and personality. George M. Cohan, who was to have directed his first picture, has decided not to come to California, but there will be a director chosen who will let Al's voice play an important part.

PROBABLY Peter B. Kyne's best fiction is "Never the Twain Shall Meet." At least when the story appeared in Cosmopolitan it was read by the world and his wife. Then it was made in the movies in silent form. But that is past history. Present history places it at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios with Lionel Barrymore as director. No cast has yet been chosen, but the colorful locale of the South Sea Islands and America will give some lucky boy and girl a good break.

'VOICE COACH' WITH M-G-M

FOR the first time, a motion picture company has created the position of "voice coach" and has engaged a scientific vocal specialist to assist players and singers in getting the best possible results in voice reproduction Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, in taking this step, announces the appointment of Dr. P. M. Marafioti, teacher of many Metropolitan opera and prominent concert singers.

Dr. P. M. Marafioti

Fleming Ward

Dr. Marafioti, who is a reno wend throat specialist, has given up his practice and gone to Hollywood to begin his new duties at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios.

"All apparatus for reproducing in motion pictures has been perfected," remarked Dr. Marafioti. "It is just a matter of perfecting the mechanics of voice transmission. One of the main difficulties, for example, has been with the letter 's' and other sibilant sounds, which are mishandled by singers and speakers. All these faults of pronunciation can be ironed out by voice culture.

"Anyone who can speak can also sing, but no person can be a good singer until he or she has a special aptitude in that direction, a mental predilection, so to speak. Good writers, for example are by no means always good orators. But any person can be taught to avoid the common errors in speech and to transmit better and clearer phrasing with much less effort in other words, to get the maximum results with the expenditure of the minimum of energy, through understanding the principles of freedom and resonance."

Grace Moore, noted Metropolitan soprano, recently placed under long-term contract by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, traces her later success in musical comedy and opera to Dr. Marafioti's tutelage. Dr. Marafioti was Gloria Swanson's vocal instructor, and among his other pupils are Gertrude Lawrence, Julia Culp, Marguerite d'Alvarez, Rosa Low, Maria Kurenko, Cobina Wright and Dickie Gordon.

Stage Who's Who

ONE of the favorite players in the old New York Lyceum Company, Helen Dauvray, was an important factor in deciding the career of Fleming Ward, prominent in the support of Thomas Mitchell in "Little Accident," this joyously human comedy at the Plymouth. Twenty years ago it seemed certain that young Ward would adopt engineering as a profession, but the charm and talent of Miss Dauvray, who graced so many of the Frohman productions in those days, worked her spell and the nephew went on the stage. In these past 18 years he has appeared in numerous New York productions and enjoyed the association of such stars as Mrs. Fiske, Henry Miller, Otis Skinner, Ruth Chatterton and Frank Keenan.

Classic drama and the still more popular melodrama, such as "High Stakes," in which he appeared with Lowell Sherman, have proved his versatility.

"NEW MOON" COMEDIENNE HUB GIRL

Esther Howard

Miss Howard had her first stage experience with the Castle Square Stock Co. in this city when Henry W. Savage had a chance to observe her. He was then arranging to revive his success, "Everywoman," and engaged Esther for the role of Youth in this morality play. After that she played for several years in the dramatic repertoire of Grace George.

No one suspected her comedy ability till Edgar MacGregor produced "The Sweetheart Shop," a musical comedy which ran for a year at the Knickerbocker in New York. He saw in her possibilities for a comedienne and cast her accordingly. Her success was immediate and since then she has given up all early ambitions of playing ballet and Ophelia and has devoted herself entirely to the pleasant task of making audiences laugh.

SIX CYLINDER CAR BALKS CAMERA

SPECIAL mechanism had to be used by King Vidor to screen the roadway running shots of Marion Davies and Elliott Nugent, driving in a roadster for the opening scenes in "Not So Dumb," now at Loew's State.

The scenes, continuous in automotive movement as well as dialogue, first were tried with a six-cylinder car. The engine explosions, however, were all out of time with high sound-wave frequency of the microphone. After some technical adjustments were made on the microphone frequency, an eight-cylinder machine was tried out. In this manner motor disturbances were reduced to a soothing hum throughout the dialogue passages.

Vidor shot these scenes on a quiet road near Pasadena, mounting his cameras and microphones on a platform built over the forward bumper. The microphones and camera motors were connected up to the recording truck, which ran ahead, by means of flexible cables.

Nugent, besides remembering his dialogue, also had to watch the wheel and speedometer of the roadster, having to keep it exactly at 20 miles an hour to maintain an even pace with the sound truck.

Included in the supporting cast of the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer starring vehicle are Raymond Hackett, Sally Starr, Julia Faye, William Holden, Franklin Pangborn and Donald Ogden Stewart. The film is an adaptation of "Dulcy," the famous stage farce

Copley Tickets Await New Chamber Members

E. E. Clive, recently elected member of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, is assisting in the new membership drive now being conducted.

MET SCREENS WAR DRAMA

ONE of the great events of American history, the surrender of Robert E. Lee to Ulysses S. Grant, is reproduced in surroundings similar to those in which it originally took place in "Only the Brave," at the Metropolitan today.

A section of one of the huge sound stages at the Paramount Hollywood studio was transformed into an exact duplicate of the room in the farmhouse at Appomattox, Virginia, where the American Civil War came to an end.

BICKFORD HAS ROLE IN NEW GARBO FILM

GRETA GARBO is to make her talking picture debut at Loew's State next week in "Anna Christie," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's all-talking adaptation of Eugene O'Neill's modern classic stage drama. Charles Bickford, born and brought up within the shadow of Harvard sq., Cambridge, has the big role opposite the great Swedish star. The Boston boy's real life has been crowded with almost as many hectic adventures as was his part in Cecil B. De Mille's "Dynamite,"

TALKING FILM MAGNET FOR STAGE FOLK

WITH a single exception, all the leading members of the cast of "She Couldn't Say No," at the Washington St. Olympia and Fenway Theaters tomorrow, have had long experience on the stage. Winnie Lightner, one of the stars of the screen drama, has for a long time been recognized as a superb comedienne. She has been in vaudeville for many years, appeared opposite W. C. Fields in "The Scandals" and was also seen in "Gay Paree." Winnie's worth as a comedienne was immediately recognized, by the great movie producers and as a result Miss Lightner was given one of the leading roles in the "Gold Diggers of Broadway," in which she made her debut on the talking screen.

Chester Morris, sharing honors with Miss Lightner, is the son of a theatrical family and went on the stage when he was 15

DEATH CLOSES CAREER OF GLADSTONE

London, March 6—The Rt. Hon Viscount Herbert John Gladstone, youngest son of William E. Gladstone, famous statesman, died today as a result of an attack of bronchitis.

Lord Gladstone was long prominent in politics and in the councils of the Liberal party

He was House Secretary from 1905 to 1910, and his career there was stormy as the suffragette agitation, with hunger strikes and picketing, was at its height.

His greatest prominence with the "man in the street" came in the trial of a sensational law case in 1927, when he vindicated the honor of his famous father, William Ewart Gladstone, against a charge made in a book by a Captain Peter Wright that the great statesman "founded the great tradition, since observed by so many of his followers and successors with such pious fidelity, in public to speak the language of highest and strictest principles and in private to pursue and possess every sort of woman."

Try This Japanese Foot Remedy

Cools, Little and Makes the Feet Feel Fine

Foot sufferers gather round, get right on close and listen. Here's good news for you.

The real "Step It Fast" is here at last. Ice Mint, the New Discovery made from a Japanese product, is said to stretch and quickly and all foot misery.

Hard corns, soft corns, aching corns between the toes, also toughened calloused bottoms, just shrivel up and lift right off. It is wonderful. There is no pain or sore spots when applying Ice-Mint or afterward, and it doesn't sting, irritate or stain.

Think of it: just a touch or two of that cooling, soothing Ice Mint, and real foot joy is yours.

Ice-Mint prevents foot odors and keeps them sweet and comfortable. It is the real Japanese secret for tiny healthy little feet, and keeps you free from winter foot troubles. Every one who has suffered with stubborn corns or tender feet can appreciate the cooling, soothing comfort that it brings, especially women who wear high heeled shoes, and men who have to stand all day on their feet. Try it. Get a few cents worth of Ice-Mint from your druggist today and give your poor tired, suffering burning feet the treat of their lives. There is nothing better.

Challenger Fleet Ready for Road

Here's the fleet of Essex Challengers which participated in Challenge Week, staging two parades and undergoing various tests.

ESSEXS SHOW EFFICIENCY IN TESTS

The aggressiveness of the challenge issued by the new Essex Challenger was reflected by the metropolitan Hudson-Essex dealers throughout Boston during the past week. Designated as National Essex Challenge Week, 6000 Hudson-Essex dealers staged tests and demonstrations in every section of the United States and Canada each day. The cars were pitted against and all comers, and the tests ranged from gasoline economy runs to speed tests.

The fleet of Essex Challengers shown in the picture painted pure white, with appropriate Challenger Week wording lettered on the side participated in two parades this week

On Monday dealers in Boston staged a brake test. This demonstration proved beyond question that the performance of the Essex brakes was of challenging caliber in bringing the car under full control the Essex stopped in considerably less distance that the State requirements at all of the various speeds

Gasoline economy was the feature demonstration on Tuesday. With a visible tank mounted on the dash an Essex Challenger ran 18.2 miles per gallon in the downtown section of Boston, between 12:30 and 2:00 p. m. In the outlying districts where traffic was not so heavy and fewer delays were met with, the Essex Challenger ran 21.4 miles on the gallon

Wednesday morning a telephone call from Washington told of the arrival there on Tuesday afternoon of an Essex Challenger "Sealed In High Gear," which had run over the Lincoln Highway from Jackson, Michigan. This Essex carried a letter from the mayor of Jackson to the Michigan senators lauding the aggressiveness of the Hudson-Essex organization

BAUER ASSAILS GOVERNOR AS "FIX-IT"

Governor Allen was called a "political fixer" by former Mayor Ralph S. Bauer of Lynn, as a result of the governor signing a bill reinstating Patrolman Charles Berry to the Lynn police force

Berry, who served 20 years before being dismissed by Bauer, was fired during the Bauer administration on charges of drunkenness and drunken driving, but at that time has had a special bill in the Legislature to reinstate him, so he could be pensioned

Berry was found not guilty on similar charges in court, but Mayor Bauer dismissed him. Bauer's action was upheld by the Supreme Court, which ruled that Berry had had a fair trial

Bauer in regard to the governor's action in signing the bill to reinstate Berry said

"Here the city government of Lynn, and our governor, have come political friends and run a law enforcement office that the full bench of the Supreme Court declared he had a fair trial and the evidence clearly showed him guilty

"This is another example where political considerations have simply over law enforcement and respect for law on the part of political representatives and weaken the very fundamentals of the government itself. Are we not headed a decadent democracy?"

Letters From Readers

Mental Culture and Crime Control

Editor Boston American:

It is inspiring to see the wide interest, especially in large cities, shown in the teaching and practices of physical culture. The beneficial results are very evident in the improved posture, form and agility of the young people. Many women and men past middle age have also been greatly benefited by this practice

Mental culture in the form of mental gymnastics is also very important. Every person is a dual personality. We hear much about complexes especially the inferiority complex, but how many know how to control or promote a complex?

The criminal mind is a radical group of complexes in defiance of the conscious, moral mind and consequently rules action. An intelligent comprehension of the natural life urges and their proper control, would prevent untold miseries and promote health, prosperity and happiness to an extent unthought of.

Banking Congenial Career for Women

Editor Boston American:

Will women be among the leading bankers of the future? This question has already been agitated among some of the students in Wellesley College. A symposium was recently held at this college under the direction of the economics department. Banking is very well adapted in many ways to women, who have already qualified for it. There are many graduates of women's colleges who are doing excellent work in some features of banking in Chicago and New York

Banking requires patience at times and much versatile ability to meet changes that come and go. In other words, one has to be clever in the best sense of that word, and women are taking to banking more than ever. They give a dignified air to the banking environment

ESTHER R. SPOONER

Thinks Teachers Deserve Increase

Editor Boston American.

More should be said in the daily press about raising the salaries of the Boston school teachers or masters. The Boston School Committee has voted against any increase in salary.

Dr. Joseph V. Lyons of the school committee dissents from the action of that body and expresses it as his personal opinion that teachers should have more salary. There may be a good reason for the action of the school committee, because they are facing the expense of more high schools and place this ahead of the salaries

However, teachers may appeal to the Legislature and the Boston city government may have something to say about this increase later on. Teachers today are deserving of more salary than they are getting and anyone who has taught will endorse this raise.

Harvard Gourmets of 1798 and Today

Editor Boston American:

That student at Harvard who used the newspaper to pack his growl against the culinary departments at that institution, should look at what students at Harvard in 1798, had to put up with and thank his stars that he is not forced to do what students of those days had to do.

Students in 1798 were obliged to go to the kitchen door with their own bowls or pitchers for supper. There they received their modicum of milk or chocolate in their vessel, held in one and their piece of bread in their other. In 1829, a Harvard supper consisted of "tea and cold bread of the consistency of wool."

"Government of Laws Not of Men"

Editor Boston American:

May I use your paper to call the attention of some "Solons" to the wording of the Declaration of Rights in the Massachusetts constitution of 1780, which concludes with the famous phrase. The legislative, executive and judicial branches were to be in seperate hands, it being written to the end that "the Government of the Commonwealth may be a government of laws, and not of men."

I might add that Former Chief Justice Taft in 1923 in an opinion which he read for the United States Supreme Court quoted this phrase as a maxim showing the spirit in which our laws are expected to made and applied

Old Auto Solves Problem at Yale

Editor Boston American.

There is a use for old automobiles. A bright idea struck Howard Lihme of Yale University Senors of the Sheffield scientific school disliked walking a mile or more from their dormitory to laboratory work. So Lihme bought an old, yes, a very shabby looking auto, parked it beside his dormitory and daily takes a group of students to the scientific school. These students are packed in like sardines, some are holding on, standing on the running board. One student generally gets on top of the covering, which is very shaky. But altogether Lihme has built up a good trade. They ride from Pierson Sage sq. to the medical school.

Henpecked Hubbies Organize Union

Editor Boston American.

An item in an English paper about henpecked, husbands interested me. They have organized in Liverpool. Just think, more than 400 men have signed their allegiance to this small army of discontented husbands. They cite their woes to one another at the meetings and are dead against a nagging wife

Husbands feel better after they deliver their marital woes and receive much help from hearing about the troubles of other husbands, getting pointers how to overcome a talking wife

The Henpecked Husbands' Union of Liverpool has agreed upon silence as the best antidote to nagging wives. It was universally agreed that nagging of wives about money upset many a husband's equilibrium. Only for nagging, in my opinion, the women would be real angels.

Einstein Puzzles Relativity Prober

Editor Boston American:

I wonder if any of your readers ever tackled Einstein's theory of relativity? I've been at it for over a week. It's a hard nut to crack. You feel youre on the track of grasping it, when someone comes along and asks you to explain it. Then everything that you thought you knew about it falls flat as a pancake. If these are only a dozen men in the world that understand Einstein's abstruse notation, then I cannot belong to that bunch.

He says that motion in an absolute sense is meaningless. Motion is purely relative. I wonder if Einstein ever rode in an auto on a rough, uneven road would he come to this conclusion. However, I am not the one to find any flaws in his theory for I cannot make head or tail of it. I did get nearer to it last week when two of us students just dug deep into it. He considers 186,000 miles a second to be the extreme limit of speed. How many persons really understand the theory of relativity in Boston?

Hundreds of Thousands Of Wise Americans Demand Kruschen Salts

Keeps you in good health all the time—skin clear and body free from fat.

Just think of it—these new, better and different salts were only introduced into America a few months ago—yet a host of intelligent Americans are healthier and happier because of their supreme goodness.

Kruschen Salts are the daily health dose of millions of people the world over—they are the largest selling medicinal salts in Great Britain

One-half teaspoon of Kruschen in a glass of hot water every morning gently but surely stimulates the liver, bowels and kidneys to healthy elimination

But the six vitalizing and rejuvenating salts in Kruschen do more than cause regular elimination—the man or woman who takes them regularly need have no fear of poisons polluting the system which is the cause of many annoying and depressing ills

One bottle of Kruschen Salts (lasts 4 weeks) costs but 85c and one bottle will prove of vast benefit to people who have constipation, headaches, indigestion, nervousness, rheumatism, depression, acidity and auto-intoxication

Not only that but one bottle will bring about body activity—increase in energy, vigor and ambition, sparkling eyes and freedom from pimples and blemishes—millions know all this—you ought to know it

Sold by druggists America over.

No Harm in Pure Cascara

Whenever a coated tongue, bad breath, disordered stomach or "down" feeling tell you it needs a little help to promote normal elimination, you can take Cascarets without any fear of ill effects. Cascarets are a pure vegetable product made from Cascara Sagrada and other time tried and unique vegetable authorities say a body's strengthens the bowel muscles

That's why you can take these pleasant tasting tablets as often as you please—and give them freely to children or old folks. They are not habit-forming, like so many laxatives they make it unnecessary to use violent purgatives that upset the system and soon call for more

Cascarets are sweetened with pure cane sugar and flavored with herbs—a simple eat them like candy. Then sleep right on while they are preparing your intestinal tract for a thorough cleansing in the morning. Cascarets never cause discomfort or that nauseous feeling usually associated with laxatives

The next time you have that bilious, headache, dejected feeling that comes from a disordered stomach—or for any reason you suspect liver and bowels are not functioning just right—take a candy Cascaret.

Braves Display Snap in Exhibition Game Workouts

SISLER MAY BE SHIFTED TO OUTFIELD

By NICK FLATLEY

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 6—The Braves have reached the fun part of the spring training. They are putting on exhibition games each afternoon, and the still sore athletes get a lo' of kick out of that.

They have a chance to kid one another, with a goodly pulse, looks on, and that wasn't possible in the days of drudgery.

Nick Flatley

Two years, brand new park, he thinks Casey and George Sisler will tear off seven inning ware today and tomorrow, as a final preparation for the big league Florida season, with the Yankees.

These lilli give Manager Will. McKechnie a chance to get a peak at his heroes under fire, and Will is anxious to get all the dope going before the games come, with no breaks when experiments may mean losses.

This new manager, like all the rest, says that spring games do not count, but, like all the rest, he breaks his neck to win them. Mac does intend to audite his book around, however, and see what he can see.

He has big Berger parked on third and intends to keep him there. The slugger has a good arm, but does not resemble Pie Traynor otherwise. He may find out what it's all about he certainly will get the chance. Hell be in there against the Yanks Saturday.

If this shop could be converted into an infielder, the club would benefit greatly. He's a fine hitter and there's not too much kick in the so-called regular infield.

Indications that Sisler may be tried in the outfield were evident in the Wednesday game, which incidentally, the Sislers counted 2 to 1. George was out there in the garden and looked pretty good. This great ball player broke into a pitchers' box, settled in the field, to wind up eventually a first as one of the greatest of all time.

If Sisler cannot make the garden grade he will be used as a first base battle. He can help there, in hitting a year ago, and was among the league leaders in driving over runs, which is quite a stunt on a last place club.

George himself thinks he will have a better record at the end of '30 than he had last year.

"I have been hitting better," he explains, "each year since I came back. I find it easier to get started. The ball still looks as big as good as ever." And W. McKechnie wishes George's think will prove itself.

MR. BOSTON

—by JACK CONWAY

Jack Conway

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., March 6—Frank Bruen, general manager of Madison Square Garden Corporation, dropped down to the Seaboard Air Line station this morning to see Mr. Boston start merrily on his way to Boston.

"You may notify Mrs. William Randolph Hearst's Milk Fund committee that I received a cable from Max Schmeling informing me he would arrive in New York by March 15, ready to sign for the Sharkey bout in June," said Bruen.

"Sharkey made the way clear for a million dollar gate for the milk fund show when he eliminated Phil Scott.

"The Sharkey—Schmeling bout will be the most important heavyweight match since Dempsey and Tunney swapped blows at Chicago. It will be the biggest scrap New York has had since the Dempsey-Sharkey tussle of five years ago last July.

"New York had the Tunney-Heeney tussle, but that affair was a dismal flop."

The Sharkey-Schmeling tussle will clear up the heavyweight division and result in either Jack or Max being proclaimed champion," said Mr. Boston.

"Just now it looks as though betting would be even or possibly at 6 to 5, with the showing of the rivals during the last few days of training making the favorite."

MATT HINKLE, famous Cleveland referee and for years one of the foremost boxing promoters in the country, also dropped down to the station to see Mr. Boston on his way home.

"Remember me to Alex MacLean, Eddie Mack and the rest of the gang on Boston," said Matt, recovering from an attack of gallstitis. "I'm going to remain here until April 1 and will then return to Cleveland, where I have a fine home on the lake. I may make a trip to Boston next summer, and if I do I'll look up all of the old crowd."

Matt told Mr. Boston he has retired in business and that he never decided not to take an active interest in boxing in the future.

"I have enough money for Mrs. Hinkle and myself," declared Matt. "I have come to realize that the most important thing in life is one's own health. I spent six weeks in a hospital and that had plenty of time to reflect."

Hinkle was unable to walk when Mr. Boston first met him here three weeks ago. Mr. Boston and George Lee enlisted the aid of Dr. John F. Curran of Worcester, who has been spending a vacation here.

To quote Matt: "Dr. Curran said he would put me on my feet in three days and he did. He worked a miracle."

"MEN of wealth would get much more out of life if they would accept the philosophy of Hinkle," said Mr. Boston. "Most Americans dig early graves for themselves in their eager pursuit of wealth and power.

"They neglect their bodies and never give their brains a rest. They realize their mistake too late. This accounts for the deaths of so many bankers and financiers in the fifties when, if they had given their bodies a chance to play, they would still be enjoying good health.

"JOHNNY BUCKLEY and Jack Sharkey came breezing into the station as the train for Boston prepared to leave.

"Each bid Mr. Boston adieu.

"I'll be back home myself Monday noon," said Buckley.

"I have reservations for home on March 29 but may leave before that," chirped Sharkey. "I want to get into a game of hearts with Bobby Goldman, Tommy MacFarland, Eddie Detine and the rest of the gang back in the Hub."

Toot! Toot!

GOOD GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON

"If you could actually see the ball at the instant after the swinging clubhead meets it, to protect it forward, you would see the ball in a momentary thing a half-inch shape, with the flat side against the club's face. Even this flattened condition, and because of the compression thus generated within itself, the ball rebounds and is away. Knowing this, golf ball experts would tell you that the best form a clubhead could have would be a circular disc. This would produce the absolute maximum of compression, but it would be disadvantageous in golf because of the difficulty of making it meet the ball precisely. The next best to the disc, however, is the bulger-faced clubhead, which, when it is swung into the ball, makes the side of the ball compress back slightly more than in the case with the flat-faced club face. Against the bulger-faced club face the compressed ball would be in the shape of a new moon with the points extending back and the high point of the compressed face of the club in the center of the ball.

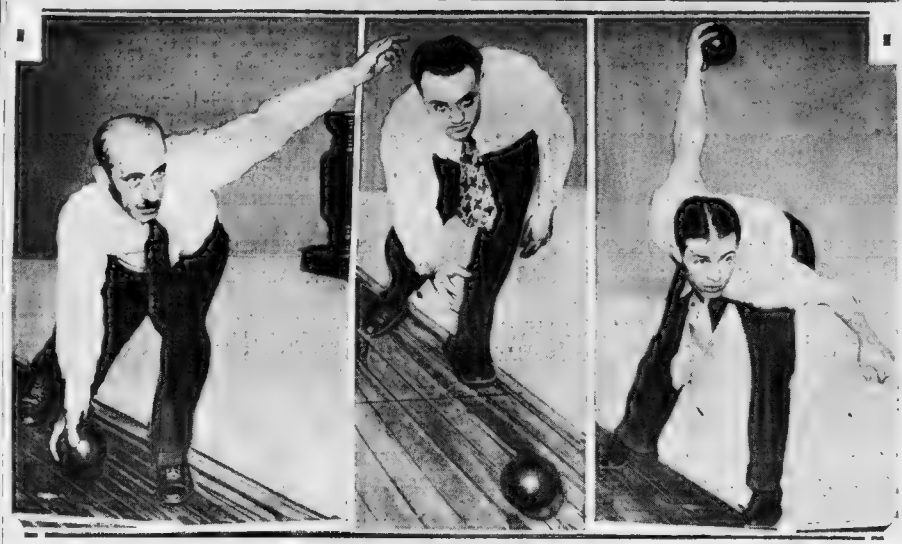
BATTLE TODAY IN TITLE DUCK PIN BOWLING



Joseph A. DeCelles, Reading Club — John Galvin, Jordan Marsh — Al Duncan, Huntington Club

The three men shown in above Evening American staff photos are among the star bowlers who compete today in the Metropolitan Duck Pin championship bowling at the Recreation Alleys on Washington st. The entry list is long and the individual who comes through to victory must earn the award.

GENE GRIEVES OVER MADDEN

Miami Beach, Fla., March 6 (NEA)—Gene Tunney, leaving here today to visit friends in Orlando, expressed his grief at the sudden death of Bartley Madden, well-known heavyweight, in Washington last night.

"He had the greatest heart of any fighting man," said the retired champion when told of Madden's sudden death. "His competitive returns were those of a true sportsman. I do not believe the ring ever had a truer sportsman or a more courageous fighter."

Completely recovered from a serious operation after several weeks convalescing in the Florida sun, Tunney was accompanied in Orlando by Mrs. Tunney and his sister-in-law, Mrs. Edwin S. Dewing of Hartford, Ct.

Bartley Madden Dies After 20-Foot Fall

Washington, March 6 (AP)—A fall of 20 feet from the steps of the Treasury building during a sightseeing trip here brought to an end the career of Bartley Madden, 41-year-old Irish heavyweight, who became famous for his staying qualities against championship contenders.

Madden died in a hospital here last night, a few hours after he had accidentally stepped off the incline. He had stopped for a day in the Capital on his way to New York, from Miami, where he had attended the Sharkey-Scott fight.

Coast Girl Sets New Mark in Florida

St. Augustine Fla., March 6 (AP) Helene Madison, young Seattle, Wash., aquatic star, today was credited with clipping 1 4-5 seconds from the world mark for the 150-yard free-style swim and setting a new record of 1.40 2-5.

Gertrude Ederle made the old record of 1.27 1-5 in Miami in 1925.

Miss Madison's performance was the high spot of a series of contests sponsored by the A. A. U. here last night. It followed closely the setting of a new standard for the 500-yard back stroke event by Miss Eleanor Holm of New York. She negotiated the distance in 5.46 4-5, as compared with the record of 5.58 1-5.

Hull City Defeats Newcastle Eleven

London, March 6 (AP)—Hull City defeated Newcastle United in a replay to-day from the sixth round of the English Football Association Cup competition today by one goal to nothing. The match was played at Hull. The winners meet Arsenal at Leeds in the semi-finals to be played March 22.

By JOE CASHMAN

Pensacola, Fla., March 6 Little Joe Cicero has started in right where he left off last fall.

He hopped off the train, rushed out to the park, jumped into a uniform, grabbed a bat, and started hitting the deliveries of pitchers, who have been in training more than a week, to all corners of the lot.

Then he retired to the outfield and began pulling down drives as though he had been doing it all winter.

He looked every bit as good as he did in Fenway Park during the last 10 days of the 1929 campaign, when he was the sensation of the league both at bat and in the field.

The youngster certainly has improved in the short space of two years. When he first joined the club in the spring of 1928 as a shortstop, he couldn't do anything but hit and he couldn't do that very consistently.

Now he is a finished fly-chaser and hits both often and hard. He is only 19 years old. By the time he is old enough to vote, he should be an outstanding star, if he continues to improve at the rate he has since breaking in.

Another player who looked like the goods in his initial work-out was Bill Sweeney, new first baseman. It didn't take him long to prove to Manager Heinie Wagner that there was no mistake about that .335 average he hung up in the International League last season.

An easy swinging right hander, he hammered the ball hard and far every time he went up to the plate. He showed plenty of ability around the initial sack, too. He might not have looked so good in the field had Phil Todt been present, but he showed enough to convince the audience that he is nobody's fool as a fielder.

Most of the fielders arrived in time to take part in the mid-week practice, and those who didn't came in later, except Jack Rothrock and Jack Winsett, and will work out for the first time today.

The stork is due at the Rothrock home very soon, and Jack has received permission to stay away until the new arrival puts in an appearance.

There are now 43 players in camp: 21 pitchers, five catchers, five outfielders and 10 infielders. They have been divided into two squads.

Champ a Porter

TITLE DUCK PIN MATCHES ON

The metropolitan individual amateur duck pin championship for men will be settled at the Boston Recreation Alleys, 615 Washington st., today. A long and brilliant list of entries has been received.

E. J. Baker of the Central Alleys Cambridge, 62-year old veteran, will be one of the most noted entries due to his age.

The "dark horse" of the tournament seems to be John Galvin of the Jordan Marsh Company team. Johnny carried off one of the prizes in the Huntington tournament last season.

He shows good form and is picked by many of the bowlers as the winner. There is nothing spectacular about his game, but it is very steady.

The tournament is to be strictly amateur. All alley owners and employes are barred. Such stars as O'Lindy, Grant, McLeod, Donovan, Fero, Millar, McConville, Cowen and Hodge are affected by this rule.

Triple Tie in N. Y. Bike Race

New York, March 6 (AP)—Passing of the half-way mark of the six-day bicycle race at Madison Square Garden today found all of the speckled jockeys in top-notch condition for the remainder of the grind.

Nine of the fourteen combinations were closely clustered.

In the three-cornered tie for leadership are the teams of McNamara and Winter, Letourner and Brocardo, and Grimm and Landa. The Georgetti and Guimbratler, and the Belloni and Debeets combinations, considered the two strongest outfits in the race, are only one lap behind.

School Fives in Tech Tournament

Brockton, Chelsea, Medford, Mansfield, Haverhill, Lynn English and Watertown are among the teams already entered in the fifth annual interscholastic basketball tournament, which will be staged by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of next week.

It is expected that other teams will compete in the tourney following the district championships that are being held in different parts of the State.

Bruins Play Two Games Next Week

Next week, the Bruins hav two games scheduled with the only team in the N. H. L. which has broken even with them, the Chicago Blackhawks, considered by many as the biggest stumbling block the Bruins may be forced to meet for the Stanley cup.

The Bruins and Hawks will meet at the Garden on Tuesday night and leave immediately after the game for Chicago where they are listed for the final meeting of the regular season on Thursday.

Manager Cecil Hart of Les Canadiens thought that the American press was "riding" his club for borrowing Roy Worters, the Americans' goalie last week.

Such was far from the case, the criticism was not directed at Les Canadiens, but at the league for sanctioning such a practice. Regardless of the extra expense, every team in the N. H. L. should be obliged to carry a spare goalie or suffer the consequences.

Keep your eyes on the Black-Hawks.

From reports, President Frank Calder has unearthed a fine referee in Eusebe Daigneault, who was recruited from the amateur ranks of Montreal.

Lester Patrick and his New York Rangers will be the guests of Les Canadiens tonight at the Forum, when the Maroons and Flying Frenchmen clash.

As the Rangers have never seen a Canadiens-Maroon battle, Lester Patrick decided to jump into Montreal from Chicago a day ahead of his regular schedule so as to offer his charges an opportunity to witness this classic.

Tex White, the former Pittsburgher and Tubby Paulhus, the ex-Red, will make their first appearance here with New Haven tonight when the Tigers and Eagles mix it up at the Garden.

Pres. C. F. Adams is recovering rapidly from his recent illness and expects to be in as fine fettle as his Bruins during the playoffs.

As the New York Rangers have played four tie games in a row, there is a growing suspicion that Manager Lester Patrick has something up his sleeve. The Rangers are in a position to fail or lose, according to how the Maroons, Canadiens and Ottawa, finish in the International division.

Apparently Les Canadiens are the only Canadian contenders who are willing to meet the Bruins in the long series. The other clubs are of the opinion that the Bruins will go through and therefore the big money will go to the club which challenges Boston to defend the Stanley Cup.

14-YR.-OLD BOY STAR JOCKEY

New Orleans, March 6 (INS)—Turf circles today were recovering from the shock of the discovery that Veryln Smith, apprentice jockey, who was runner-up to Melvin Knight as the champion jockey of last year, was only 14 years old—too young to ride.

Under racing rules a boy cannot ride until he is 16. It was not learned that Smith was only 14 until after he had ridden more than a hundred winners.

George Collins, who believed that the boy was 15, recently sold his contract to the Greentree Stables for $25,000.

English Qualifies 18 for Regimentals

Eighteen English high school athletes qualified in the trial round of the 22nd annual Regimental games which will be held Saturday at the East Armory. Latin school did well, getting 14 into the finals. Mechanics Arts had 12, Commerce and Trade 10 each and Dorchester nine.

One record was equalled. J. M. Driscoll of Dorchester high was clocked in 6.1-5 seconds in the junior dash, which equals the Regimental mark.

Mannie Gerstein, the English high leader, walked through in front of the first batch of runners in the senior 600, in 1 minute 22 3-5 seconds. The record, set by Gus McLennan of Mechanics last winter, is 1 21 2-5.

BENGALS WAR WITH EAGLES AT GARDEN

IN spite of their 3 to 1 defeat at the hands of the Rhode Island Reds last night, the Boston Tigers are confident that they will swing back into the games won column at the expense of the New Haven Eagles tonight at the Boston Garden.

Since Manager Sprague Cleghorn took over the reins at Providence, the Tigers have not been able to come through with a single victory. However, they are well established in second place, principally through their ability to beat Hyland and Philadelphia.

The Tigers drew down 11 penalties last night against the clubs, Reg Mackey leading the field with four and Dutch Osborne a close second. They will doubtless be in a fighting mood again tonight for the Philadelphia Arrows picked up two points on them by defeating Springfield, 6 to 5, last night.

The Tigers now have a full game lead over the Arrows, but it is very important that they win this evening to insure a playoff position.

MILLS-HEYD FILL IN

Eddie Burke, Dutch Osborne and Sonny Manning will be the second line, while Reg Mills and Clark Heyd fill in from time to time.

Yip Foster and Reg Mackey will be Powers' selection to start on the outer defense, with Pensi Content and Eddie Oatman as reserves.

Of late the Tigers have been winning consistently. They have slipped now and then but on the whole they have been playing a brand of hockey which compares favorably with any they have ever offered.

Opponents are noticeably more cautious when they watch the Tigers' defense since Foster joined the Boston outfit while in the past they raced through with the abandon of a Howie Morenz or an Eddie Shore.

TIGERS ARE FIT

Although they received their regular quota of bumps and bruises last night during their game with the Rhode Island Reds, the Tigers are ready and keen to meet the Eagles. They have defeated New Haven three times in a row and feel they can come through again this evening.

Since New Havens last appearance here they have been strengthened by recruiting Tex White from Pittsburgh and Tubby Paulhus from the Reds. White will be at center ice, relieving Hughes, and Paulhus will be used on the defense.

Paulhus was one of the defense men in the Can-Am League a year ago.

The collegiate training rules proved too much of a barrier for Tex White and he was content to bow out of the Smoky City and try his luck in the minors.

Manager Jimmie O'Donovan will open against the Tigers with Chicker Whyte, Hughes and Eddie Bouchard on the front line and Speyer and Himes on the outer defense. He will have Jumping Jacey Forbes in the nets and the result of this game will have an important bearing on whether or not New Haven will get into the playoffs.

For Keeping the Hair In Place
Why wish for smooth laying hair when you can have it so easily. A morning application of SLIKUM keeps your hair in place all day and produces that so desired well-groomed appearance. SLIKUM is greaseless and will not stain. Your barber will apply it.

Diglane Faces Sherry; McCoy Meets Lewis on Arena Mat

EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

EX-CHAMP TO TEST BIBBER TONIGHT

ONE of the greatest all-star cards presented in a local ring in many years will be staged tonight in the Arena, when Henri Diglane, undefeated French heavyweight mat champion, will meet Jack Sherry of Ohio, in a return match. Ed "Strangler" Lewis, former heavyweight champion of the world, tackles Bob McCoy of Cambridge.

They will meet at the top of a brilliant card. Joe Malcewicz of Utica, N. Y., one of the greatest favorites in the wrestling ranks will be paired with Leo Hyatt.

FINE PROGRAM

With Diglane, Sherry, Lewis, McCoy, Malcewicz, Zarynoff and George all on the same card, it is expected that the largest crowd that has seen a match since Sonnenberg and Bleicher settled their dispute will be in attendance. The advance sale is the heaviest in weeks.

Sherry and Diglane waged a furious battle two weeks ago. For two hours and three minutes they slashed away at each other. The battle was packed with clean, scientific wrestling that had the crowd on edge.

Diglane finally defeated the rugged champion of Ohio, but the margin of victory was so slight and the battle was so sensational that Promoter Paul Bowser rematched them for tonight.

SHERRY IN SHAPE

The defeat was the first suffered by Sherry this season, and he is in splendid physical condition to put a stop to Diglane's victorious rush.

Both Sherry and Diglane have trained for another long battle, and he two youngsters, each of whom is seeking a meeting with Sonnenberg for the heavyweight championship of the world, are prepared to set a whirlwind pace from the first gong.

Bob McCoy, only really local product to crash his way to fame in the wrestling game in many years, will meet another severe test in the semifinal bout, for Ed "Strangler" Lewis, a veteran, has been defeated only by Sonnenberg in the last five years.

PENN STARS IN TITLE MEET

Philadelphia will be represented by four of her outstanding track and field athletes in the championships of America at Madison Sq. Garden, March 18.

The quartet will be headed by Farner Bertinguy, the finest all-around athlete ever developed at the University of Pennsylvania. He will compete in the pole vault and 16-pound shotput.

Lamoine Bo le, Penn's great broad jumper, who broke the intercollegiate record last Saturday night on one of his foul jumps, will enter the 60-yard dash and standing jumps, and Alfred H. Estes of the Meadowbrook Club the fourth member of the Philadelphia team, will engage in the same events.

Bay State Amateurs Battle Canadians

Amateur boxing teams from Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Montreal, Canada, will compete in the Bay State International boxing show which will be held tomorrow night at the Colonial Theater, Lawrence, under the auspices of the Buffalo A. C., Lawrence.

Jackie Collins, 126-pound New England champion, will compete in the bouts with Capt. Jacques Gremer of the New Hampshire State University team and Al Neaudelle.

Announce Date for International Match

St Augustine, Fla., March 6 (INS) Miss Glenna Collett today announced May 1 as the date for the playing of the first women's international team golf matches between the United States and Great Britain. The course has yet to be named.

Miss Collett also announced that Miss Virginia Van Wie, ranking Chicago player, would be included in the American team. The Misses Helen Hicks, Peggy Wattles, Bernice Wall, Maureen Orcutt and Helen Peden had previously accepted Miss Collett's invitation to join the invading forces.

Caiza Wins Match

Friedman Says He Will Beat Griffiths

The Hebrew heavyweight bubbled over with confidence as he stepped off the train at the South Station, and though he will be on the short end of the betting, he declared that he would knock out Griffiths inside of six rounds.

"I've fought Griffiths before, right in his home town of Chicago," said Friedman. "He won the decision.

"I'm punching harder now than ever before," continued the Roslindale boy. "In my last three fights I knocked out Tony Galento and Big Boy Rawson, and I met Jim Maloney.

"I'll beat Griffiths tomorrow night, and then insist on a return match with Maloney."

Willie Oster of New London—Wild Willie whose fights are always thrillers will oppose Ralph Kit Wagner, rugged Philadelphia middleweight, in the eight-round semifinal bout. Three preliminary matches and three four-rounders will complete the popular-priced card.

In the six-rounders, Sailor Flint of Newport will meet Buddy Howard, former national amateur heavyweight champion; Tommy Quigley of Cambridge will face Buster Mallmi of New Orleans, and Joe Venuti of the North End will tackle Johnny Abrieu of Gloucester. In the four-rounders, Jackie Norton of Roxbury will be paired with Johnny Gallo of East Boston; Freddy O'Connor of South Boston with Jack McCarron of Somerville, and Billy Nevins of Cambridge with George Perry of Revere.

The advance sale is the heaviest the Garden has enjoyed in months, and a crowd of 15,000 or more is expected to witness the show.

From the Camps

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., March 6 (AP)—The New York Giants officially open the spring baseball training season today, a squad of 16 of them go to Austin today to meet the University of Texas

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 6 (AP)—Manager Bob Shawkey of the New York Yankees does not intend to let the coming duel between Jacobs Beach and Babe Ruth overshadow other events in the Yankee training camp. Shawkey has decided the 21 Yankees have progressed far enough to do a little real playing and scheduled the first exhibition practice game for today. He assigned Ruth to the Rookie team.

FORT MYERS, Fla., March 6 (AP)—A glance at Connie Mack's little black book reveals how the Philadelphia Athletics' boss will divide his 25-man squad this year. It indicated, too, that most of the 14 rookies trying to break into the A's outfit will be disappointed.

Mack plans to carry nine pitchers, three catchers, eight infielders and five outfielders, and 21 of the 25 players will be holdovers.

WINTER HAVEN, Fla., March 6 (AP)—Twenty-five or 30 games won for the Phillies and the season more than a month away! That's the big news given out today by Grover Cleveland Alexander, pitcher-manager of the Phils, and Claude Willoughby, one of his admiring understudies.

"I'm going to win at least 30 games," Alexander declared today as he started for the ballyard. "My arm is great, it always is. But take my legs, that's where we go bad first. I haven't got a sore muscle anywhere."

CLEARWATER, Fla., March 6 (AP)—The Brooklyn Robins have discovered a battery that can get along without signals. With ancient Adolfo Luque pitching and young Alfonso Lopez catching, the battymen can converse in their native Spanish, with no one the wiser.

Luque dropped into the Robin camp yesterday, a trifle overweight, but with most of his old-time pitching form after a winter of baseball in Havana.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, March 6 (AP)—Manager Bush has just about decided how his Chicago White Sox will line up against the New York Giants in the opening game of the exhibition season Saturday. Vic Frasier, recruit hurler, is to start for the ambitious Sox, with Ed Walsh, Jr., and Ted Lyons sharing the mound task. Irving Jeffries will be at third base, vice Willie Kamm, who has not yet reported; Bill Hunnefield, will be at shortstop, Clasell at second and Clancy at first base. The outfield will start with Moore in left, Reynolds in center and either Dave Harris or Johnny Watwood in right. Berg and Riddle will divide the catching.

AVALON, Catalina Island, Cal., March 6 (AP)—A game of baseball was among Manager Joe McCarthy's plans today for the Chicago Cub squad for the purpose of identification.

CAN LEWIS TOSS McCOY THIS WAY?

WEST END FIVE TO PLAY W. B. C.

The West End House senior basketball team will entertain the Worcester Boys' Club on Saturday at the local boys' club on Blossom st., West End, at 8 p. m. This is the second of a two-game series between these two quintets, the first game being won by Worcester a short time ago.

Much credit is due Worcester for the fine group of hoopsters that they turn out from year to year. They are without question one of the best boys' teams in the West End House schedule this season.

The starting lineup for Worcester follows: Capt. Renshaw, Marshal, Miller, Stanley and Vereck. The starting lineup for the local quintet will be selected from the following: Capt. Shapiro, Krivitsky, Neiman, Baker, Bird, Feld, Cubellwick, Berman and Clayman.

Roommates to Lead Army Quintet

West Point, N. Y., March 6 —Electing co-captains, the U. S. Military Academy basketball team selected Cadets Dean C. Strohecker, Winfield, Kan., and Orrin C. Krueger, Buffalo, N. Y., to lead the Army 1931 team, Maj. P. B. Fleming, graduate manager of athletics, announced today. They will probably alternate next year for each game in taking charge of the team.

Strohecker and Krueger both entered the Military Academy at the same time and have roomed together for the three years. At present they are occupying adjoining beds in the cadet hospital and are suffering from same injury, a wrenched knee. Krueger got his injury in the Pittsburgh game here last Saturday. Strother's injury occurred in the Ohio State game at Columbus on Feb. 22

Cathedral High Defeats St. Mary's

Cathedral high defeated St. Mary's high of Brookline, 31 to 15, in a Catholic high basketball league game at Cathedral court.

John Fortunato, left forward for Cathedral, scored 16 of his team's points, placing him up with the league's high scorers.

YOUNG STARS PICKED FOR CUP TEAM

New York, March 6 (AP) The younger tennis players of the United States will carry the banner of their home land into the Davis Cup campaign this year, according to present plans of the Davis Cup committee of the United States Lawn Tennis Association

A tentative squad, led by John Van Ryn of Orange, N. J., Wilmer Allison of Austin, Tex., and George Lott of Chicago, will gather in the South in a month to begin active training for the openin. American zone contest against Canada the U. S. L. T. A announced yesterday.

The announcement does not list Bill Tilden and Frank Hunter, veteran stars of previous Davis Cup teams, as possible candidates, evidently taking them at their word on announcements that they are through with international play.

"It is the present intention of the Davis Cup committee," the announcement said, "to name Van Ryn, Allison and Lott as the nucleus of the squad.

The squad is due to gather in Pinehurst, N. C., shortly before the North and South championship April 14. The players also will take part in the Mason and Dixon tournament at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., then go to Philadelphia to continue their practice.

B. U. PITCHERS LOOK GOOD

One of the most pleasing features of the pre season workouts of Boston University baseball aspirants is the manner in which the pitchers are rounding into shape.

The candidates for mound duty have been going through their paces for the past two weeks in the St. Botolph st. gym and are now ready to start bearing down and showing their full bag of tricks. All of the prospective twirlers have been patient during the preliminary training and are content to go through the tedious setting up exercises which featured the early drill.

Starting today Coach Gilmore will allow the pitchers to cut loose to a certain extent and a wide assortment of curves and changes of pace will feature the drills.

Seven hurlers are going through the daily workouts who have had experience on either varsity or freshman nines during the past three years and all are in the thick of the fight for regular mound work. Vet in spite of a Terrier diamond coach been blessed with such a wealth of good pitching material as has Gilmore this spring and this condition augurs well for a winning baseball campaign at B U this season.

Weafer, Lokjo, Murphy, Corsen, Church, Bowers, and Nesson are the best of the hurling corps at the present time but the list is not necessarily final as there is still plenty of time in which any member of new men may break into the limelight and earn varsity rating.

Penn Five Runs Close to Columbia

New York, March 6 (AP)—The charm which carried Yale almost to the end of the Eastern intercollegiate League season without a defeat on its home grounds failed in the final game for the Elis and as a result there still are two teams in the running for the league championship.

Pennsylvania, the second place team in the league standing, broke the Yale string of home night with a 39 to 30 victory after four other league teams had failed and remained in behind. Columbia's league leaders Penn now has two victories and lost two. Columbia, victorious at Princeton last night by a 44 to 25 count, has lost but one game in each of the one against Yale at New Haven.

The victories of the two leaders bring the race to the point where their second clash at Philadelphia a week from tonight is the decisive encounter, barring unforeseen upsets.

St. Mary's C. C. Wins Seventh Straight

St Mary's C. C. scored its seventh straight victory in the English high school centre league by defeating Brighton, 33 to 16, at English High gym. Dairo Club defeated Revere, 38 to 23; Franklin-Jr. beat Cleves, 27 to 19, and Tigers defeated Rustcraft, 28 to 17, in the other league games.

YALE 5 PICKED TO CONQUER CRIMSON

HARVARD'S basketball team will receive its final polishing tomorrow in preparation for the invasion of New Haven Saturday. Yale's quintet is also set for the deciding game, and will be a slight favorite to defeat Harvard

Yale has had an in and out season on the court, dropping five games away from home, and winning eight on its own floor.

Reports that Jud Rex, the Harvard guard, was injured and may not be able to start the Yale game, heightened the odds on Yale's taking the Crimson into camp

If the husky Crimson guard is in condition on Saturday, however, Harvard will go on the Yale floor on even terms with the New Haven five

Coach Ed Wachter has brought his first string five to the peak of condition and with the exception of Rex, every man is in good condition for the battle

The starting line for Harvard will find Max Pierce at center, Howie Wood and Jerry Nash at forwards, Sam Binns and Tommy Pirtell at guards. With the exception of Binns, this is the same team which faced Yale at Hemenway a year ago and was mowed out 30-26 in the last 30 seconds of the game.

The Crimson quintet has benefited greatly by the rest it has had in the past week, and daily scrimmages at Hemenway have brought it along in fine style

Monte and Allen Clash on Monday

One of the bitterest heavyweight battles staged in Boston in many years is expected to develop next Monday night at the Arena when Joe Monte, punching Brockton heavyweight, measures blows with Harry Allen, another son of Brockton.

It will be the second encounter between the two. The Arena will hold its greatest crowd of the year when they start throwing punches. Young Nadeau, Manchester, N. H., one of New England's most promising young welterweights has a man sized job on his hands in the eight-round semi-final when he battles Phil Richards of Oakland. Richards has been in this country several months and has easily won every bout.

Jack Delaney Baker of Watertown who is marching on to a shot with Al Mello for the New England welterweight title, meets a tough customer in the final four-rounder in Ed Pierson of the Coast Guard.

HARVARD MINOR LETTERS GIVEN

The Harvard minor "H" has awarded today to 20 second varsity hockey players who completed a successful season by defeating Yale seconds 5 to 1 last Saturday.

Among those who received the insignia were Eddie Mays, and Charlie Devens, Harvard's impressive football stars. This is the fifth athletic award Mays and Devens have won since entering Harvard Others who were given their minor "H" were Capt. Farrell, E. F. Butler, E. P. Chase, S. H. Foster, C. Fitzhugh, H. Gilmor, H. F. Gleason, M. Hale, J. Hallowell, W. Howland, P. J. Jewell, E. McGregor, F. A. Martin, D. W. Sprague, C. T. Wadsworth, P. H. Watts, Z. E. Wendell and C. Jackson, manager.

Fifteen Freshmen hockey players were given their class numerals at the same time. The freshmen players were T. L. Bailey, I. Baldwin, G. M. Bartol, R. Benson, E. R. Channing, C. C. Clement, H. M. David, W. C. Everett, C. C. Pell, J. W. Putnam, Capt. R. Salisbury, M. B. Stone, S. H. Wolcott, Manager F. M. Desrborn and Assistant Manager S. Spencer.

IT is one thing to have the eyes properly refracted for glasses and it is another to wear them properly. The frames frequently bend and the lenses become scratched. They should be attended to immediately. It is good judgment to consult an optometrist every two years.

HAPPY SMILE ADDS GREATLY TO YOUR BEAUTY

Beware of Too Much Effort in Talk and Laughter

By JOSEPHINE HUDDLESTON
World Famous Beautician

TO me there is nothing in the world more tragic than for some girl with beauty and character not to be able to express her joyous and sweet disposition that is hers in a beautiful manner.

We usually associate joy and sweetness with smiles and laughter. But frequently, simply because of unfamiliarity with the mechanical practice of muscles, the laugh or smile intended to be beautiful is in reality an unbeautiful grimace.

Josephine Huddleston

I remember hearing my mother say once in sparing of a cousin of mine: 'She is one of most charming girls I know, even if she is my niece, but the way she screws up her face when she talks and laughs spoils all of her natural beauty." And as I grew older and showed signs of following that cousin a path mother put me through a series of studies that opened my eyes.

I never shall forget the humiliation I felt the first time she placed me in front of her triple mirrors and engaged me in conversation, facing those three mirrors that gave me no escape from myself.

The facial contortions' I indulged in were indeed marring. I laughed and my mouth flew open—WIDE! I grew intent and my brow formed into ridges that would have done honor to the most serious-minded person in the world.

Mother explained to me that it made too much of an effort in laughing and talking. That both were natural functions that should be done as easily and gracefully as walking, breathing and eating. And so I learned by sitting in front of her dressing table to talk and even to laugh more easily.

One can laugh just as sincerely without opening the mouth wide and throwing the head back. As a matter of fact, the restraint exercised in training oneself in this fact gives a subtle charm to one's entire personality which enhances the natural spontaneity instead of dimming it.

Look into your mirror and smile -a wide, happy smile. See the deep line appear at the sides of the face, running from the wings of the nostrils to the corners of the mouth. Note the under expanse of gums, which in themselves are unattractive, even though they be pink and healthy. Now smile, honestly and happily, but keep the corners of the mouth pulled in a little farther, spreading them out over the face. Note that the lines at the sides are not so deep and that only the beautiful teeth show.

Stretching the mouth when smiling also tends to harden and thin the lips. Thinness and hardness add age to the mouth and its surrounding area, while softness and roundness hold the illusion of youth long after the calendar would have us believe it is gone.

A simple exercise trains the muscles in their new action. Hold the mouth relaxed and then push out the lips into a soft, elliptical shape. Then raise the center of the upper lip until a tensing of muscles is felt at the corners of the nose. Still retaining as much of this position as possible, draw the corners of the lips back and up until a tenseness is felt. Relax the mouth and repeat.

Do this 20 times, and do it whenever you can find a few minutes in private that can be devoted to cultivating a sweet smile.

And then forget all about the exercise between times that you do it. Done per the habit half a dozen times each day, you soon will train the muscles so that, without being conscious of it, they fall into the new physical habit each time you laugh or smile spontaneously.

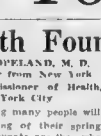
Health Found in Spring Garden Plots

By R. S. COPELAND, M. D.
U. S. Senator from New York
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City

BEFORE long many people will be thinking of their spring gardening. Fortunate are they who possess gardens.



Dr. Copeland

Within the last few years gardening has taken on added impetus. During the World War when conservation of food was to the fore, thousands of women and girls took up gardening and many learned to love it.

The garden clubs of America has thrived in numbers during the past 15 years. There is scarcely a village or town that is without its garden club, and a good thing it is, too.

There are health, pleasure and recreation all tied up in a garden plot. If the possessor is that happy individual who loves the out-of-doors and Old Mother Earth he is indeed blessed.

Health and much pleasure can be derived from a flower garden, as well as from a vegetable garden. Beauty in nature is some very soul-satisfying. Beauty in flowers is not one of the least of the things which give satisfaction and contentment.

The family that has to depend entirely on the market or the huckster for its vegetable supply does not usually have as much of these vital foods as it should have. Not everybody can have a garden, it is true. But there are many who can have one who never give a thought to all the advantages to be derived from owning a garden.

Nothing can be more desirable than a well-selected variety of vegetables. Just think of all the wonderful vitamins and minerals, so necessary to growth and well-being, you may have stored up in your garden for the entire family for all the summer months!

Take the tomato, for instance. This is probably the richest of all the vegetables in its vitamin and mineral content. It is effective as a blood cleanser. It is richest in the natural acids which keep the stomach and intestines in good condition. It helps to wash away the poisons which may cause disease in the kidneys. It is good for the diabetic and the patient with Bright's disease. Of course, these benefits may be derived from some other vegetables.

The physical effort you have to put into a garden is good for your health. The farmer finds in his garden relaxation from the heavy work of the farm. Women find it a change and relaxation after household cares. In many a school garden children are learning the art of making things grow.

For the busy man and woman at work in the city, if they can live in a suburb and own a garden, life is made richer and health made stronger by getting out next to nature each every day. For those who love gardening there is nothing more relaxing for tired nerves, and no better exercise than an hour or more in the garden after a hot day in the city.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES

M. G. Q—I am 15 years old, five feet five inches tall, what should I weigh?

2—How can I gain weight?

A—You should weigh about 120 pounds.

2—Add to your diet, plenty of milk, eggs, fresh fruits and vegetables. Practice deep breathing. Drink water between meals. Take cod liver oil as a general tonic.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

WHAT'S the matter with the American husband?

For years I have proudly boasted that the American husband would take first prize in any "Best Husband" contest on earth. In no other country will you find a husband who will push the perambulator, take the dog for a walk, get his own breakfast and keep his temper and religion in his wife's name. He is the world's Husband de Luxe!

Helen Rowland

But I am beginning to wonder if the young American husband has lost his SPINE. If he parted with his last vertebra at the altar!

Why does a man, already broken to order and tractable as a lamb, go docilely around, and permit his young wife to be carelessly mauled, kissed and petted by other men at parties and country clubs, or whenever three or four whoopee-makers are gathered together?

Doesn't he know how foolish it makes him look? Or doesn't he care? Has he no amour propre? Has ALL the nerve been extracted from him?

Sometimes I think that the flapper has been very much maligned. Most of the Petting Parties today are promoted women. There is more promiscuous kissing going on among the younger married set than among all the flaming flappers.

At most country clubs it is the young matrons, not the debutantes, who permit themselves to be mauled. In their desperate desire to remain flappers forever or their cold fear of being classed as "flat tires," they cheerfully encourage the casual caress of any personable man. It makes them feel "so popular."

That is the greatest danger of the petting-party girl. Not that she may lose the respect of men—but that she loses the ability to treat ANY man with respect! During her flapperhood, being petted and mauled becomes such a commonplace thing that passing her kisses around means no more to her than passing the olives. Petting and parties are as inseparable in her mind as waffles and maple syrup.

Of course, modern marriage is a partnership -not ownership. But love and kisses are the assets of the matrominial firm, and neither member has the right to unlock the till and pass its contents around in the public.

What the young American husband needs is a little more self assertion. A man who has not the stamina to protect HIS OWN WOMAN and make her respect him with respect is not a husband—he's a joke. The Lord made men bigger and stronger than women, so that they could take care and protect women.

All the little caveman stuff on the part of her husband would bring many a petting wife to her senses and give her a wholesome admiration for him. But, alas, so many young husbands are too busy kissing some other man's wife to bother to make their own wives behave.

Hence the saddest spectacle of this spectacular age—PETTING WIVES!

Milk Shakes and Egg Nogs

THERE is hardly a home but has in it someone who should drink more milk—a child who perhaps makes a fuss about drinking his daily quota or an adult who has been advised to drink more than he or she thinks they like.

Martha Lee

The same with eggs. We all know eggs are good food, especially for children and convalescents. But frequently our doctor's advice is set down as "eggs with a very fare.

So today's recipes are aimed to help solve these difficulties.

MILK SHAKE

Mix milk with a carbonated beverage, equal portions of each or to suit the taste. Favorite flavors are ginger ale, birch or root beer, sarsaparilla, orange or lemon. Have ingredients thoroughly chilled.

EGG NOG SUPREME
(Two Servings)

2 eggs, beat yolks and whites separately.
½ cup milk or cream.
1 cup ginger ale.

Add sugar and milk to the egg yolks. Fold in the stiffly beaten whites. Add ginger ale and mix. It is not necessary to beat the yolks and whites separately, but the result is more attractive.

ORANGE EGG SHAKE
(Two Servings)

1 egg beaten.
Few grains salt, nutmeg and cinnamon.
Cracked ice.

Combine ingredients in a shaker and shake until frothy.

Faithfully yours,
MARTHA LEE.

In "Gold Digger" Class

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I m going with a boy who seems to be a good deal of a tightwad. H never takes me to expensive place, or dine, and seldom to the theat r, but suggests going to a movie it stead. MADELINE B.

I AM afr id you belong to that very ut lovely order of girls known as "gold diggers," my dear Madeline B. You tell me nothing of your friend's financial means; perhaps he is d ng all in the way of entertainment he can afford. He may have d ficulties of which you know nothing. Apart from what he can spend on you, do you find him a congenial companion? To judge a friendship in the terms of what it brings in seems pretty crude to me.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am almost seventeen. A few months ago I met two young brothers through some friends of my parents. The younger brother has been taking attentions. He is nineteen years old. He has asked me to go out with him but I am afraid my father would object. He wants to ask her. What shall I do? Do you think I am too young to go out? BROWNIE.

WHY do you not let your friend ask your mother for permission to invite you out now and then to a good show or a party. Since she knows all about him through friends, if she feels he is trustworthy, she may permit a courtship between you and him, especially if she realizes it is not a silly sentimental companionship but sensible friendship.

If she refuses to permit you to go about with boys just yet, she may at least allow you to entertain him now and then in your own home, then you and he and your parents will all get better acquainted.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I was riding home with my escort when he became a little bit fresh. I overlooked it at first, but the same thing happened again. We have gone out many times together and he has always respected me in every way. I told him plainly he was not to get fresh if he wished to go about with me. He was hurt and said I did not understand him. Was I wrong? Shall I write him a note telling him how sorry I am? We were such pals it does not seem as if our friendship is ended. Please, dear, you will help mend this broken heart.

POLLY.

IF your escort was in any way ungentlemanly or lacking in respect for you, my dear, you were absolutely right in calling him down in plain terms for what he did, regardless of how dear the friendship between you has been in the past. He knew he was in the wrong. Do not write him. If he is a gentleman, he will write anything for you—he will come to you and apologize. Until he does so, treat him as a casual acquaintance rather than a "pal," and refuse his invitations.

Lovejoy -:- Serial by Beatrice Burton

for your dinner," he said. "I'll pick up a bite to eat somewhere. But I'm coming back here to sleep until you sell the furniture. The rent is paid to the end of the month."

He started for the back yard and then came back into the kitchen for a minute.

"I've made almost six thousand dollars this year," he said crisply, "and it's all gone—all gone on a lot of jim-crack furniture and a few cases of liquor and a load of other stuff that we didn't need! And we could have bought the house in Stallings Lane with that money!"

Lovejoy smiled. "Don't forget Norma's wages!" she said mockingly. "Don't forget the money we paid her, old boy!— But I suppose the thought of that doesn't bother you! It was such a joy to have her in the house!"

He went out,slamming the screen door upon her words.

She had been divorced two or three years before, and now she lived alone in a beautiful little house in Park Lane Her name was Sheila Nettles. She was about thirty years old and she gave a great many parties.

But she was all alone in the big shadowy living room of her house that night when Steve and Lovejoy ran up the steps at ten minutes to eight.

She did not get up from her long chair to welcome them. She simply took her cigarette from between her lips, said "Hello" and then put it back again.

"Isn't it cool in this room!" exclaimed Lovejoy, who had been packing boxes of dishes all day in the hot tannery dinning room at home. "I thought we'd have dinner right here," Sheila said lazily, "in front of these windows."

There were three long windows in the west wall of the house. They all stood open to a tiny square of green lawn edged with dwarf evergreens, and their curtains billowed in and out with the evening breeze.

"It's never too hot for a cocktail, is it?" she asked next, as the door opened and a small neat maid brought in a tray of little thin-stemmed glasses and a plate of appetizers.

Lovejoy took one and drank it quickly. During the last few months she had learned to like cocktails. They "put her to sleep." They put a gilt edge on life, somehow, she often told herself.

They had that "gilt edge" effect on this particular night. By the time she had drunk three of them she had lost the tired, depressed feeling of the day.

She began to feel that everything in life was all right. . . . She was loving a husband for whom she no longer cared. She had put her baby into Aunt Em's safe, kind hands. And she was here with the man she was going to marry.

She looked at Steve.

She always had liked to look at him. She liked the cut of his nose and his lips and chin. She liked his blue eyes that looked narrow because they were set so deep. She liked his smile and his quick, nervous hands.

I shall never think of Tom when I'm with him, she said to herself. I shall forget Tom.

The silver-chiming clock somewhere in the house struck eight round slow notes. . . . And she found herself wondering if Tom had come back to the house that had been their house. She wondered if he was reading himself to sleep as he usually did.

Sheila got her divorce in Minden." Steve was saying to her. "She can tell you the name of her lawyer and the name of the best hotel there."

Problem of Two Girls With One Escort

By MRS. BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1—Should two young ladies go to their club dance escorted by one friend?

2—The dance is quite formal, and the ladies in question have their own tickets. Should the gentleman pay for his own ticket and give the two ladies' tickets, with his own, to the man at the door?

3—At this dance one lady meets a young man acquaintance who takes her from the middle initial of our names, but since initials are not in good favor, it is far better usually either to omit them or to use the full name. Initials suggest haste, and ideally, haste is not socially appropriate. Mary Brown is a vastly more interesting signature than Mary E. Brown.

It is for this reason of the indication of haste that initials are omitted in formal details such as formal invitations and announcements.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I met a young man in Boston last summer while on my vacation. Since then we have corresponded until about three months ago when he stopped writing to me. Do you think it would be all right, if I should drop in at his place of business and say "hello" when I am in the city next time? I know it isn't right for me to write again, as I wrote the last letter and he didn't answer. Please tell me whether I should visit him at his place of business. L. T.
Winchendon.

No; it would be most inappropriate for you to go to see this young man at his place of business. Since it is he who discontinued the correspondence, do not cheapen yourself by any forced persistence in the acquaintanceship.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I would appreciate it very much if you will let me know what I should wear to an informal dinner-dance. My husband and the other men on the committee are going in dinner tuxedos. Would it be proper for me to wear an evening gown, or should I wear something less formal? What would you suggest?

EDNA.

Malden.

I suggest that you wear a dress less formal than an evening dress, the kind of dress that is usually referred to as a "dinner dress." An evening dress means a formal dinner dance, whereas you say that it is to be "informal" and that the gentlemen are to wear the "informal attire," which is the tuxedo

Three-Minute Journeys

By TEMPLE MANNING

ONE of the first things which strikes one when he enters Budapest, is the feeling of a foreign country. Throughout Europe one hears languages with which he is generally familiar, French, German English—But in Hungary on hears little but Magyar. So nationalistic, one might say, are these people, that they discourage all but their native tongue. Common street signs, German building names, notices, all so common after the Austrian victory and dismemberment of the Austro-Hungarian Empire, have been replaced by Magyar. The separation of Austria and Hungary has given great impetus to this always existing nation pride.

But there is a characteristic of Hungarian life which is familiar to the European traveler, and that is the street life. Sidewalk cafes are as popular in Budapest as they are in Vienna and on the bright clear days, the quais and boulevards are thronged. Along the banks of the Danube they extend, past the hotels and public buildings and the bridge places The Donaukorso is one of the most prominent boulevards. Here as many as 15,000 people have been known to gather, either strolling along or sitting at the restaurant and cafe tables watching the kaleidoscopic scenes and listening to the fascinating strains of the native gypsy orchestras.

The inner city of Pest is circled by the famous Ringstrasse (similar to the "Ring" in Vienna, of which I told you some time ago), built on the site of the old city walls. This Ringstrasse is a circle of wide boulevards where the fashionables parade afoot or in their motors. There are many more fine boulevards throughout the city, in fact, the section is surrounded by a broad, tree-lined street.

It is over in the old city, as Buda is sometimes called, that the city exploits its remarkable curative waters and baths. There the city operates a big hotel called the Municipal House, on the St. Gellert. Nearly half of the building is devoted to the bathing pools, steam rooms, showers, massage tables.

It is in this section that the famous Hungarian Tokay wine, whose water is bottled and shipped all over the world, is located. There are some 40 mineral springs in all.

The Parliament building, is to be found on the river bank on the Pest side of the city. It is a huge limestone structure done in a rather severe form of Gothic architecture. It is surrounded by a mass of slender pinnacles and decorated with almost a hundred statues of men famous in Hungarian history. Rulers, statesmen and warriors are represented in the collection. Rising from the center of the building is a huge dome. The building was completed in 1902, although expensive of an earlier period.

It is strange that in cities which are as old as Buda and Pest there should not be more relics of their past history, but none the less such is the case. However, there are quite a number of buildings which reflect the spirit of the past. Among these may be listed the opera house (the opera is very popular here in Central European renaissance style; the custom house, the university and several other public buildings.

Pest has been the rapidly growing part of the city. Being built on a flat plain, this section has been better able to expand and develop than has Buda which nestles among the hills. However with the exception of the Parliament building, the governmental offices are located, almost without exception, in Buda.

Careless Speech

By LUCY LOWELL

AN arresting and thought-provoking bit of philosophy was expressed by former President Calvin Coolidge in his autobiographical Address published recently in the Boston American.

In writing of the extreme caution which he learned all statements made by him when he was Chief Executive At the nation, Mr. Coolidge had this to say:

"It would be exceedingly easy to get the country all by the ears and foment hatreds and jealousies which, by destroying faith and confidence, would help nobody and harm everybody. The end would be the destruction of all progress.

"While everyone knows that avile exist, there is yet sufficient good in the world to supply material for most of the comment that needs to be made.

"The only way I know to drive out evil from the country is by the constructive method of filling it with good. The country is better off tranquilly considering its problems and generally and earnestly striving to secure more of them than it would be in nursing hostile attitudes and magnifying isolated faults."

The ideas set forth in this cannot fail to interest everyone who is willing to get down to sincere consideration of life and people and events

What Mr. Coolidge had to say does not apply to running the country only it is quite as true when fitted to the business of running a shop or a home or a place in the social structure.

Careless speaking, non-constructive criticism, comes too easily to all of us; never in the history of the race has it accomplished a particle of good but it has been productive of ill feeling, of doubt and strife.

WARREN BROS. IS SOLD AT NEW YEAR'S HIGH

By FRANK H. MELDON
Financial Editor

Warren Bros., Boston paving issue, has been climbing steadily ever since announcement was made it would be headed by Col Charles R. Gow, Boston postmaster. Warren Bros. common has just sold at another new high in State Street, as well as on the big board." Col Gow's name appears entitled to a place in the good-will assets of Warren, Bros. when the new balance sheets are compiled.

* * *

Rumors of a stock "merion" by Westinghouse Electric are heard in State and Wall Streets and have caused considerable buying of the issue. President A. W. Berkwick of Westinghouse, during the World War, was in charge of the Chinese Eastern Railway, which turned out a record under difficulties of the Russian revolution, later overthrown.

Early last year reports reached State Street that the Westinghouse house has passed into control of Mellon interests. The Mellon buying in Westinghouse marked the first time the Mellons became interested in any industry not connected directly with the natural resources of the land.

We recall hearing President Lowell of Harvard refer to Plymouth Rock before a teachers' gathering a number of years ago, with the qualifying phrase, "if there is a Plymouth Rock." The remark called to mind by the latest New England address of President F. H. H. Simmons of the New York Stock Exchange, delivered at Hartford, in which he discussed the early history of the exchange.

President Simmons said: "Two main problems faced this original stock market as it continued to conduct its business in the open street. The first of these problems consisted naturally in the need for proper indoor accommodations and facilities. The only mechanical facilities at that time available to the stock market consisted in the buttonwood tree, about which its members met.

"One skeptical American historian, however, persists in continuing the popular modern pastime of debunking' history, has even asserted that nothing was left of the buttonwood tree at this time except its stump, as the British dragoons, during the Revolutionary War, had previously chopped it down for firewood. Whatever the truth of this matter may be, it is apparent that the facilities of this original curb market for stocks in New York were of the most primitive character."

* * *

Economists have for many years drawn pretty pictures of the early group of stock traders around the "buttonwood tree," but perhaps future sketch artists will depict it as a mere stump, cut low as the famous Washington Elm at Cambridge, under which the "Father of his Country" took command of the Continental Army.

* * *

Popular belief has always been that the Pilgrims actually landed one by one on the present Rock at Plymouth, and that the "buttonwood tree" humanized witnessed the first exchanges of the famous "bulls and bears."

Anniversary of the historic "Boston Massacre" on March 5, was duly observed yesterday, but there was not much talk about the October-November massacre of the banks.

Publishers of the Encyclopedia Americana are quoted as declaring economic manufacturing or dealing in food products are stable, even in times of depression, because of the fact that 30 per cent of the annual American income is spent for food. Investment advisors, however, will continue to pass up the stability of individual food product firms rather than to approve them all as a group.

It will be recalled that textile depression severely affected earnings of a leading New England restaurant chain not so many months ago. We do not expect to see this spread, acute depression to test the stability of food firms, but we do not believe anyone would welcome the test.

"We have been notified that an approved type certificate for our Packard Diesel Aircraft Engine, with an official rating of 225 horsepower at 1900 r.p.m. has been issued to us by United States Department of Commerce, and we now in a position to market our new motor, said Pres. Alvan Macauley, of Packard Motor Car Co.

Charles R. Seymour, formerly vice-president, secretary and treasurer of Niles-Bement-Pond Co. has been elected president; he retains his position as treasurer. Leonard Horner, former president, continues as a member of the board. Other changes in personnel are election of Robert M. Derby as vice-president and of R. E. Johann as secretary. Frank Hatch was added to the directorate, succeeding James K. Cullen.

NEW HIGHS ARE REGISTERED IN WALL ST.

By STANLEY W. PRENOSIL

New York, March 6 (AP)—Easing credit conditions provided the background for a broad advance in prices in today's stock market.

Renewed weakness of the commodity markets, with cotton futures breaking to new low levels for the season, caused occasional flurries of selling, but offerings were well absorbed, and gains of 1 to 7 points were quite common.

STOCKS MOVE UPWARD

Call money renewed unchanged at 4 per cent, but the supply of funds was so large that the official rate was dropped to 3½ per cent for the first time since January 25, 1926. Time money rates also were at the lowest levels in two years.

Bankers' acceptances were cut one-eighth of 1 per cent by a third successive day. Lowering of the Bank of England discount rate from 5 per cent to 4½ per cent followed to foreshadow a cut from 4 to 3½ per cent by the New York Federal Reserve Bank, reports of which meet after the close of the market.

Cotton broke about $2 a bale to new low levels for the season, and made only a slight recovery. Declines of more than a cent a bushel in wheat futures were reduced to fractions by early afternoon.

United Gas Imp. Co., Bullard Co., New York & Harlem, Vanadium Steel, Westinghouse Electric, Warren Bros., Worthington Pump and Indian Motocycle preferred were all marked up 5 points or more above yesterday's final quotations. At least a score others including International Business Machines, General Electric, Stone & Webster, U. S. Steel, American Can, Loew's, Radio Corp. of America, Texas Gulf Sulphur, Texas Corp., Standard Oil of New Jersey, South Porto Rican Sugar and Sondyoz sold 3 to 4½ points above last night's final prices.

"MOPS" SET HIGHS

Buying of the rails was rather selective in character. Missouri Pacific issues mounted to new highs for the year on gains of 3 points or more, and New York Central was marked up 3 points. An increase in the New York Central dividend is looked for in some speculative quarters at the next meeting of the directors.

While recent business news has been rather irregular, a number of many Wall Street observers believe that the current rally in stock prices is based on a genuine improvement widely expected this spring, as well as the prospect of still further relaxation in credit conditions.

Persistent but unconfirmed reports that several large public utility mergers are in the making has helped to maintain speculative interest in the power and light stocks, many of which have been turned over in large volume. Buying orders for 50 to 100 thousand-share lots were executed in various issues during the final hour, giving impetus to upward movement, which attained largest proportions in Public Service Corp. of New Jersey, American Can, General Electric, Westinghouse Electric and numerous others.

Gains of 2 to 3 points were well scattered throughout the list. The tape was crowded at times and estimated 3,250,000 shares.

Acceptance Rates in New York Cut

New York, March 6 (AP)—As a further step in the cheapening of credit which began with crash of the stock market last November leading bankers' acceptance rates today reduced their rates ⅛ of one per cent, the third such reduction in three days.

The new rates for 30 to 120 day bills are 3⅜ per cent asked, and 3⅛ per cent for 150 to 180 days. The declines in acceptance rates together with the cutting of the Bank of England rate from 4½ to 4 per cent today, and the Wall Street to look for a reduction of the New York Federal Reserve Bank rate soon from 4 to 3½ or 3¼ per cent, either this week or next.

$383,173 Net for N. E. Confectionery

New England Confectionery Co balance sheet, dated Dec. 31, 1929 shows, after dividend payments of $34,000, and the $2,000,000 capital stock, an increase in surplus of $83,173, thus indicating profits for the year of $193,173 or $19.31 per share. Indicated profits for previous years were: 1928, $22.52; 1927 $14.51; 1926, $33.24 and in 1925 of $36.75.

Nat'l Shirt Sales Show Gain in Month

New York, March 6.—National Shirt Shops, Inc., reports that sales for the month of February amounted to $381,427, as compared with sales of $248,498 in the same month of last year.

For the first two months of the current year sales of the company aggregated $645,473, as compared with sales of $491,696 in the corresponding 1929 period.

Lead Price Lower

New York, March 6 (AP) The American Smelting & Refining Company today reduced the price of lead from 6 to 5.85 cents a pound.

Spectacular Turning-Point in Willys' Life

Made First Million in Panic; Offered $80,000,000 in Eight Years

By B. C. FORBES

NEW YORK, March 6—It was a panic that enabled John N. Willys to make his first million. Now, having made many millions, he is switching from dollar-making

By accepting the Ambassadorship to England, Mr. Willys follows the example of an increasing number of successful business men who have entered public life.

Dwight W. Morrow, an ex-Morgan partner, is our Ambassador to Mexico. Charles G. Dawes, banker, represents at the London, Harry F. Guggenheim, business man and aviation enthusiast, is our envoy at Cuba. Alexander P. Moore gives up newspaper publishing to become a shiningly successful Ambassador. Walter E. Edge, another publisher, has gone as our Ambassador to France.

More of our men of large affairs and our men of wealth are now disposed to accept public office. In time, public service in this country, as in Britain, may become the highest goal of our ablest business and financial leaders.

John Willys is a wonderful mixer. My guess is, however, that Mrs. Willys, who is quite a social star, has had something to do with his Ambassadorial step. Mr. Willys, although he has gone in for the customary paraphernalia of the multimillionaire—gorgeously furnished palaces, old masters, costly art objects, yachts, etc.—is unusually democratic. He should prove an ideal Ambassador to a country whose problems are mainly economic.

When a schoolboy (at Canandaigua, N. Y.) Johnny Willys was a noted "trader." He took up several business adventures and made them pay. Later he became into partnership with another lad and acquired a laundry. This they sold at a profit. The death of his father spoiled his aspirations for a college education.

Bicycles, then coming into vogue, appealed to him. With his laundry money he bought a sample and became a bicycle agent. Again he reached dizzy figures—but he soon discovered that everybody wasn't honest, collections flopped and so did his business.

His next significant adventure was in the automobile field. He became the spectacular turning point in his career.

Having booked orders for 500 Overland cars in the panic days of December, 1907, Agent Willys, then located in Elmira, N. Y., became anxious over the non-delivery of the cars. Hopping upon a train for Indianapolis, the Overland manager told him on Sunday morning: "We are going into the hands of a receiver tomorrow morning." "You are not!" Willys countered. "We are," reiterated the manager. "Why, we have some of the workmen by checks last night and we haven't enough money in the bank to meet them tomorrow morning."

"About $350."

Indianapolis banks were paying out no real money—the town like most of the United States—was on a scrip basis. But Willys meant to raise $350 by hook or by crook before the bank opened.

The interview occurred in the old Grand Hotel. Willys walked boldly up to the hotel clerk.

"I want $350 cash before tomorrow morning," he announced.

"Swell chance!"

Willys wrote out a check on a little bank in Wellsboro, Pa., for $350, and sternly told the clerk: "I must have cash for that before the bank here opens tomorrow morning." He ordered the clerk to freeze on to every dollar that came into the office, to gather up every cent collected in the restaurant, and to empty the bachelors till. "And don't cash another check until we get this money," Willys continued.

The proprietor, having been informed of the purpose, entered into the spirit of the thing, and by midnight Willys was handed a mountain of silver dollars, half dollars, and even dimes and nickels, topped off with a thick layer of one dollar bills and a sprinkling of twos, five and tens.

His eloquence, his sincerity, and his faith in the future of the automobile industry won over all the important creditors and so convinced them of the company's prospects that a majority elected to accept preferred stock for their entire claims. He summoned the four largest suppliers of parts and materials, explained to them that they might as well let the Overland have the material they had manufactured for it, painting a glowing picture of the company's prospects and once more it would pay them to co-operate by accepting three months' notes for additional supplies.

Within eight years John N. Willys, the saver of Overland, was offered $80,000,000 for his share of the company.

CURB MARKET UTILITIES ARE MARKED UP

By CLAUDE A. JAGGER

New York, March 6 (AP)—The curb market rallied substantially in quieter trading today as bulls were encouraged by the cut in the Bank of England's discount rate and the rapid recovery on the big board.

Fajardo Sugar Co. and Power warrants, American Gas & Electric Bond & Share and American Superpower gained a point or two.

Engineers Public Service option warrants reached new high ground in sympathy with buoyancy of the stock on the big board. Niagara-Hudson showed little response to announcement of 1929 earnings of 61 cents a share.

In the industrials, some of the air stocks were in fair demand. Consolidated Aircraft and National Aviation selling at new highs for the year. Radio shares also improved, Hazeltine and Arcturus-Radio-Tube reached new high levels for the movement.

Features of the investment trusts were the Blue Ridge and Shenandoah issues, which moved up about a point to a new 1930 top. Goldman-Sachs was firm.

There were a few soft spots. Aluminum Company reacted a few points and Deere new stock again partially recovered.

Marshall Field new sold about 2 points below its offering price.

RECEIPTS GAIN FOR LAND TRUST

Total receipts for 1929 of Texas Pacific Land Trust amounted to $628,736, as compared with $493,484, or an increase of $133,274 for the year ended December 31, 1929, according to the trustees' report made public by David Rumsey, chairman. Total receipts from all sources for the year were $1,418,709.

During the year oil and gas leases were issued covering 19,029 acres for an aggregate cost consideration of $367,704 in addition to which 4,000 is payable in oil if produced on two of the leases, supplementing the royalty provisions.

Itemized sources of income for the year following: Grazing rentals $91,711, royalties on oil and mineral leases $444,389, bonuses and rentals on oil and mineral leases, $423,042; interest on bills receivable, $40,657; interest on deposits and lons, $6315; miscellaneous, $352; cash payments on sales, $12,856, and bills receivable collected, $103,277.

Major portion of the increase in receipts, the report said, is from royalties obtained from the 25 producing wells in Howard County in addition to 14 in other sections of the state, notwithstanding the curtailed production in this field resulting from proration in effect by the Texas State Commission, which allows an oil production of about 33 per cent of the potential total.

Equity Investors Share Value at 27

Equity Investors Corporation reports net income of $1,657,000, federal taxes, from January 17 to December 31, 1929, amounted to $831,846, which is equal to $3.24 per cent on the paid-in capital and surplus. After all expenses and preferred dividends there remained available for the common stock $15.41 per share.

To look value of the common stock, which was $10 upon organization, was further increased by $2.41 per share through the purchase of preferred stock below par and through the conversion of a small amount of preferred stock into common stock. After writing off organization charges, the book value of each common share at the end of the year was $27.78.

Limousine Body's Orders Are Large

Chicago, March 6—Large renewal contracts for Cord and Auburn bodies will be placed within the next three weeks with the Limousine Body Co., of Kalamazoo, Mich., according to Frederick Lanchester, Jr., president of the automobile body company. Lanchester is also president of the Auburn Automobile Co., it was announced today by J. D. Robb, president. These orders are expected to demand practically production capacity of the plant, he said, and will continue indefinitely on that basis.

The Limousine Body Co. at present has demands upon it which will keep it busy for at least four months. The new contracts are likely to cause expansion in production facilities, as well as to add a night force.

Curb Seat $185,000, Has $10,000 Advance

New York, March 6—Arrangements have been made for the sale of a New York Curb Exchange seat at $185,000, up $10,000 from the previous sale.

New Lows Are Set in Cotton Market

New York, March 6 (INS)—Early weakness in the cotton market brought prices down to new low levels, but supporting orders on the lower quotations produced a steadying effect upon further turnover. Commission houses were in the market, pointed out the heavy amount of unliquidated cotton that will be confronting the producing forces, and used the bearish item with some success. Weakness in Liverpool influenced further selling after noon. October old sold at 14.74, off 29; December old at 15.12, off 27; and January old 15.10, off 35.

Approve Gotham Capital Reduction

Stockholders of Gotham Silk Hosiery Company, Inc., have approved a reduction of the company's capital by $573,100, representing the par value of preferred stock retired in accordance with the charter sinking fund requirements, or shares of such stock repurchased in excess of sinking fund requirements.

The shares when retired or otherwise purchased were charged against surplus, the reduction of capital for these shares restoring to surplus an amount equal to the par value of the shares, or $573,100.

BOND MARKET IS HELPED BY RATE CUTS

By JOHN L. COOLEY

New York, March 6 (AP)—Further favorable developments in the credit situation, including a reduction in the Bank of England discount rate and another cut in bankers' acceptances, buoyed the bond market today.

All of the American government securities touched new highs for one year on even stronger buying support than appeared evident Wednesday was marked by a scattering of new 1930 peaks.

Burlington General 4s, Rock Island General 4s, Illinois Central 4½s, New Haven 4½s, Pennsylvania 4½s, St. Louis & San Francisco prior lien 4s and refunding 4½s, Union Pacific 3s and Louisville & Nashville 4½s were among the investment carriers prominent in the upturn.

American Telephone debenture 5s of 1965 went to the new high of 102. Public Service Electric & Gas 4½s also made a record price, while Columbia Gas & Electric 5s (May maturity) equalled their previous high. Washington Water Power 5s rallied 1½. Industrials responded more slowly.

Foreign sugars sold off on the Senate's adoption of the increased tariff schedule on this commodity. American Beet Sugar 6s, on the other hand, advanced a point.

Gains in the United States Government listings carried the Liberty 3½s to par on a quarter-point rise. The fourth Liberty's mounted several 32nds of a point, while the Treasury 4½s, which closed on Wednesday at 112, soared to 112.25.

The list of new offerings was headed by the City of Sydney, N. S. W., 55,000,000 issue of 25-year 5½s priced at 90. This was the first financing ever done in the United States by that municipality. Small loans for St. Paul, Minneapolis, Nassau County, N. Y., were also sold.

Listed foreign bonds failed to attract much attention, but ruled steady. Belgium 7s moved in some volume around their year's high.

Atlas Tack Spends on Developments

Balance sheet of Atlas Tack Corp. as of Dec. 31, 1929, shows current assets of $802,098; current liabilities of $126,112, and net capital of $675,926. This compares with working capital of $829,748 on Dec. 31, 1928.

President Sage says: "A relatively large sum was profitably spent during the year for experimental and development work. During midyear 1929 the company acquired the Primo Crown patents and machinery for production of this bottle seal. It is confidently expected that this will be a profitable department of the business.

Stock Purchase of Rail Is Contested

Washington, March 6 (INS)—The Interstate Commerce Commission today permitted the Denver Chamber of Commerce and the bondholders' committee of the Rio Grande Southern to intervene in the application of the Denver & Rio Grande Western for authority to acquire the Denver & Salt Lake road by stock purchase.

N. ENGLAND TO VIEW MIGHTY AIR FLEET

By GEORGE HAMBLIN

Starting in Springfield, Tuesday, May 27, the New England Air Tour sponsored by the New England Council will visit 56 cities and towns, making stops at 12 of them, and finishing at the new Bowles Airport, Springfield, Friday, May 30.

Boston is scheduled for a short afternoon stop on the second day of the tour, and Worcester Airport will be opened for one day by the Chamber of Commerce so that the tour can make a stop.

Every plane will be inspected by a Department of Commerce aircraft inspector before the tour starts, and all pilots will be licensed transport men. In this way, the committees in charge of the event will be sure that no inexperienced or incompetent pilots are flying, and that all planes are in perfect shape for the whirlwind tour around New England.

MAKE PLANS FOR TOUR

The three committees working on the tour will have a joint meeting March 18 to make final preparations for the tour, according to R. W. Bowdoin, of the council, who is in charge of the whole works.

Leave Springfield May 26 or 27, flying over Holyoke and Northampton. On half of the planes will branch out and go to Turner's Falls and help out in the dedication of the new airport there, while the other half goes direct to Springfield, Vt.

The Turner's Falls group will then fly over Brattleboro, Keene, Bellows Falls, and rejoin the other group at Springfield, Vt.

Then the boys will hop off and waggle their wings over Claremont, Windsor, White River Junction, Hanover, Barre and stop in Montpelier for lunch.

Directly after chowing and refueling, the air squadron will leave for Burlington, St. Albans and stop at Newport, Vt. After a short respite there, they will tour over Lancaster, Littleton, Plymouth, Laconia, Franklin and wind up at Rob Fogg's field in Concord, N. H., for the night. What a day of flying.

The next morning the ships will look at Rochester, N. H., and then into Maine, flying over Sanford, Auburn, Lewiston, Augusta, Camden, Rockland and Rockwell, stopping for lunch at Portland.

An hour's layoff, and then off again, looping at Saco, Biddeford, Dover, N. H., Manchester, Nashua, Lowell, Lawrence and stopping for a while at Lexington.

AT BOSTON AIRPORT

When the people gathered at the Boston Airport get their fill of looking at the air armada, the ships will leave, giving Brockton and Taunton a look, and then stopping at Sound Avenue airport in New Bedford, or in other words, the New Bedford-Fairhaven airport, for the night.

The next day will see a hop over Fall River, and a stop in Providence. Directly going over the London, New Haven, lunch at Bridgeport, Danbury, Waterbury, New Britain and then going over the hartford, Ct., at Brainard Field.

As Friday, the 30th of May is the next day, the ships will go to Bowles Airport, in Springfield, to attend the three-day opening of that million dollar airport.

Herewith is the solution to yesterday's puzzle.

EUROPA READY TO SAIL NOW

Berlin, March 6 (INS)—With favorable reports concerning her speed tests off the coast of Norway, the new German Lloyd ocean liner Europa is almost ready for her maiden trip across the Atlantic, it was declared today. She is scheduled to sail on March 9.

It is an open secret that on her initial run the Europa will try to wrest the speed ribbon from her sistership, the Bremen, now the fastest liner on the seas.

A "Schurman Hall," with the portrait of Dr. Jacob Gould Schurman, former United States ambassador to Germany, is the outstanding feature of the Europa. It is meant as a special tribute to the American diplomat, who baptised the liner two years ago.

Declare Dr. Donnell Too Sick to Be Tried

Auburn, Me., March 6—Dr. E. C. Higgins and Dr. George B. O'Connell of Lewiston, appointed to examine Dr. Charles F. Donnell to ascertain whether he would be able to stand trial for manslaughter Monday, have reported that it would be dangerous for him to be brought into court. He has had heart, and kidney trouble also, and his condition is such that the excitement of a trial at this time might cause his death.

Loses Love, Takes Poison

Washington, March 6 (INS)—Miss Edna Crosby, 37, died from poison taken after a love rift, police reported.

SHOPGIRL WINS LOVE AS DEBS INTRIGUE

Debutantes have more worries than shopgirls!

For the pretty little clerk can marry ANY man she loves, but the deb has to corner a bank account or she's a failure!

Jeannette Rose had to spite her younger sister, Cecile, for stealing her men. So she paid her back in her own coin—with little Cinderella Ardeth playing the role of bait for Cecile's men.

Ardeth didn't know. She thought her "fairy godmother" came when Jeannette asked her to tend shop in the exclusive little shop she had opened for a fad.

And Ardeth thrilled to the attention paid her by these new young gods from the glittering world Jeannette moved in.

"Girl Unafraid" is the amazing story of a shopgirl who outwitted two society darlings and walked off with the prize catch of the town.

But the story doesn't end there!

Don't miss "Girl Unafraid," by Gladys Johnson, famous authoy of "Marriage." Here is the harmony of youth in love, with a mighty blast of dynamite that shakes the foundation of society's marriage mart!

LARGEST EVENING
CIRCULATION IN NEW ENGLAND

Commissioner McLaughlin

Confirmation of His Appointment by Hired Hands of the State, a Reversal of Their Previous Decision

MEMBERS of the STATE Department of Civil Service and Registration, appointees of successive Governors, have at long last confirmed the appointment by the Mayor of Boston of Mr. Edward F. McLaughlin as Fire Commissioner.

Mr. McLaughlin's name was on the FIRST list of Curley appointments.

The Civil Service board REJECTED it, and being required to make no explanatory statement, made none.

McLaughlin was named for the same office on a SECOND list and the Mayor visited the State board to argue the matter.

Now, the appointee is said to have "passed," but again there is no explanation.

Which once more brings to the attention of the people of Boston the strange case of former Congressman Joseph A. Conry, respected citizen and able attorney, whom these STATE appointees have found unfitted for the post of Traffic Commissioner.

Nothing has been or can be said against Mr. Conry's character or ability. The place to which he was called by Mr. Curley was given by a REPUBLICAN mayor, only a few months ago, to one of the clerks in that gentleman's office. THAT appointment was confirmed instantly.

The affair of the Civil Service Commission and Joseph A. Conry begins to have an odor.

Branch Libraries

Where?

THAT fourteen members of the Boston City Council have been engaged in a polite but nevertheless earnest struggle for branch libraries should be reassuring to Mr. and Mrs. Citizen.

There ARE cities—or so we are told by sensational magazines—where aldermen fight one another for the crap game privilege, or the clearing-house pool privilege, or the handbook privilege.

Ours want nothing better than the privilege of bringing home a $100,000 branch of the Boston Public Library.

As they sing the song on School Street, it goes like this:

"We may live without poetry, music and art;
We may live without conscience and live without heart;
We may live without friends; we may live without cooks;
But no City Councillor can come back without books."

Trouble appears to be that whereas Librarian Belden had named 13 districts in which branches are needed, "Papa" Boston could not afford all of them at once.

Mayor Curley's plan is to erect TWO branch libraries annually for the next six years.

Which two THIS year?

That is what the Councillors wanted to know, especially the 14 whose districts are hungry for branch libraries.

Nor can we blame them. We can imagine few things more likely to be of help to the young man eager to be re-elected to the Council—in Boston, mind—than the right to point to a Branch Library and say, "There, see what I did!"

Still, there was the City Treasury, and there was NOT the sum needed for all of these branches at once.

Maine and Cape Cod

Potatoes and Oysters

THE Idaho potato, we learn from Washington, is to be featured no longer on the menu of the House restaurant.

Until the practice caught the eagle eye of Congressman Donald F. Snow of Maine, a few days ago, the restaurant emphasized Idaho's "big bakers" in RED INK.

The Congressman from Way Down East did not ask that the name of Aroostook County be substituted for that of Senator Borah's State, he merely objected.

So, the use of red ink has been abandoned and Massachusetts is penalized along with Idaho.

It happens that the big boss of the House restaurant is Congressman Underhill of Massachusetts, a native of Virginia. Mr. Underhill may have anticipated a protest on behalf of the succulent Lynnhaven, but whatever his reason the Somerville Congressman has put an end to the use of red ink.

Which should, but probably won't, please everybody.

H. G. Wells Writes on

"The Science of Life"

In Collaboration With

Prof. Julian Huxley and Geo. P. Wells

BACTERIA, for example, are very important in agriculture. There are a number of kinds of bacteria living in the earth which lay hold of the nitrogen gas in the air and turn it into substances in the soil which can be absorbed and used by plants.

H. G. Wells

The fertilizing action on the soil of crops of leguminous plants, such as beans and clover, is due to the fact that their roots are always swollen and warty from the presence of swarms of symbiotic bacteria—parasites, if you like, but parasites which benefit their host more than they harm it, for they convert ammonia into nitrates, which are important substances in the economy of plants.

Again, bacteria are both enemies and allies to the dairy-farmer. The taste of butter depends to a large extent on the bacteria that inhabited the milk in the time between milking and churning; there are some bacteria that make pleasant flavors and others that make foul.

For this reason it is customary in scientific butter-making to sterilize the milk as soon as possible after milking and then to add a "starter"—a culture of the right kind of organism. In this way one is certain of getting a pleasant flavor.

Moreover, the "starter" usually includes the bacteria that turn milk sour, because it is found that the acidity of sour milk prevents the growth of undesirable bacteria.

Further, the flavors and distinctive properties of cheeses (even their contained air-bubbles) depend on the organizms (chiefly bacteria and yeasts), that have inhabited them during the ripening process.

The characteristic flavors of cheese from different districts, like the characteristic flavors of wines, are due to the fact that each district has its own races of the appropriate micro-organisms.

Vinegar is made by the action of bacteria which turns alcohol into acetic acid; the slimy mass known as "mere de vinaigre" consists of these organisms embedded in the slime that they produce.

And many of the processes in leather manufacture, such as the "sweating" process, which softens the hairs so that they are readily scraped off the skins, are really carefully-watched bacterial decay.

On a higher plane, bacteria have played a part in strengthening religious faith.

The prodigy of the bleeding Host, in which bread broken out into scarlet spots was due to a bacterium which grows on bread and manufactures a red pigment; the same organism may infect human skins, if not too frequently washed, and thus cause miraculous "sweatings of blood."

There are other bacterial curiosities, too. The phosphorescence that appears on rotting wood, fish and the like is due to bacteria; and so is the heat of manure heaps and moist haystacks.

But the outstanding thing about bacteria, perhaps the most important of all, is that they are the chief organisms responsible for putrefaction.

Usually one regards putrefaction as a nuisance—if anything in the larder goes bad or if a rat dies under the boards of the floor one resents this apparent tendency of dead organic matter to deliquesce and stink.

But decay is not a natural property inherent in dead and abandoned things; it is a sign that they are being inhabited and consumed by busy millions of microscopic creatures. And decomposition is a vitally important process.

If everything that died were perfectly preserved and lay forever as a corpse on the surface of the earth we should be hard put to it to find room for our feet. But there is a better reason than that.

A living body, a man for example, is a more or less definite weight of organic matter set apart for special use; when the creature dies its body is finished with, and in the usual course of Nature its substance is melted down, so to speak, and used again into other bodies.

For the amount of available carbon, for example, in the world is limited. Equally important, there is energy even in a dead body; it is combustible, a potential fuel.

To Be Continued Tomorrow

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, March 6—The Bowery is still the Bowery. Chain store opulence has failed to blot out its accustomed dinginess. There are strips of the glowering wide thoroughfare as colorfully rowdy as they were in the days of Suicide Hall and Steve Brodie's swing door saloon.

Sidewalk hucksters are still hawking everything from 10-cent neckties to 50-cent workshirts. Plaster of Paris statues continue to be sold from capacious head baskets of dark, sinister men with rings in their ears.

Even the old time song book, featuring mournful ballads, are held out by shuffling figures and men with lost voices and sunken noses whisper for a dime for "a cuppa caw-fee." Before daylight each morning the eternal dreadlines form in front of missions.

The scarred Chinese theater—now called the Cathedral of the Underworld—attracts its nightly crew of sodden souls who lift husky voices in "Washed in the Blood of the Lamb" while a creaky organ wheezes its dolorous accompaniment.

On church steps after dusk are sprawled unfortunates, wrapped in newspapers, and fighting for a few hours of dreamless sleep. Hash houses, carpeted with sawdust, and flop houses with their dim blobs of light add to the depressing etching of The Port of Missing Men.

After midnight I dropped into a beefsteak place in Chatham sq. The menu offered the following: Pea soup, 4 cents; coffee and sinkers, 7 cents; beef stew with crackers, 14 cents; potatoes, 2 cents, and apple pie, 6 cents. There were seven customers, two asleep over table tops. A legless man dragged himself in to play "Suwanee River" on a mouth organ. After a few bars he was driven out with a guttery curse.

Chinatown, after midnight, had the desolation of the country churchyard. In one little fruit store a couple of Chinese were playing cards by candle light. Printers were at their cases in the office of the Chinese daily newspaper. Nowhere else was there a show of life.

"I saw you," writes Bystander, "extend your hand to a man in the Ritz lobby who did not see it and rushed on. The way you turned it off by leaning over to pat a dog was neat."

I often pick 'em off the ground that way for a bit of shoe string fielding.

Three Divinities Are Blindfolded

THIS One Interests All of Us

(Copyright, 1930)

THE GODDESS OF FORTUNE SHOWERS DOWN GIFTS

AMONG the ancients two goddesses and one god were represented as blindfolded, and the more you think about it, the more you admire the wisdom of those ancients.

The little God of LOVE appears with a bandage over his eyes.

You recognize the wisdom of THAT when you read the divorce court proceedings.

The Goddess of JUSTICE is carefully bandaged. And you understand that as you see the man who steals a loaf of bread hurrying into prison, and the man who steals from one to fifty millions hurrying aboard his yacht to go to Europe.

The goddess sits up in the tree, blindfolded, holding a sceptre that indicates her power, with nice long red hair, NOT bobbed, and very scanty clothing.

Human beings below offer up their appeals for this and for that. And Fortune showers down whatever she pleases. A sword pierces the neck of one; jewels for ornament, axes, spades for hard work, hammers, crowns and decorations fall to others, helter-skelter.

Of course we know that what REALLY comes down from the Tree of Fortune is the thing that we BRING DOWN BY HARD WORK, in the long run.

But it comforts us to see a picture which appears to make success a matter of accident and of whim.

Go out into the open and really WORK. There is plenty of reward there if the work is of the right kind and hard enough.

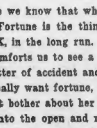
Listen, World!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

THESE tremendous new discoveries! Telescopes boring into space . . . microscopes splitting up matter . . . biologists, geologists, archaeologists brushing aside time . . . all of them shrinking the world into nothingness—

Do you feel as if you were being wiped off the map?

A little while ago you were so sure of yourself . . . so sure that you mattered and that everything that happened to you mattered. That accident that crippled you . . . the time your bank failed . . . little Mary's death . . . all the tangled story of your life, surely it was important.



Elsie Robinson

But now, when you think how tiny the world is, when you realize the billions and billions of men who lived and suffered and died before history even began . . . can you still feel that your little life matters? Or are you seized with a sudden terrible panic of hopelessness? Do you cry—

"I'm so small I don't count! Nobody cares whether I live or die. Why, this whole world isn't even a pin-prick in space, so how can I possibly matter?"

Do you reason that way?

Probably. Many of us, stunned by science, do reason that way. Yet it's a foolish way to reason. Think—

Time and size . . . these are man made measurements. They are very important to me. But to the Creator there is as much beauty and engineering skill in the wing of a gnat as in the body of an elephant. The snowflake, which is to endure but a second, is as intricately designed as the sun, which shall endure aeons. And the love and courage of frail human beings surpass all other forms of beauty and power.

Evolution has not been trying, for all these ages, to make bigger bodies . . . it has been trying to make bigger spirits. Your body may be dwarfed by space and destroyed by time, but that does not make you unimportant. There is something burning in your body which is greater than all time or space . . . something which men can neither make nor measure.

There is a desire for a greater life burning in your body . . . a desire for love and courage, beauty and order and honor.

Since life first began, this desire has been growing. It is the only thing that matters in life. It is the thing which makes you important.

Don't let the miles of space frighten you. One throb of love is greater than all space. Don't let the countless generations of dead discourage you. The thing that is in you has triumphed over all death. Don't think that you don't count because you are so tiny. The thing that is in you isn't tiny. It is as high as the farthest star . . . as deep as the pit of time. It is the dream of God . . . the likeness of His Face. As long as you hold that dream, you do matter.
